Happenings of the Week

There are strange things done where the speed-hounds run. And the traffic is thick and fast; And each highway long has its own sad song Of the motorists who have passed.

While King George and Prime Minister Baldwin were making history inside Windsor Castle Tuesday the King's granddaughter, three-year-old Princess Elizabeth, pedaled a tricycle in the court outside. Mr. Baldwin was driven through St. George's gate into the court the ceremony of changing the guard was just taking place.

Princess Ingrid, who persistent rumor says is to wed the Prince of Wales, is a slender, golden-haired girl of nineteen, a sportsman, musician, dancer—and a good cook.

Her Excellency, Viscountess Willingdon was confined to bed with an attack of influenza and was unable to be present at the King's birthday garden party on Monday last.

RED PIMPLES DISFIGURED FACE

Became Larger and Itched. Healed by Cuticura.

"I had pimples on my face and neck. As time went on they became larger and itched. They were very red and scaly over. The pimples were so itchy that I scratched them and my face was disfigured. The irritation kept me from sleeping, and lasted several weeks.

"I tried all kinds of remedies but in vain. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased more and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and part of a box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Eilian N. Hunka, Andrew, Alberta, July 12, '28.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are ideal for daily toilet uses.

Milady Beauty

By Lela Leeds

STOCKINGS OR SOCKS

If the fad for "socklets" or very short sport socks continues to win popularity, it will become necessary for milady to give more attention to her legs.

The new vogue started last summer on the tennis courts and is receiving encouragement from those who have just begun to realize the benefit to health of the sun's ultra-violet rays.

Silk stockings manufacturers are said to be much concerned about the new fad, but beauty parlors expect it to stimulate sales of cosmetics, especially in the sun-tan shades.

Even if stockings are not discarded in favor of socklets, the summer-weight hosiery is so thin that skin roughness is all too apparent.

Some of my readers complain of blackheads and small, red pimples on the legs. These blemishes are the result of neglect, in most cases, and it requires a series of remedies to remove them.

At bedtime the skin should be steamed with hot towels. To do this, wring out a large Turkish towel in hot water and wrap it firmly around the legs. Before it cools, replace it with another hot towel. Repeat four times. On removing the towel, the last time rub cold cream or olive oil on the skin at once.

This will soften and loosen the blackheads. Wipe off the cream with a clean, dry piece of cloth.

Now scrub the legs with a bath-brush and soap and water. Get some powdered castile soap at the drug store or else grate a cake of it yourself on a nutmeg grater.

Moisten the brush with warm water, sprinkle it with the soap, then rub it briskly on the skin. Lather well all over the blackhead area.

Next rinse thoroughly, using a bath spray if possible. Blot dry. If the skin seems dry or sensitive, pat on a little food cream; otherwise, apply a soothing hand lotion, leaving it on overnight.

Keep the treatments up daily for at least two weeks.

Dark hairs on the legs may be removed, so backless and skimpy do they seem at first glance.

Today the sun-tan vogue is at its height. Fifth Avenue shops are taking a chance at the backless dresses. To their surprise they are selling at a great rate.

A stunning country club frock is made of tailored shantung, preferably in the new off-white shade. It is sleeveless, backless and trimmed with little pleats all around the skirt.

Another new conceit from Paris comes in the form of fish-net hosiery. They are hand-made, of a fine silk thread, woven so that each square is about a quarter of an inch in size.

They are cobwebby in texture and are shown in the window of a smart New York shop, with evening clothes. They are nude shade and when worn, are the merest excuse for a stocking.

The many friends of Mrs. J. A. Clark of the Experimental Station will regret to learn of her illness in the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

Household Hints

By Roberta Lee

Preventing Mold

When making preserves, if a few drops of glycerine are put around the edge of the jar before covering, it will prevent mold.

The Waffle Iron

Do not wash the waffle iron in water. Use a steel bristled brush to keep it clean.

Neuralgia

The eating of a good quantity of celery often proves to be an effective remedy for neuralgia.

bleached with peroxide and ammonia. Use six tablespoonfuls of peroxide to one-half tablespoonful of household ammonia.

Be sure to mix in an open dish, beating until the liquid is cloudy. Do not put these chemicals in a closed bottle to mix, since the ammonia liberates oxygen from the peroxide and might break the bottle, especially if you used too much of the ammonia by mistake.

Pat the bleach on the hair with a pad of clean cotton and allow it to dry. Repeat the treatment as required. When the hair is very dark and numerous they may be removed with a depilatory from time to time.

Of course, they will grow in again. Tomorrow — Beauty Questions Answered.

The College Women and Illusion

"I wish I could afford to send Betty to university," one woman remarked to a group of us over the teacups.

"It would be nice but why worry?" answered the most brilliant of the lot. "All I should ask is that she have enough early education to train her to read her newspaper intelligently."

"Just what do you mean?" said the puzzled mother.

"Exactly what I say. The average girl of today gets a fair education if she has brains enough to absorb it from the newspapers."

"Well, of all the piffle," replied the indignant mother.

"You have evidently overlooked a good opportunity yourself," merely laughed the other. "I am no salesman of newspaper space, but think a moment, every day the newest things for the home are featured before your eyes. They teach correct dress and fashion; they teach sanitation and where to buy the best and newest food; they tell about modern art, letters and music, finance, banking, prices and opportunities for thrift and investment."

"These things are nothing if you haven't brains enough to see their significance and use; they are everything if you do."
