SYNOPSIS OF "HEARTS OF THE WORLD"

Two American painters make their home in France. Marie, the daughter of one painter, and Douglas Hamilton, the oldest son of the other, live next door to each other. A natural event is the love between the two.

The little Disturber, a strolling singer, falls in love with young Douglas also. However, this affair does not develop to any disastrous conclusion.

Marie and her lover are in the midst of great preparations for their coming wedding when the Great War begins. Though an American citizen he gives his life to the service of France.

Marie and her family, left at home in the village, refuse to believe the possibility of danger.

The little French company, a part of the great army of France, however, are beaten back by the great German offensive.

Then follows the overwhelming of the French, the bombardment and destruction of the village. The scenes of the evacuation and of the distress and terror of the villagers under the bombardment.

The latter part of the story takes up the village under German occupation.

In this village Marie and the little Disturber manage to drag out an existence at the village inn, now in possession of the Huns.

The story relates the suffering, privations and agony of the villagers in their captivity, relating also the preparations for the rescue of the village by the French, the massing of their troops, the intense struggle of the French soldiers to recapture the village and free their loved ones and the prayers and hopes of the women and children of the village awaiting their deliverance, ascend from cellar and crypt in the stricken district.

The first part of our play is the story of the village in the time of peace, an attempt in a small way to suggest the beauty of France, the music of her moonlight, the perfume of her blossoms, the charm of her walls and her streets, her streams and her pathways—ways that the legions of Caesar found beautiful centuries ago.

An attempt to suggest the gold of her love, her small troubles, her light laughter, her great hopes.

The heroes and heroines are humanity, the villain, militarism.

Our poor little heroes and heroines we know have a heavy burden, trying to give even the faintest suggestion of that heavy load carried by humanity in stricken France and Belgium. So try and bear with them indulgently, for the story they tell is the story of truth.

Hockey Teams From Mainland May Try Invasion of P.E.I.

Now that winter is here and time about to come for the hockey season, the youth of this province are turning their eyes to the subject of hockey. Charlottetown, has always been a strong hockey centre and the crop of hockey material has seldom over produced disappointment. The war on ice has during the past few years taken away most of the Island's best athletes in every line, some of whom will never return. Whether in the game of war or the game of everyday life the Island boys have certainly proved their ability. Now that the great conflict is ended it is expected that there will be a general revival of interest in the various lines of athletics and that hockey will again "come into its own." The following from an Amherst exchange will be read with interest about this time:

"There is a great deal of talk concerning an Amherst team going to Charlottetown to play hockey early in the year. The local boys are dead in love with Charlottetown and its people—they were giving a rousing reception there last year. Rumor says that Chapman, Grimley and Stuart will constitute the defence of the proposed team, and that Les Lowther, Dunc Chisholm, Vic Silliker, Les Bickerton, George Lowther, Fred Locke and others will compose the forward line. Providing the weather is good "The Fiddle Dams" expect that a general tour will be made of the region of the Gulf."

As Amherst says the Charlottetown boys treated them white and it should not be hard to get teams here this winter from Amherst, Halifax, and Moncton some good fast clean hockey should be seen.

A team from here composed of Dougan, Prowse, Fred Kelly, Campbell, Buntain, McEachern, Fred Moore and others should make a good show ing against teams from the other side and should be able to uphold the prestige of the city and province.

The following from the Halifax "Mail" will also be read with interest.

"One of the local hockey teams may play in Charlottetown late in the winter. The Islanders offered the Socials of hockey played at the Island is not as fast as the local players are credited with handing out and our boys should come back with a few victories. The Amherst team invaded the Island last winter and cleaned up in fine style."

It is now up to the Island boys to get ready and show the invaders the kind of "victories" they may expect.
