THE PLACE FOR SPINSTERS

There is not a single British Dominion, properly so-called, in which the male population is not in the majority over the tender sex so that English spinsters have the freest choice if their sole desire is to find a husband. But the prospect of finding a husband is one thing; that of long domestic happiness, in which a man and a woman strive equally to earn prosperously and to rear a family in contentment and hope is another. They may not be inseparable, but they are not likely to be united unless both parties to a marriage in such circumstances know what they are about and fully realize their present prospects and future responsibilities. Some English girls would be as likely to succeed as a farmer's wife in Australia or Canada as a dairymaid from Devonshire would as a millinery saleswoman in Bond Street.

Get a ten cent box now. You're headachy! You have a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, your lips parched. No wonder you feel mean. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleansing up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are gone by morning with gentle, with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10 cent box will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet, and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, too because they never gripe or sicken.

Alexander Would Renounce Throne, But Will Be King

Heir of House of Karageorgevitch First Refused Throne of His Serbian Ancestors, But Finally Decides to Leave Paris and Princess

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Young Alexander of Serbia, still lingers in Paris while a royal crown awaits him at Belgrade. At the time of the death of his father, old King Peter, he was in the French capital ill, according to report with some mysterious disease which confined him to his bed and made it impossible for him to undertake the journey to attend the royal funeral.

Now that he has recovered from this illness and has seen fit to take the throne awaiting him, Premier Pastich, long his firm friend and chief adviser, has arrived in Paris to persuade him to come back to Belgrade. The old man pleaded three hours and then, according to the Parisians, Alexander announced that he preferred to stay in Paris and that he was going to ask Jugoslavians to make him an allowance and in consideration of this he would renounce the throne.

No one could honestly accuse Alexander of cowardice. He served with distinction in the last two Balkan wars, he led the Serbian army in the world war until it was overwhelmingly defeated by the greatly superior forces of the Austrian and Bulgarian armies, and then he assisted in guiding the shattered remnant of the Serbian army over the Albanian mountains to the Adriatic coast. He gained favor with his own people because of his fearlessness and they looked upon him as the one capable leader among all the representatives of their dynastic houses. They liked him because if now and then some radical or crank dropped a bomb near him, he went coolly on his way and even refused to have the miscreant punished.

Having Gay Time

But the two months of life in Paris have apparently softened him and turned him away from the traditional sturdiness of the house of Black George. The hand grenades which fell under his train at Sarajevo and the bombs which were not infrequently found around the royal Konak at Belgrade became most vigorous memories of the past and a dismal forecast of what the future might have. He saw his way beset with intrigues of rival claimants of the throne and the contentions of the Jugo-Slav states.

The power that is the greatest in holding Alexander in Paris perhaps is the young Bourbon princess whom he came to wed for state reasons—because Serbia wanted a queen. His suit apparently was successful; but the princess is as content not to be a Serbian queen as he is not to be a Serbian king. There is a suggestion in the report of this courtship of a royal romance which turned from a palace to a fringe embowered cottage on the rise of the French capital.

The latest news is that Alexander will shortly ascend his throne at Belgrade.

exactly the same binders on the market and we have them just as cheap as in America. Today the town of Hanzard has about fifty branches of American industries employing men, women and children which otherwise would be working in the United States, while without the high tariff we would not have the binders any cheaper than we have them today.

And when it is true of agricultural implements it is true of every other industry. The very same tariff that protects the manufacturers protects the farmers. There has come into Canada during the past year $700,000,000 worth of cold storage mutton, and if this quantity came in in the face of the duty on it, that would have come in had the duty been removed.

The tariff of the Liberal party does not guarantee anything to us, continued Mr. McKinnon. There is a gentleman to follow me (Mr. Sinclair) and I would like him to explain how it will. They are going to give us free foodstuffs, they will let in American goods free, and they will lose the revenue we are at present deriving from these goods. Where will they get their revenue? Will they put on direct taxes as the local Government is doing? I think you had better enquire about that.

Mr. J. E. Sinclair was the next speaker. He claimed that the Ross rifle, used during the early part of the war, was not the same rifle that introduced by the Liberals. He referred to the necessity of standardizing the Island railway industries would not be injured as they can manufacture as cheaply here as in the U. S. and the factories would stay here anyway. He believed the tariff should be read backwards and forwards, and that money paid through duty tax would go into the revenue and not into the pockets of manufacturers, as he claimed was the case under present conditions.

With regard to foodstuffs, he asked what harm would result if the duty was taken down. We have 8,000,000 people here as against 120,000,000 in the U. S. They are up to the point now where they cannot produce any surplus. They depend on importation and therefore would not be able to flood our markets. He believed that the distribution of foodstuffs would be held up because of the tariff, which enabled certain people to hold their commodities and place them on the market at their own leisure.

If the tariff on foodstuffs was reduced so that trade would flow freely from one country to another, then the true cost of the goods would be brought here. He went on to speak of railway matters, and of the necessity of keeping headquarters at Moncton or some other Maritime station. What is chiefly wrong with the railways in Canada today, he believed, is that of immigration.

Our vacant lands in the West are not being developed, is not being made for the increased railway mileage. He thought it was no use for one party to throw mud at the other on the railway question. The whole trouble was caused chiefly by the war. He claimed, however, that the Government should not have removed the railway expenditure from the control of Parliament, and also charged the Government with allowing the manufacturers to overrule them in regard to the Roumanian loan. He claimed that eleven members of the Conservative party and four Cabinet ministers were directors of the company that filed contracts for Roumania and were paid out of the Canadian Exchequer.

Mr. P. S. Brown, Labor candidate, took the platform next. He referred to the recent Conservative convention, where his nomination was defeated, and to the still more recent meeting in Charlottetown where he accepted the Labor nomination. He repudiated the Liberal and Conservative parties and declared his intention of letting them fight the issue out and of slipping in between them and gaining his seat. He guaranteed if elected that he would not be a voting machine and that he would stand for economy. He would endeavor to cut in two the sessional indemnities, which would, he thought, more than pay for standardizing the Island railway.

He believed that the problem of railway expenditures would best be met by cutting down the big salaries at the top. He understood that Mr. Hanna got $50,000 and that Mr. Sinclair, who had talked much about railway extravagance had himself voted for the appointment of the Railway Commission.

into parliament. Mr. Brown maintained his belief that he was right on this point. It is four years since, continued Mr. Brown, that you elected Sinclair and Nicholson. This is the first time you have seen Mr. Sinclair since you elected him. Now he is here asking you to elect him again. He did not believe this was the way to treat the electorate. "They are now going to allow the ladies to vote," continued Mr. Brown, "but look out you don't have to pay $3.00 poll tax next year." (Laughter) The Bell government is watching everyone over 21 years of age and they are going to put taxes on them too. (Laughter and groans.) You heard what they were going to do before they came into power. They were going to discharge a lot of men and goodness knows what (hear, hear) what have they done? That road act was something damnable (laughter.) In regard to the Murray Harbor line, Mr. Brown claimed that whatever credit is due for the work it is due to the late Alex. Martin.

British Reserve Fleet Must Be Reorganized

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The British reserve fleet is about to be reorganized in such a fashion that its "admirals will earn their money." As at present constituted, the reserve fleet consists of only a few light cruisers and destroyers and yet has one vice admiral and four rear admirals. Moreover, it is scattered among the home dockyard ports, at each of which there is already an admiral who is a naval commander-in-chief and an admiral superintendent of the dock yard, so that each port there are three officers of admiral's rank.

To correct that abuse in the future there will be only one admiral commanding the reserve fleet. The other admirals will be assigned to the active Atlantic fleet for training. They are to go through a war course, a course of weapon technique, a submarine and anti-submarine school, an air force school of co-operation with the navy, and finally three months' active duty with the Atlantic fleet. The three months will be divided among various portions of the fleet. A fortnight each with battle cruisers and light cruisers, a week with the rear admiral of destroyers, a week with the senior officer of submarines, a week on board a fleet aircraft carrier, and month on the fleet flagship.

Under the Paris agreement Canada is not due to share again in the indemnity payment until the settlement of many other claims, which were given priority. The conclusion of the new Franco-German agreement, however, creates an entirely new situation, and it is said to be altogether probable that Britain will follow the lead of France and allow future payments to be made through some other medium than gold. Before this can be done, the interests of Canada and the other Dominions must be consulted. Canada alone having a stake in the present reparation arrangement of some three hundred million dollars.

Letter Carrier No Dray Horse DENVER, Colo., Oct. 15.—Lester Coat, 21, took a job as letter carrier here, but did not calculate on being any dray horse. No sir, he considered "Real" letters all right for delivery, but when it came to advertising literature, catalogues and form letters he balked. Federal authorities found him feeding fire with 2,000 of this kind and arrested him. They also found 2,000 letters and parcel post packages in his room. He said the staff was more easily burned than curried.

GIVE THEM BAKER'S COCOA TO DRINK

The almost unceasing activity with which children work off their surplus energy makes good and nutritious food a continual necessity. Of all the food drinks Baker's Cocoa is the most perfect, supplying as it does much valuable material for the upbuilding of their growing bodies. Just as good for older people. It is delicious, too, of fine flavor and aroma.

CANADA IS AFFECTED

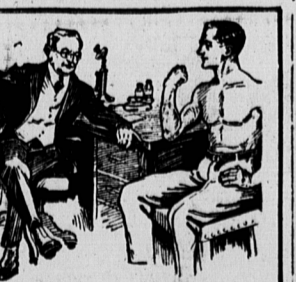

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The conclusion of the new agreement between France and Germany, whereby the latter country is to be allowed to make reparations in kind, instead of in gold, promises to alter the whole situation as it affects Canada's share of the German indemnity. The Dominion has within the past few months received one million pounds as its first and possibly its last, money payment from Germany. This was the sum owing to Canada because her troops formed part of the allied army of occupation on the Rhine after the Armistice, Germany being obliged by the terms of the armistice, to pay all costs of that army's upkeep. Expenditures under this head were a first charge on the reparation moneys and have been discharged.

Strength

Strength of muscle does not indicate strength of nerves. On this account many people who look healthy enough suffer from nervous troubles and cannot understand what is ailing them. Sleeplessness and irritability are among the early symptoms. Indigestion and tired feelings soon follow. Read this letter from an Ontario man: Mr. W. L. Gregory, Charles St. E., Ingersoll, Ont., writes: "I had been troubled for quite a while with indigestion. At times there would be a twitching of the nerves of my stomach, and I also found it difficult to get a good night's sleep. I am a moulder, and owing to the nature of my work my system became run-down. I took a course of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found great benefit from this medicine. They did me a great deal of good. I have not been bothered at all with indigestion since, and can sleep much better. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, as I think it splendid for anyone run-down and needing a tonic." ANIMAL POLICE

The following extract from Fabre's "The Story Book of the Field" gives a little insight into the many beneficent uses of the common field animals: "The bats deliver us from a host of enemies, and they are outlawed. The mole purges the ground for vermin; the hedgehog makes war on vipers; the owl and all night birds are clever rat hunters; the adder, the toad and the lizard feed on the plunderers of our crops." Thus nature supplies the husbandman with an efficient police force.

Our Buffaloes.

Owing to the increase in the buffalo herd at Wainwright, Alberta, 1,000 of these animals are to be slaughtered. A special building is being erected for the purpose. The buffalo meat will be sent to all points over the country for sale. A strict account is being kept of all heads and skins, which will probably be disposed of by the Canadian Dominion Government. The Wainwright reservation contains the last large herd of buffalo in the world, with about 3,000 animals.

BOURASSA TO RUN AS INDEPENDENT IN LABELLE CO.

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—Henri Bourassa will be an independent candidate in Labelle County, according to an announcement he made at a meeting in Paipaneauville this afternoon. He will oppose H. A. Fortin, who has been member for Labelle since 1917.
