Happenings Of The Week

London's leading fashion houses have started a two-fold drive to capture the title of world fashion centre lost by Paris. In one move, a three-day series of shows for United States buyers began Tuesday. Collections totalling an estimated 240 members are presented by Hartnell, Worth, Stiebel, Morton, Lachasse and Pacquin. As a second move, a wool collection designed jointly by Hartnell, Stiebel and Morton in co-operation with the wool secretariat—a promotion organization—will be dispatched soon to New York for display at the World's Fair. Of the Parisian establishments frozen out by the French defeat, Molyneux's has fallen back on its London branch, but its present plans are "wait and see." Mme. Schiaparelli has gone to New York. Other designers are reported considering the South American field. To "soothe edgy nerves," Hartnell has chosen cloth of pale, calm colors—greens, yellows and mauves. The all wool collection ranges from husky tweeds to fine dress weights based on four color groups —blue-red, blue-green, biscuit tan and red-brown. A special section is devoted to prints.

The New York World-Telegram says that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will go directly to Nassau instead of going first to the United States by clipper plane before leaving for The Bahamas, where the Duke is to serve as Governor. The newspaper said the Duchess revealed this in a cable sent to a "close friend" in New York. It quoted the cable as saying: "Having great difficulties about our transportation. Will go direct to Nassau."

A Morning Smile

MAC'S MISTAKE

Some years ago an English family rented a place in the Highlands for a few months. It was near a loch, and one morning the party engaged a boat to take them across. The weather had become very unsettled, and the father said to the boatman:

"By the way, can you tell me where I can get a mackintosh for my daughter?"

The boatman rested on his oars for a moment or two, and then said:—

"There's not just many Macintosh's hereabouts, but there is a fine young Macdonald—a bachelor—who lives at the head of the loch and he might be suiting the young lady."

The following correction appeared in a provincial newspaper:

"Our paper stated last week that Mr. John Doe is a defective in the police force. This was a typographical error. Mr. Doe is really a detective in the police farce."

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

MARRIAGE AND FREEDOM ARE AS FAR APART AS THE POLES

When You Sign on the Dotted Line You Have to Adjust Yourself to the Whims and Tastes of Your Mate

Dear Dorothy Dix—For eight years I kept company with a fine girl. She is everything a man wants in a wife—pretty, sweet, intelligent, unselfish, sincere and trustworthy. Before I camped on her steps she was extremely popular, as she is the kind every one wants to have around. One night in a weak moment I asked her to marry me and she accepted me. She filled her hope chest and bought her trousseau, but when the time came to make the final arrangements I told her I couldn't go through with it. Told her I didn't want to marry and give up my freedom. It hurt her terribly, for she has proved her love for me in a hundred ways. Now I really love this girl, but I love my liberty and since we broke up my conscience worries me. I think that if I don't marry her I will never marry any other girl, and a lonely old man who has no one to care for him isn't going to be happy. I am 42 years old and she is 33. What shall I do? Shall I try to get her to take me back? I think she would if I didn't wait too long. —B——

Answer:

No man with whom the love of liberty is the paramount passion should every marry, because marriage and freedom no more mix than oil and water. No matter how you look at it, marriage is bondage. You may love your jailer. You may kiss the fetters that bind you, but there is no disputing the fact that when you sign on the dotted line on the marriage license that you have forfeited the right to do as you please henceforth.

There is another person's comfort and convenience and pleasure you must consider. There is another person's tastes and habits to which you have to adjust yourself. There is another person's relatives and friends whom you must endure, no matter how much they bore you. There is another person's opinions which you must yes-yes, or else fight.

You can't come and go as you please and act as the spirit moves you. You can't linger with a pleasant friend or two when the conversation happens to be particularly interesting. You've got to rush home because it is the dinner hour.

You can't take a girl you know to lunch without endless explanations and apologies. You can't hop off and go fishing, or stay downtown and sit in a little game with the boys just because you happen to feel like it. You can't spend your money on yourself.

You can't—but there are endless things you can't do when you are married that you used to do when you were single. And this isn't taking into account either the nagger wife or Mrs. Hitler.

Of course, if you get what Damon Runyon calls "an everlasting" wife, marriage is worth all that it costs. But its price is personal liberty, and the man who is not willing to pay it should not marry. He should stay single for his own sake and for the sake of the woman he would make miserable if he married her. For there are no worse husbands than those who think that they can be both bachelors and husbands at the same time and have the privileges of both.

No woman can be happy if she is married to a man who dumps her down into a house as soon as they are married and then goes off to seek his own pleasures without her, leaving her to spend lonely evenings wondering what made her do it.

Nor is any wife happy whose husband finds no pleasure in her company and who treats her as if she were a ball and chain about his feet instead of a Lady Love.

So, Ewell don't let your conscience bother you about having broken off your marriage to this girl when you realized that you loved your liberty better than you did her, and that you looked upon marriage as nothing but a jail sentence at hard labor, with no time off for good behavior.

You did her the greatest possible kindness and she should be on her knees in gratitude to you for saving her from a life of unhappiness. No doubt it hurt her pride to be jilted, but that doesn't hurt as badly as the heartache a neglected wife suffers.

My earnest advice to you is never to marry unless by some chance you fall so much in love with a girl that

Keeping Pretty Is Essential For Girls

Dear Miss Dix—If a woman does not have any man friends should she doll herself up anyway? I have always been clean and neat, but have never dressed up as other girls do because I haven't any one to make myself attractive for. I don't know many men and have no opportunities to meet strangers. If any one asked me out on a date I would buy nice clothes, but as they don't, I don't bother how I look. Have I the wrong attitude? What is your advice? JANE.

Answer:

Probably the reason you don't have any dates and boy friends is because you don't "doll" yourself up. If you go around looking like something the cat brought in, with straggly hair and a shiny nose and sloppy clothes, you couldn't expect any man to give you a second look, or to want to step out with you.

Believe me, my child, that the old saying that clothes do not make the man doesn't apply to women. Clothes make three-fourths of every woman's success, and whether she wants to catch a husband or hold down a good job depends just as much on what she has on as it does upon what is in her heart or her head.

Never forget that the first thing the First Woman did after eating of the Fruit of Knowledge was to make herself a dress. That shows how important clothes are to a woman. They are the miracle-worker that turns the plain girl into a beauty. They are the first thing that attracts a man to her, and they are the perpetual brace that give her poise and self-confidence.

So my earnest advice to you is to go to a beauty shop and let them give you the works. Then buy yourself the best clothes you can possibly afford.

Never Keep Your Marriage A Secret

Dear Dorothy Dix—My husband is 19. I am 17. We are secretly married. I lack one year of completing high school. Should I go on with that or make marriage known and go to live with my husband? He works a long way from where I live and it is impossible for him to come to see me more than once every three weeks. His income will support us comfortably. Do you think graduation from high school should keep us from the perfect happiness of being together? UNHAPPY.

Answer:

By all means make your marriage known at once. A secret marriage is always slimed with scandal. Forestall any talk before it begins.

THE COOK'S CORNER

BLACK CURRANT JAM

4 pounds black currants
6 cups water
4 1-2 pounds sugar

Method: Choose currants for this that are not overripe. Pick over the currants and remove any stems. Wash the currants and drain well. Now cook the currants with the water until the pulp becomes thickened. Heat the sugar in a slow oven and then add this to the boiling pulp. Stir until the sugar is completely dissolved and then bring to a boil and keep boiling until the juice tests for Jelly. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal with melted paraffin. Cover the jars with lids or tie paper around them securely.

APRICOT MARMALADE

3 oranges
1 lemon
4 pounds ripe apricots
Water
Sugar

Method: Grind or shred very fine the unpeeled oranges and the lemon. Measure the fruit and add 6 times as much water as fruit. Boil this vigorously in an uncovered kettle for about an hour or until the mixture is reduced to about 1-2 its Volume. Add the apricots, which have been peeled and cut in halves. Cook until of the consistency of jam, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Add 3-4 cup sugar for each cup of cooked fruit and when the sugar is dissolved, bring to a boil again and cook to the desired thickness. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal with melted paraffin.

Living & Leisure —The Woman's Realm

EXILE

My secret thoughts are winging
Swift as the wild birds fly
To pine-trees etched at evening
Against an empty sky.
Oh, lovely things remembered
Across long years today,
When in a street at noon-tide,
I heard a piper play.

Clean the linoleum with a damp cloth wrung out of suds, made with a mild soap. Strong, alkali-containing soaps and powders and too much water will damage even good quality linoleum.

If some people were compelled to "eat their own words" they would soon have a bad case of indigestion.

There is only one thing worse than hearing a woman whistle, and that is seeing her try.

Try using undiluted vinegar for the removal of obstinate paint stains on the mirror or window pane.

TO KEEP BRASS SHINY

To preserve the lustre of brass, polish the brass with a good metal polish and, while the brass is still bright, wipe off the greasy residue with benzine. When this has evaporated, apply a coat of clear lacquer.

A little lemon juice squeezed into the water into which they are cooked will make potatoes whiter and impart a more delicate flavor

If a soda cracker is rolled into fine pieces and sprinkled over the lower crust of a fruit pie, it will prevent the juices from running over into the oven.

"If you have large hips, there is a new suit this season that will do much for your figure. The popular 'ballerina' suit has a gathered jersey skirt on a tightly fitted bodice. This design helps to conceal hip curves and focuses attention on a slim waist. A long, fitted beach coat is better for you than one that ends above the knees. A short coat tends to give a top-heavy look. If you want to look especially slim, wear a lightweight panty girdle under your suit. It gives added control to the hip-line area.

ECONOMY IN SUGAR

If you cut rhubarb the day before cooking, it does not require so much sugar. Cut in small pieces and sprinkle sugar and lemon peel between the layers. Leave until the next day and cook in its own juice.

By putting apples into a state resembling suspended animation, in gas storage, growers can now market fresh juicy apples in early Summer or Spring.

Sprouting Tablecloths

Out of curiosity a farmer had grown a crop of flax and had a tablecloth made out of linen. Some time later he remarked to a visitor at dinner:

"I grew this tablecloth myself."

"Did you really?" she exclaimed. "How did you ever manage it?"

It was plain she had no idea of how tablecloths came into being, so the farmer lowered his voice mysteriously as he replied:

"If you promise not to give the secret away, I'll tell you."

The guest promised.

"Well," proceeded the farmer, "I planted a napkin!"

BLACK HORIZON

By JOSEPH LEWIS CHADWICK

Pete Barker and two of the seamen made a trip to the reefed schooner that afternoon. They had brought supplies from the settling ship — and among other things matches. Rand and Sonya sat on the beach in the gathering gloom of evening and watched Pete build a huge signal fire.

Its glow was bright enough to have been seen by any chance vessel sailing within miles of the island. It lighted the whole shore. The faces of the castaway shone—with something like hope.

Oddly enough, Maya Jack Cannaghan did not object to the signal fire. He sat apart from the others, his face like one of bronze in the flickering light. His gaze ever kept seeking Sonya.

Pete Barker kept the fire going until he dropped to the sand out of sheer weariness. Kelly Burk began throwing tinder on the fire. Still Maya Jack did not protest.

Balu rested well after darkness came. The fever still gripped him, but Rand was certain his system was well rid of the snake's venom.

Rand left Balu finally to throw himself down on one of the tarpaulins that had been brought from the schooner. The others, except Kelly Burk, who sat by the fire, had long ago turned in.

Rand's body ached from weariness. He fell asleep instantly. He did not know how long he slept before he was awakened, nor did he know exactly what had awakened him. He knew only that he had been jarred out of slumber by some sound or movement.

He lay quite still, listening. He heard nothing. He turned his head and looked in Balu's direction. He started violently and began to move but the scene he beheld checked him. The fire had burned to embers, and Kelly Burk lay sleeping beside it. But a bright moon was up, giving off light enough for Rand to see Balu

NORTH WINSLOE W. I.

The June meeting of the North Winsloe W. I., was held at the home of Miss Eva Coles with fourteen members present. The meeting opened with the Ode and Creed followed by the roll call which was answered by naming a wild flower. The May minutes were read and approved. It was decided to hold a Cake Sale which caused much discussion. New sick committee, Mrs. Leonard Cudmore and Mrs. Arnett Shaw. The collection in the district for the Y. M. C. A. amounted to $14.60. It was moved and seconded that $10.00 be paid to the Ambulance Fund. One new member was welcomed to our Institute. Mrs. Leonard Cudmore invited the members to her home for the next meeting, roll call to be answered by presenting a Garden Flower and naming it. Collection amounted to 75 cents.

A contest was then enjoyed by all and won by Mrs. John Carter. Meeting closed by singing the National Anthem. A delicious lunch was then served by the hostess and a pleasant hour spent in social intercourse.

YOUR INDIVIDUAL HOROSCOPE

(By FRANCES DRAKE)

Look in the section your birthday comes in, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, July 27th, 1940

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) —A rather quiet day, planetarily speaking. It is up to you to make your own opportunities, for it is not without effort that things are accomplished. Tact with the opposite sex advised.

APRIL 21 to MAY 20 (Taurus) —Financial interests and investments should be conducted cautiously. Relax when the day's duties are done. A tendency to overstrain should be avoided. Mix with the right type of people and indulge healthy, wholesome entertainment.

MAY 21 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) —A day when everything seems to be made to order! Don't spoil the pattern by being out of step. Money affairs, heart interests, trips, research, sports, civic and government issues most favored.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) —Irritating influences may upset you unless you take things in stride and tackle difficulties with a determined, capable ambition which will stamp you a winner. A cheery smile will go a long way toward making things pleasant. Make yourself efficiently useful.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 22 (Leo)— Benefic star rays not very evident so start moving lest you find yourself behind your competition at the end of the day. Avoid nambypamby methods. Concentrate and cooperate fully with the proper persons that you may obtain adequate results for efforts expended.

AUGUST 23 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo)—Today is one of those days when you may like to drift along on the breeze. Okay IF you have conscientiously fulfilled the demands your schedule calls for. Then that restful, lackadaisical attitude will enable you to replenish spent energy.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Although this morning starts with one beneficient aspect, Mercury-Uranus, favoring progressive matters and worthy causes, balance of day urges self-restraint and caution in all business and financial transactions.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — Don't expose your health, good disposition or financial reserves to unnecessary risks. Plan carefully and follow through those plans with conscientious diligence and patience.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 22 (Sagittarius)—You'll gain more and be happier if you "Desire joy and thank God for it. Renounce it, if need be, for others' sake. That's joy beyond joy." It is your privilege to make the world less difficult for others.

DECEMBER 23 to JANUARY 21 (Capricorn) — Not particularly auspicious for matters pertaining solely to money or which have only material value but issues concerning your family's and the public's welfare are favored.

JANUARY 22 to FEBRUARY 20 (Aquarius) — Your stars advise quiet reflection and thorough investigation in all important affairs. If you have the day free from laborious tasks, enjoy it in wholesome pastime.

FEBRUARY 21 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Advice to Capricornians and Aquarians holds good for you Pisceans. Outdoor activities which will renew your energy and add to your cheerfulness should be indulged, if possible.

A CHILD BORN ON THIS DAY is a sturdy little soul, vibrant, bright and cheerful; fond of good fun and fond of praise. With right direction and gentle but firm training, this magnetic, clever somebody can become a splendid man or woman, capable, worthy of high trust.

Try This Simple Way to Train Dog in Manners

Healthy Dog Enjoys Learning

Cute, but no sissy! A course in manners is good for your pet, whether he's to be a watch-dog with work to do — or just a gay playboy.

It's no job, really, to make him catch on. Just use a long leash, stick to the same words and same tone of voice in giving a command.

To teach him to sit up, put one hand under his forelegs, gently force him up on his haunches. With the other hand chuck him under the chin and say "sit up" many times. As soon as he can keep his balance, say "good dog," give him a bit of his favorite food.

Other steps in his training—such as "to speak," "to retrieve and carry" — go as easily! And how proud your dog is of his education.

He's a proud-looking dog, too, when his coat is kept glossy, when he eats foods that make him robust, alert, healthy.

In our 32-page booklet, an expert explains right diet and grooming in detail. Gives symptoms and treatments of dog ailments such as distemper. Tells how to housebreak your dog, teach him manners and amusing tricks.
