

Many Needy Children Are Yet To Be Adopted - Pals

Santa Pals, but four days remain in which to provide Christmas happiness for children listed below. Members of the Santa Pal League are beginning to breathe easier towards the end of last week, believing that perhaps provision of a happy Christmas would be assured for these needy little ones through the kindness of Santa Pals. Over the week end, however, clergymen sent in another hundred names of children whom they believe will be forgotten unless Santa Pals undertake to adopt them. The clergymen were told that the names would be put in the paper and then it would be up to Santa Pals. Will you make them happy? Call the Cardinal, 133.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES ST. DUNSTON'S BASILICA

The Masses were celebrated at the usual hours in St. Dunstan's Basilica yesterday morning. The solemn Mass at 11 o'clock was celebrated by Rev. Oswald Murphy, assisted by Rev. Louis A. Dougan, deacon, and Rev. Wilfred McCauley, sub deacon. The sermon at this Mass was preached by the Rev. Wilfred Keeffe. Catechism was held in the afternoon for the boys. In the evening vespers were chanted. Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was given by the Rev. Louis A. Dougan. On Christmas Eve at 11:30, Christmas carols will be sung by the Corpus Christi Choir, followed at midnight by Pontifical Mass, celebrated by the Bishop of Charlottetown.

ST. JAMES CHURCH

"Christmas Day—its meaning" was the theme of the impressive sermon delivered by the Rev. R. Moorhead Legate, D.D., at the morning service of St. James Presbyterian Church yesterday. Dr. Legate took as the text, Isaiah 4:14 "Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son and call His name Emmanuel." The Minister pointed out that in the excitement of giving and receiving gifts, etc., we forget to appreciate fully the spiritual significance of Christmas Day. The Hebrew meaning of Emmanuel was "God with us." His coming made the world the House of God. Metaphorically speaking, the Minister said, Christ was the goal, the gate through which we are enabled to enter upon the full enjoyment of life here and life everlasting as well. Music fitting to the day was rendered by the choir. Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Raymond sang the duet, "Cantique de Noel." A solo, "Away In a Manger" was sung by Master Kendrick Gordon of the boys' choir. The offertory anthem, "I Came Upon the Midnight Clear," was rendered by the choir with Mrs. Raoul Raymond rendering the soprano obbligato. The evening service was attended by a crowded congregation when the choir, under the direction of Mrs. J. A. Lawson with Mrs. Keith S. Rogers presiding at the organ, rendered a full choral service in which anthems and carols were featured. The girl and boy choristers taking a prominent part. Rev. Dr. Legate read impressively the scripture story of the birth of Jesus, and led the congregation in prayer. Appreciation was expressed on all sides of the high standard of music maintained by the choir. The soloists in the evening were Mrs. N. D. MacLean, Miss Marguerite Cudmore and Miss Lena McLure. A duet was rendered by

THE SALVATION ARMY

Christmas was the theme of the special services held in the Salvation Army yesterday. The Citadel was tastefully decorated for the festive season for which thanks must be given to Messrs Hawley Crockett and Edward Downe. In the Sunday morning service Adj. Lynch based his sermon on the text "Thou shalt call His name Jesus for He shall save His people from their sin." Sunday afternoon a special Christmas service was held in the P. E. I. Infirmary. The Band rendered Christmas carols. A feature of the evening service was the singing of a special Christmas number "Away in a Manger" by a group of Sunday school scholars. The Band rendered the lovely Christmas tune "Silent Night." Mrs. Adj. Lynch brought a very suitable message from the text "We have seen His Star."

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

At the morning service of the Baptist Church, the Rev. Harvey L. Denton, B.D., took as the theme of his sermon "Prelude to Advent" and "and thou shalt call his name Jesus for He will save His people from their sins." And so, before Mary the mother are the three fold implications of that promise, the promised life, the purpose of that life, the possibilities of that life. God is essentially a creator. Who must ever be composing Himself in terms of His physical, mental, spiritual, a life which is a gift from God and an achievement as well. He shall save. He shall save people not only from something but to something, from sin and to righteousness. In the birth of Christ there was purpose, not only for Jesus but for mankind as well. In every child born into the world there is a bit of the Divine. To all mankind is given the possible glory and the responsibility of being to some degree a Saviour. In Jesus we see one who gladly allowed God to express himself completely and perfectly. May God, more and more make His advent to the hearts of mankind. At the evening service the final address in that series of such wide interest, Seven Simple Sins, was delivered by Mr. Denton who on this occasion with his usual eloquent clarity and point, discussed "Pride." Miss Helen Callbeck's organ prelude for the day were "Noel" at the morning service and "La Chreche" (Gullmant) in the evening. The part of the morning was Christina Rossetti's "In the bleak Midwinter" in setting by Holst. An arresting evening sermon was preached on "Old Bones Made Neidinger's "The Birthday of a King" was sung with fine expression by Miss Lena McLure. The anthem of the evening was Pietro Yon's "Gesù Bambino." Miss Vera H. Malcolm Campbell, music teacher, sang very effectively Weber's "Star Eternal." The church and school room were beautifully decorated for the Christmas season in spruce and poinsettia. The flowers on the communion table were placed there by the Burns family in memory of their mother Mrs. Wellington Burns.

QUICK CHANGES GIVE COSTUMES DUAL ROLES You, my dignified lady, may be a "strip-tease artist" in a modified form before the winter is over, for Paris designers have introduced the removal of clothing piece by piece as a means of making costumes serve for several occasions. You may start out for the day in a tailored suit and come home in a dress, or wear a cocktail costume early in the evening and later turn it into an evening gown simply by the removal of a jacket or over-bouse. HOW DIFFERENT Jenny shows a black velvet suit with pale blue satin blouse. But remove the jacket and skirt and a smart tailored light blue satin afternoon dress appears. Double-skirted evening gowns become afternoon frocks by ripping off the lower flounce of the skirt, leaving an upper skirt of daytime length. One house shows a black coat trimmed with plaid over a straight black skirt with plaid blouse. Off come the coat and skirt and there is a smart plaid wool sports dress. SLIGHT-OF-HAND A long-sleeved cocktail dress with a full-length skirt can be transformed into an afternoon dress by removing the outer skirt to reveal a short one beneath, and, reversing the process, another house changes a cocktail suit into an evening costume. Made with a long-sleeved bolero jacket when that is removed a short-sleeved bolero gives a dressier touch to the costume—but that also peels off and a low-cut evening gown comes forth. Many houses use a modified version of the "stripping" by making several colored cocktail dresses into evening gowns by the simple process of removing the jacket. To attract more tourists hotels of Egypt have reduced rates. IT IS WISE TO PAINT SCREENS EVERY YEAR If you don't wish the outside of your home to be disfigured with greenish-brown streaks, be sure to have the wire of all fly-screens painted before final staining for the winter. If your screens are not fully protected, rain will wash unsightly stains onto the walls below. Although copper screening does not need the protection of paint to prevent its disintegration—it does need it decidedly if you don't want such stains on the walls of your home beneath windows, doors and screened porches. To prevent this, coat screen wire with clear varnish, screen enamel or paint. Iron screens, of course, will rust away if they're not protected with such a coating.
