POLICEMAN SHOT AT ROYAL MINT

The injured man was taken to the hospital where his condition tonight is precarious. The bullet has not yet been extracted.

BLOOD HOUNDS USED IN MOROCCO WAR

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Major Richardson, whose offer of one of his bloodhounds for use with the Spanish troops in Morocco was accepted by the Queen of Spain, has just returned to England after taking out the dog to the scene of operations and teaching the ambulance officers how to work on the field. Major Richardson's bloodhounds proved of great use to the Russian workers in Manchuria, when they worked with some dogs sent out by the German Emperor. They were found to be invaluable in discovering the missing and wounded. For the services rendered by the bloodhounds in that campaign Major Richardson was decorated by the Czar and Empress of Russia. When Major Richardson reached Melilla the Spaniards were practically besieged within it and fighting was proceeding each day. He took the bloodhound out of the firing line and gave the ambulance officers instructions how to utilize it. The dog, at night and saw a good deal of the fighting. It soon became very popular with the soldiers, who named it "Ferra de la Reina"—the Queen's Dog. Everyone took the greatest interest in "Ferra," who soon justified his character as one of the best trackers Major Richardson possessed. After the ground has been gone over by the search parties at the end of an engagement, the ambulance dogs are sent out to see if anyone has been overlooked. They work better at night than in the daytime, and have the additional advantage that they avoid the use of lanterns, which invariably draw the enemy's fire. "The English army," said Major Richardson, "is the only army which ignores the use of dogs. They are employed in the German, French, Austrian and other continental armies; and if the German army were mobilized tomorrow they could put four million men in the field within a fortnight and four thousand ambulance sentry dogs. The dogs used by the German police would also be immediately mobilized with those in the army. "The Moors understand the use of dogs in wartime. They have a cross between a deerhound and a mastiff. At night they would go down near the Spanish lines and put out their dogs to detect the enemy's sentries. When the dogs barked they were able to locate the sentries and fire on them. They also dressed up their dogs in their own turbans and chelabas, in which they would run up the mountains and draw the Spanish fire. Sometimes they would send the dogs into the camps, and the Spaniards would rush out and fire upon the dogs, and the Moors would fire on the Spaniards."

YOUNG TWILER TELLS HOW HE PITCHED GAME

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—Eddie Summers has written a story about the remarkable eighteen-inning game he pitched to a tie against Washington. Seven hits—only one hit in the last twelve innings—and one base on balls, and that intentional, is part of the young twirler's wonderful record. "My knee has been bothering me lately so I had been putting in my time between games at the Mt. Clemens baths. I came down Friday to pitch a game—which we were fortunate enough to win—against the Athletics. Friday morning Hughey Jennings called me again by long distance telephone. "How's the boy?" he said. "Arm feels pretty strong," I told him. "All right, hurry down," he said. "I want you to work today. I got a hunch you can trim these fellows today." That's just Jennings' way of patting a fellow on the back. It makes them willing to go the whole route and back for him every day if necessary. The boys played grand ball behind me and I went in with a feeling that we would win. I never lost this feeling up to the end. It helps a lot. I relied a good deal on my knuckle ball—also on my slow ball. Things broke pretty well or us, and I didn't worry when the game went into extra innings. At the end of the tenth, someone asked Jennings if he was going to relieve me in the box. I don't know whether Hughey knew I was listening or not. He's a wise old hand. In any case, he said: "Why, no—the boy is pitching great ball. He's going to win this game for us."

The Record of 20 Years Standing Smashed—Harvard and Cornell Meet.

Special to The Guardian. NEW YORK, November 7—Orville Wright and Wilbur Wright, the aviators, have received the cross of the Legion of honor from France.

STEAMER ADRATIC WAS AGROUND A FEW HOURS

NEW YORK, Nov 6—Passengers on the steamer Adratic of the White Star Line were detained at the harbor mouth for several hours early Thursday while the steamer was clearing herself from the grip of the sands at the entrance to Ambrose Channel. In this shoal she had driven her prow while attempting to make port on her trip here from Southampton via Cherbourg and Queenstown. The Adratic grounded before daylight and when it was seen that she was hard and fast though in no danger as the sea was calm, Capt Smith sent word by wireless to this city of his vessel's plight. It was thought that she might have to await the incoming tide which would not be at flood until afternoon but shortly before 3 o'clock the steamer managed to free herself and proceeded up the harbor to her dock. No excitement was occasioned on board by the grounding.

NORDICA FIGHTS FOR SHARE IN AUNT'S MILLION

BOSTON, Nov. 6—Mrs Lillian Nordica, the singer, is a witness with the rest of the claimants to the one million dollar estate of her aunt, Mrs Fannie F. Allen, of Malden, in a suit they have brought to break the will. The claimants are all nieces of the woman who left the property. They are Mrs Nordica, Mrs Annie Baldwin, of Boston; Imogene A Costello, of Los Angeles, and Iona A. Walker, of New York. The effort to upset the will is on the ground that at the time she made it, the testator was of unsound mind. In proof of this, a clause in the will itself will probably be cited in which the heirs who have received bequests were made to take an oath before a justice of the peace that they would never use any part of their legacy for religious purposes. Mrs Allen had no enemy for the nieces, but omitted them as beneficiaries because, in her opinion, they were already well provided for, and some of them rich. George F. Hall, a Malden lawyer, told of his summons to Mrs Allen's home to draw the will. He said that Mrs Allen seemed anxious to have secrecy in the case, and even compelled him to stuff the keyhole with putty.

That was a whole lot of encouragement. I pitched harder than ever then. I grew stronger, it seemed, every inning. There wasn't a minute when I thought they would score on us—not one minute when I was afraid I couldn't put the ball where I wanted to. I don't know when I had better control.

The one base I gave in the seventeenth to Donohue was intentional. I figured that Unglaub would be trying to steal third, and that I'd throw them wide and give Schmidt a chance to nab him. That trick won a game for us before. But Unglaub played too close to the base. The next man up, Collins, was easy. I didn't feel tired when Kerin called the game in the seventeenth. I felt as if I could pitch eighteen more innings. Of course that would have been impossible, but I felt that way. Minard's Liniment cures Garget in cows. CHICAGO MARKETS. ## REMARKABLE CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY

LONDON, Nov. 6—A most remarkable case of mistaken identity came to light today in connection with the Lady Crofton-Montague elopement, the chief factors in which drama said yesterday from New York on the Kron Prince Wilhelm. All London society, a couple of months ago, heard with shrugs and whisperings that the young and extremely pretty wife of a well known baronet had run away with another man. Another case for the divorce court, said the gossips, and the matter was dismissed as presenting no features of extraordinary moment. This, however, was far from being the case. There was one man who actually was not concerned in the affair, yet who began to have his supposed connection with it brought up against him at every turn. This was Lord Montague, of Beaulieu, M.P., for New Forest; Deputy Lieutenant of Hampshire, founder and editor of the Car, and one of the pioneers of automobilism and aeroplaning in England.

"I am glad to have the opportunity to deny that it is I who ran away with Lady Crofton, the wife of Sir Morgan George Crofton," said Lord Montague of Beaulieu today, to your correspondent. "You have got the wrong man," he went on. "The real individual is another Montague. I have been considerably annoyed by the questions of my friends concerning the matter. In fact, the whole business shows how the best of circumstantial evidence is always dangerous."

"It is quite a remarkable story, as you shall hear. The first I heard of it was on my return from Paris, a week or two ago. On my first visit to the House of Lords one of my friends came up to me saying rather reproachfully, 'My dear Montague, so glad to see you back again. But what about the lady?' I didn't understand, and looked blank, so he went on: 'Oh, we all know about it. Seymour Fortescue, one of the King's equerries, saw you at the station in Paris with a lady.'"

"After that," Lord Montague continued, "I heard a story from other quarters to the effect that I had run off with Crofton's wife. On inquiry I found it was another Montague who was the man. This is where the chain of their circumstances began. In the first place, the other Montague is known as John Montague to his friends, and so am I. "He has an estate about five miles from mine, it was known that I was friend of the Croftons. Then the other Montague is an ardent motorist. So am I, his chief car is painted green so is mine."

NEW RECORD IS MADE BY WIRELESS. SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 6—All wireless records have been broken. The steamer Korea has flashed a message to operators at the Farrington station and the Russian Hill station, this city, from a distance of 4,830 miles. ## EX-PRES. CASTRO ON WAR PATH

He is Unsuccessful in an Attempt to Overthrow the Government.

Special to The Guardian. NEW YORK, November 7—Cypriano Castro, ex-President of Venezuela, has been baffled in an attempt to recover the reins of government. Castro is sequestered in Spain. His conspiracy for an uprising to overthrow the government President Gomez was discovered by Venezuelan agents a fortnight ago. The conspirators now held in Venezuela prisons. Castro's plans were carefully laid and were of an extensive nature. Rifles, cannon, ammunition and other munitions of war had been hidden in advantageous places ready for instant use. These supplies with provisions for a good sized army have been obtained from unsuccessful promoters of revolutions in other South American countries.

TO ESTIMATE COST OF A P. E. I. TUNNEL

MONTREAL, Nov 6—Hon F. L. Hazard, Premier of Prince Edward Island, left for home today by the Maritime Express. Premier Hazard said that this morning he was both official and private. He added, however, that his negotiations with the Dominion Government were yet in a confidential stage.

"What are the prospects for a tunnel between Prince Edward Island and the mainland?" asked The Star. "The Dominion Government," replied Mr Hazard, "has promised to make a survey to determine the feasibility and cost of the work. That is the next step and we are now awaiting the result of that inquiry." "Do you think there would be sufficient trade to justify the tunnel?" "Oh, yes. The tunnel would have far-reaching advantages. We are all pressing for it on the Island, and I believe we should have it if it can be built at a reasonable cost. I am not one, however, who would say that we should have it if it would cost fifty or one hundred millions."

HOO KWORM DISEASE IN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, November 6.—The hookworm disease has been brought to San Francisco from Hawaii, and the hundreds and hundreds of cases of hitherto unexplained debility, laziness and supposed lack of moral initiative are now attributed to the inroads of the little parasite. Dr Herbert Gunn, who is directing a campaign of co-physicians against the disease, said yesterday: "I have treated more than one hundred cases of hookworm in this city. I recall at least one death due to it, a boy who died in the last hospital, two years ago. The disease has not been known to exist in California except in very rare instances until four years ago." Many soldiers of the Philippines and travellers and men from the Orient have returned afflicted with small vampires. The parasites in the country districts are usually acquired through the skin of the bare feet. Infected water and uncooked vegetables also spread the disease.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass, November 6—The famous Halley's Comet will pass over the sun's face May 18th next, if the calculations made by Rev Father G. M. Searle, C. S. P., and sent to the Harvard college observatory, here are correct. ## POSSIBLE CLEW TO MISS KINRADE'S MURDERER

TORONTO, Nov. 6—In a despatch to Hamilton from Norfolk, Va., it is stated that the Pinkerton detective who was engaged by the Ontario government to work there in the Kinrade case, has ascertained through Jimmie Baum, the name of the man who he stated passed flowers to Florence Kinrade when she was acting there. In his evidence Baum stated that when these flowers were passed to Miss Kinrade over the footlights she seemed alarmed, and he gave it as his opinion that the police would have the murderer of Ethel Kinrade when they got this man. The man is said to be a government employe in western Ontario.

DR. J. H. ELLIOTT'S WORK YESTERDAY

Yesterday was a great day in the city in connection with the King's Business Evangelistic Mission in which religious interest largely centered. Dr Elliott and Mr Natzger, the singer, as well as Mr Leggett, accompanist, had a strenuous day of service. Every meeting was largely attended and the seating capacity in some cases proved inadequate to accommodate the audiences that thronged to hear. At ten o'clock Dr Elliott addressed the boys' meeting in the Y. M. C. A. and Mr Natzger sang. It was a most inspiring and impressive hour. Evangelistic and singer are both masters in the art of appealing to young manhood. As Dr Elliott spoke in simple, direct and forceful terms these bright young lads facing life with all its possibilities were inspired as never before to be loyal subjects and worthy ambassadors of King Jesus and the influence of his words was deeply felt by all. In Zion church, at the eleven o'clock service, Dr Elliott assisted the pastor and delivered a grand discourse. His theme was the twenty-third psalm which he happily styled "The Brook in the Pasture." It was a beautiful interpretation of this sweet song of the heart. This Psalm, said Dr Elliott, sets forth the perfect care of the shepherd for his sheep. First The Lord as the Good Shepherd gives absolute confidence or assurance. He is "My" personal shepherd and supplies every want of the soul. Second, He gives food and rest. The pastures of His word never run dry. The soul can never find rest and satisfaction on the bare hillsides of worldliness and sin. Third He restores and leads. He brings the wandering ones back to closer fellowship with Him and leads in "ways of righteousness" for His name's sake. Fourth, He protects in time of trial. He promises victory and assures of abiding love. His sympathy with the lost and His desire and ability to save are infinite. He gave His life to redeem us from sin and bring us safely to His fold. He bids us likewise go forth and seek and find and win lost souls. The whole discourse was a strong and impressive presentation of God's shepherd care of His people and the message will linger long in the hearts of those who heard it.

A GERMAN MAKES SERIOUS CHARGE

He Says of Britain Having Had Submarines Ready to Sink German Ships.

Special to The Guardian. BERLIN, November 7—Former Chancellor of Legations Von Rath publishes a charge that Britain was involved in a machination against Germany at the time of the Dogger Bank affair in October 1904. It will be remembered that the Russian Baltic squadron fired on a gamecock trawling fleet under the delusion that the fishing vessel were Japanese torpedo boats. Von Rath now accuses Britain of having stationed warships off Vigo and six submarines off Heligoland preparatory to the sinking of German warships in the event of Germany taking sides with Russia in the expected war. Von Rath declares the commanders of the British vessels had orders from Downing St to watch the Germans and blow them into the air in the event of any suspicious movements. Papers comment on the charges from various viewpoints.

RAILROAD CLERKS GOING ON STRIKE

NEW HAVEN, Conn, Nov 6—National Organizer J. J. Forester announced last night that of the votes cast by the Union clerks in the Freight and Yard Department of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, 99 per cent were in favour of a strike. A meeting will be held today at which the time for calling the strike will be determined. The officials of the road refuse to make any statement, other than to say that they are prepared to meet any exigencies that may arise. Among the demands of the clerks, which General Manager Higginson has refused to grant, is a minimum wage of $2 a day and pay for overtime.

SETH LOW MAY GO TO COURT OF ST JAMES

NEW YORK, November 6—Seth Low, former mayor of New York city, and ex-president of Columbia University, would not discuss the report emanating from London that he had been selected to succeed Whitehead Reid as ambassador to the court of St James. "I know nothing about it," said Mr Low.

In the afternoon Dr Elliott addressed a meeting of women only in the First Methodist church. "The marks of a great woman" was his subject. With rapt attention the large congregation of women listened to his splendid appeal and every one in the audience came away with a higher ideal for life and service and the ardent desire to devote her womanly gifts more fully for the King and the Kingdom. Mr Natzger sang by request, "The Holy City" and every heart was thrilled by his splendid rendition of that favorite song. But the great mass meeting at eight o'clock in the First Methodist Church was the crowning service of the day. Dr Elliott's invariable rule is to interfere as little as possible with the regular church services. Accordingly every congregation worshipped in its own church morning and evening, and later all gathered in the First Methodist Church. The Union Choir numbered nearly one hundred voices and conducted a service of song lasting fifteen minutes, after which Dr Elliott rose and addressed the assembly. The learned and eloquent evangelist announced his theme to be "An Old Love Story" and his text, John 1:16—"God So Loved the World That He Gave His Only Begotten Son That Whosoever Believeth in Him Should Perish. But Have Everlasting Life." He said this one verse was redolent with the sweetness of the skies. It breathes the atmosphere of the "Gospel of Love." It sets forth the first love of God—the invitation of God, and the love, the Promise of God. As Dr Elliott gave illustration after illustration the truth was borne home to hungry hearts with telling power, and none that listened failed to feel the power of God in that solemn hour. Mr Natzger's singing charmed one and all, and as he sang "The old, old Story is True," many caught a new vision of Christ and his redeeming love. A large gathering of worshippers has seldom, is ever, been seen together in this city, and the success of the King's Business Evangelistic Mission for the weeks to come was foretold last evening in the sincerity and the whole religious tone of the inspiring service.
