Duelling Wave Sweeping Italy

ROME, March 2—A mad wave of duelling of a fury unknown for decades past, is sweeping the ranks of Roman aristocracy. The clash of sabres has mounted into such a defening chorus of hate that even the sacred walls of the Vatican have been penetrated. The new Pope, Pius XI, is said to have raised his voice in protest, admonishing members of the aristocracy to respect the laws prohibiting duelling.

A Neapolitan nobleman, Marcelli Orilia, well-known owner of a racing stud, fought fiercely this morning with the Marquis Serra Capriola, whose sister, Orilia jilted. The furious encounter resulted in a severe arm wound for Orilia.

Again was a woman the point of contention when the aged Duke Marino de Torlonia and the Count Filippo Lovateli battled almost to the death. Lovatelli, a dilletante sculptor of some ability, made a bust of the beautiful young Dona Torlonia, who before her marriage to the Duke was Elsie Moore, of New York, and is known as the "Diamond Duchess."

Torlonia objected to the bust, and is said to have made a bitter remark about Lovatelli. The noble young sculptor then challenged the Duke, who, rugged old sportsman that he is, accepted for all his sixty years, which, under Roman duelling tradition, gave him the right to decline with honor.

Lovatelli lies today with his arm slashed open to the bone by a blow which struck its way cleanly through the entire muscular fabric of the member. Lovatelli is progressing favorably, but Dona Torlonia is indisposed as a result of the battle that was waged over her.

The duel was one of the fiercest seen here in recent times. The swords used were of a vicious, rigid type, and were thoroughly capable of dealing a mortal blow. So furious did the battle rage that the seconds experienced the greatest difficulty in preventing the duelists from coming within dangerous proximity.

MURRAY HARBOR MAIL BY SLEIGH—It has been necessary this winter for the first time in many years to deliver mail through to the eastern stations by the old fashioned horse and sleigh method. Owing to the recent storms which have again blocked the railway lines, Postmaster Whear is sending the mail by teams this morning to the Murray Harbor branch. The Souris and Georgetown mail has been put aboard the snow-fighting train which left Charlottetown this morning.

CITY HOSPITAL WORK—Repair work to the Charlottetown Hospital has progressed steadily since its removal to the lot opposite the old site of the building on Rochford Street and it is hoped soon to have it in a condition suitable for housing the patients who are now at the old Government House building. This will not be for some weeks yet, however, as heating, plumbing and other interior work is yet to be done. The new position of the hospital enables the eye to trace at a glance its really massive and beautiful proportions.

WEST KENT TEAM OFF—The West Kent School hockey team leaves this morning to play the Summerside High School. The match will be played this evening at the conclusion of the game between the Red Sox and War Vets and promises to be a lively one as both teams have worked hard and are in good shape. Husband Shot by Wife in Dispute Following Party

NEW YORK, March 2—A dispute that began at an all-night party in their home on the top floor of a little two-family house at 159 42nd street, Brooklyn, came to an end early this morning shortly after the guests had gone home, when Mrs. Helen Eysel shot and killed her husband, George Eysel. She said later that she fired in self-defence just as her husband came through the door of the dining room with a blackjack to strike her. This was corroborated, the police said, by the finding of the weapon with the strap around the wrist of the dead man. The shooting was witnessed by Albert Dine, the ten-year-old son of Mrs. Eysel by her former husband.

After her arrest on a charge of homicide, Mrs. Eysel was taken to the office of Assistant District Attorney Reuben Wilson and to him she told the whole sordid story of her married life and of the killing. She opened her fur coat and showed bruises as evidence of a beating she said she had but recently received at the hands of her husband. Eysel was 28 years old, and his wife is about the same age. She married him in 1917. Her first husband was a lieutenant in the British Royal Artillery, by him she had a son, Albert, and a younger daughter.

Picking up the blackjack from Mr. Wilson's desk, Mrs. Eysel illustrated how the dead man had threatened her when she fired across the few feet of space the one bullet which dropped him dying to the floor.

"I called to him twice, 'George, are you dead?'" she told the assistant district attorney. "I thought he was faking. I could see no blood. I thought he was going to get me. 'If you are not dead I am going to kill you,' I told him."

There was no response, Mrs. Eysel said, and she dropped her husband's head and went down the stairs into the street. When she got to the sidewalk, she met Policeman John Fatten running toward the front door. She handed him the revolver and told him she had shot her husband.

Series of Quarrels.

According to Mrs. Eysel, her married life had been a series of family quarrels complicated by her objection to her husband's attention to her sister, Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, who lived in the neighborhood. A more recent cause of trouble, she said, was that Eysel had taken $109 which she had saved. Eysel, the police said, became a bootlegger some time ago.

During the party Eysel got out his revolver to show to the guests, Mrs. Eysel told Mr. Wilson that it was unloaded then. When she picked it off the chiffonier as her husband came through the dining room door, she said, she still thought it was unloaded. She had intended, she said, to strike him on the head.

When the situation grew acute between husband and wife, the guests left hurriedly. In the dispute there was reference to the sister-in-law, who had been at the party, and she was present part of the time. Mrs. O'Brien went down stairs while the pair were quarreling. A few minutes afterward Eysel followed her. When he returned the blackjack was fast about his wrist.

"When I heard him open the door I knew he was going to beat me," Mrs. Eysel said. "I pointed the revolver at him and pulled the trigger. I was much surprised when it went off. Ithought it was not loaded. He must have put cartridges in it after he showed it to his friends earlier in the evening."

Her ten-year-old son Albert, who was only a few feet away from his mother when she killed her husband, corroborated her story of the shooting.

Col. D.A. McKinnon left yesterday morning for Ottawa to be present at the opening of the House of Parliament in the capacity of Hon Aide-de-champ to His Excellency, the Governor General.

The many friends of Mr. Jack McEachern, the snappy little centre of the champion Abegweits, will be glad to learn that he has fully recovered from a severe cold contracted on the mainland last week. He is at present in Moncton and will return home tonight, together with Mr. Lester Hughes, who very kindly stayed with "Mackey" during his illness.

SENATE REFUSED TO AMEND YAP TREATY

WASHINGTON, March 2—Dividing virtually on party lines, the United States Senate refused to amend the Yap treaty today in the first test of strength on any question affecting the international covenants negotiated during the Washington conference. The vote was 50 to 23.

Winter in the Garden of the Gulf

BY ANNA PEARL LOCKERBY, BURTON P. E. I.

A great deal has been written in enthusiastic praise of Prince Edward Island in her summer loveliness, but rarely, if ever, do we get a glimpse of this popular resort under winter conditions.

Needless to say, the grip of the Ice King robs our garden of much of its charm; yet beauty remains—subtle, delicate, compelling; and if you have ever stood in silent rapture, and watched the wonderful tints of the sunset across unsullied drifts of snow, with perhaps an old farmhouse and a group of giant willows silhouetted against the glory of the western sky, you will know what it is to drink in beauty so intense it is akin to pain.

Then, too, there is the beauty of still moonlight nights, when the roads are ribbons of silver and the silence is broken only by the tinkling of sleigh-bells or the barking of a fox or a watch dog. On such nights it is pure joy to drive down a broad, winding estuary with its patches of fir forest showing black against the sky and here and there a cheery glimmer of light from the cosy homes nestled among the trees.

As to winter sports, there is no lack here for one who enjoys outdoor life. Skating, snow-shoeing, coasting and ice-boating are all popular diversions, with skating easily in the lead. The larger towns are provided with up-to-date rinks and there are also a number of open-air rinks. But best of all are the rivers. When the ice is in good condition, all the youths, maidens and small boys hie them to the scene, build a bonfire, and set the echoes ringing with their merry shouts as they revel in the freedom of these wide spaces of crystal under the frosty stars.

Even a garden has its limitations, and the most loyal Islander must admit the existence of a few inconveniences which the residents suffer during the winter months. Foremost among these is the old narrow-gauge railroad with its inferior cars and engines. This defect, however, is gradually being remedied. A standard gauge has recently been laid from Charlottetown to Summerside and down the branch line from Emerald Junction to Borden, from which point a car ferry makes from one to three trips daily to the mainland.

A bit of personal experience will serve to illustrate the disadvantages of the old system which is still in force east and west of the towns mentioned. This year I spent the Christmas holidays at my home, five miles from the little town of Alberton. On the Friday before New Year's Day we had a heavy northeast storm followed by zero weather and a high wind, which drifted the snow into hard banks. My enjoyment of our New Year's celebration was somewhat marred by the consciousness that there was trouble in store for us on the morrow. No one will deny that it is not exactly a pleasant thing to rise at 4 a. m. on a frosty morning and drive five miles to catch a train. However, 'when duty calls we must obey,' especially if one happens to be a pedagogue, so 5 o'clock saw us—my brother and I—started on our journey.

After the horse had struggled bravely tarough the drifts for some time, we came to one which proved to be impassable and were obliged to unhitch and make our way to a neighboring farm house. Mr. R—, on perceiving our dilemma, obligingly hastened to hitch his strongest horse, provided himself with a large shovel, and went ahead with a wood-sleigh. After considerable shovelling, we succeeded in reaching the station with a good five minutes to spare before train time. Imagine our consternation on being informed that as the track was blocked, there would be no train east that day. However, it arrived the next morning carrying two snow ploughs, one of which was badly damaged and seemed to be calling attention to itself 'Just see what I've been through "expression in its battered face.

Communication with the mainland has always been one of the greatest problems of the Island, and has caused much inconvenience to travellers and many disadvantages to the province itself.

As early as 1832 communication was established between Charlottetown and Pictou, N. S. The steamer "Pacahontas" was chosen for this purpose and made the trip twice a week. Later on, another route was opened up from Summerside to Point du Chene, N. B. and two steamers, the "Northumberland" and the "Princess", plied between these points during the summer months. In winter, the "Earl Grey" and the "Minto," two specially built ice-breaking steamboats, were put on, Georgetown being the only harbor which is free from ice the greater part of the season, came into use as a winter port.

In severe weather, when the steamers were unable to make connections, the route was from Cape Traverse to Cape Tormentine, N. B., a distance of nine miles and the trip was made by ice-boats, that is, boats on runners, which were hauled over the ice by boatmen and passengers. Both men and women paid their fares, but the women were allowed to remain on board, while sterner sex were invited to get out and pull. In spite of the novelty, it was a fatiguing and sometimes even dangerous experience, and we may well rejoice that those hardships are passed away.

A great improvement was made about four years ago, when the car-ferry "Prince Edward Island" was put on the route from Borden to Cape Tormentine. This is a very powerful boat which runs winter and summer carrying whole trains of freight and passenger cars from the Island to the mainland and thus greatly facilitating transportation.

On the whole, the people of Prince Edward Island are justly proud of their little province and love her even in winter, though they all agree that summer is the time for the tourist to see her at her best and enjoy the almost ideal climate of Canada's "Million Acre Farm."

(From Presbyterian Witness, of March 2nd, 1922.)

TREATY IS DEFICIENT

PARIS, March 2.—Publishing the text of the five power treaty signed at Washington on February 7th, the Temps finds many points to criticize in the document, "and not one to praise."

"What is deficient in the Washington treaty?" this is the heading which the paper uses in its editorial on the subject, then, summing up the work of the conference, it says:—

"It can be foretold that the treaty lacks international and permanent organization to adapt it to circumstances and to guarantee its execution. The Washington conference has wished, while entirely ignoring the League of Nations, to construct a building which a powerful society of nations alone could keep up. Thus the edifice is majestic, rather than solid. Its sole excuse which its architects can invoke for the numerous means of outlet with which they have pro-

Consul Crosby Addresses The Rotary Club

The monthly meeting of the Rotary Club was held yesterday in the Rose and Grey Tea Room with Rotarian T. W. Morris in the chair and a large attendance of members.

Major Crosby, United States Consul, gave an interesting address on some aspects of the question "Who won the War?" This slogan, which originated in banter between the infantry and military police forces of the American army during the last days of the war, has been largely misunderstood in its meaning since the armistice. Thoughtless Americans may have repeated it in a spirit of boastfulness but these people, as in every country "we have always with us." The real meaning of the phrase, when used in regard to America's part in the war, has application to the material and moral support which the mobilized wealth and forces of the country undoubtedly contributed towards victory and in the same spirit it might be said of the British, French, Belgium and Canadian forces that they played an important part in winning the war. So also might it be said of the munition makers, the farmers, and every class who put their shoulder to the wheel and made victory possible.

Major Crosby, as a staff officer in the American army in France, had a fund of personal experience with which to point his arguments and his address was decidedly a feature of more than ordinary significance. The American spirit of boosting whatever undertaking they have on hand has played no small part in the successful achievements of the great republic accross the border.

Mr. Geo. Inman spoke on the coming Los Angeles International Convention. It is planned to secure a special car at St. John for Maritime Rotary delegates. The trip will be through the Western States to the coast and promises to be an interesting one.

Rotarian J. A. Webster referred to the Maritime Convention which is to be held at Moncton on March 17. About 23 local Rotarians have expressed their intention of being present.

A petition of students in the city advocating the institution of night classes along academic lines was referred for consideration to the committee composed of Rotarians A. Irwin, Walter Grant and R. E. Mutch.

Last year the United States divorce courts ground out over 135,000 divorces, or one every four minutes. In the last twenty years 3,767,182 men and women secured divorces, and 5,500,000 children were left without a home. Probably the fact that the United States is the wealthiest country in the world has something to do with this. Only too often wealth wars on the home. Luxury and self-indulgence are ruinous to character.

Both Couldn't Go.—"Honey," said the colored suitor, "when we gits married you ain't gwine to give up dat good job you has workin' for de white folks, is you?"

"But ain't we gwine to have no honeymoon an' take a trip on de train somewhere?"

"One of us might go, honey. Dey ain't a thing holdin' me, but you's got 'sponsibilities."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Minard's Liniment for Coughs and Colds

A Stitch in Time

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.

There is a whole train of dreadfully painful and fatal ailments which soon follow any neglect to get the kidneys right. Among others are rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.

Mr. C. E. Raymus, Lindale, Alta., writes:—

"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and lame back for more than a year. A friend of mine one day told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and acting upon his advice I tried them. After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I had used five boxes. By this time I felt as well and strong as ever, and am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone suffering as I did."
