"The Navy Comes Through" At Capitol S'side

—Vital and convincing in its suspensful portrayal of the men who fight the U-boats, "The Navy Comes Through" opened yesterday with Pat O'Brien and George Murphy heading its notable cast and offering well-rounded entertainment to screen patrons.

The basic plot deals with the exploits of an eleven-man Navy gun crew aboard a munitions-loaded freighter from Brooklyn. O'Brien is the salty C.P.O. in charge of the group; Murphy, a seaman, is a former naval officer who blames O'Brien's testimony at a court martial for having driven him from the service. The fact that he is in love with O'Brien's sister is an additional complication and source of antagonism between the two men as the vessel starts on its way to Ireland.

Once under way, the ship is a beehive of action. An inconclusive battle with a U-boat and an aerial attack had to the capture of a Nazi mother-boat for submarines, while the personal feud between the two principals grows to a stirring climax played against a grimly realistic background.

Both O'Brien and Murphy deliver brilliant performances in roles for which they are ideally suited.

Well-Known S'side Citizen Dies At 81

Mr. J. S. Perry, one of the most highly respected and well known citizens of Summerside passed away at his home on Friday, Nov. 5th. He was 81 years old.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sylvans Perry and was born in Tignish where he spent his boyhood and received his early education. After moving to Summerside he was for some years a valued member of the staff of R. T. Holman Ltd. Later on, with the experience he gained while on the road as a traveller and as salesman with Holmans Ltd., he went into business for himself which he successfully conducted up to a few years ago when he retired from active life. In spite of advancing years he still retained an active interest in the matters concerning the welfare of the community and was a member of the Board of Old Age Pensions. For many years he was financial secretary of the Knights of Columbus and at one time filled the position of Grand Knight of the Summerside Council with honor to the Council.

During his long and useful life he made a host of friends who will remember him as a fine gentleman and a good neighbor. To his surviving widow formerly Miss Elizabeth Baker and to his daughter, Audrienne, at present in the U.S.A. the sympathy of the entire community is extended.

The funeral will take place from his late residence on Beaver street on Monday morning.—S.

Justice Gordon Speaks At S'side

Mr. Justice P.H. Gordon, chairman of the executive committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society addressed a public meeting in St. Mary's Hall, Summerside, last evening. Mr. Justice Gordon spoke on his recent trip to England on an inspection of the work the Canadian Red Cross Society is doing there and he paid tribute to those in charge of the organization over there. He described the places he visited and the tragedy he saw, and the efforts being made to alleviate it.

The Junior Red Cross Society is supporting 14 hospitals and nurseries for children under five who are orphans as a result of bombing.

The speaker emphasized that great as our efforts now are there must be no slackening after the war, but that we must continue for at least five years after as there will be great need. Concluding he said that the most outstanding thing he saw over there was the indomitable courage of the British people. "These are the people who are going to meet the might of Germany with their bare hands."

Mr. John E. Campbell, President of the Prince County Branch of the Red Cross Society was chairman of the evening. Dr. W J P. MacMillan, President of the Provincial Red Cross also spoke and made a strong plea for more civilian blood donors. He also announced the awarding of certificates of merit of the chairman for Prince County in the 1943 Red Cross drive, Mr. P.G. Clark and to the chairman of the Town of Summerside, W. A. Currie. Career Of Distinguished P.E.Island Educationist

Following are further details of the career of Sir Robert Falconer, noted Prince Edward Island educationist, whose death was reported in yesterday's issue:

Distinguished student of international affairs, religion and the classics, Sir Robert Falconer by his able administration as president for 25 years raised the University of Toronto to an eminent position among the universities of North America.

Previously principal of Pinehill College, Halifax, where he was lecturer in New Testament Greek, Prof. Falconer was appointed president of the University of Toronto in 1907. He found heavy problems of finance and organization in his new post. The stability and prestige of the institution today are in no small measure due to his firm yet tactful presidency.

The application of the principle of federating religious colleges within the provincial university began in 1881 with the affiliation of St. Michael's College. Federation followed in 1890 along with Knox and Wycliffe Colleges. Victoria College federated in 1892 and Trinity College in 1904.

The consolidation of the federated colleges devolved upon President Falconer, and in their development he did his greatest executive work. His judgement, his ability to avoid catering to popular notions, and his far reaching sympathy, from the first established him confidently in the minds of all concerned.

While Sir Robert's career was in Canada his talents were widely recognized outside the Dominion. Sir Wilfred Laurier once said that the Canadian parliament had not produced Sir Robert Falconer's superior as an orator. He has been in much demand as a speaker not only in Canada and the United States but also in Great Britain. In 1925 he delivered the Sir George Watson series of lectures of American history in the universities of Great Britain.

Born at Charlottetown, P. E. I., Feb. 10, 1867, the year of Confederation, Sir Robert was the son of Rev. Alexander Falconer, D. D., a Presbyterian minister. His father was given a clerical appointment in Trinidad, British West Indies, and there the future university president spent his childhood. Young Robert received his early education at the Queen's Royal School, Trinidad, and in 1885 went to Europe as Gilchrist Scholar for the West Indies. He studied at the University of Edinburgh, and at Leipzig, Berlin and Marlburg, subsequently entering the ministry of the Presbyterian Church.

In 1892 he was appointed lecturer in New Testament Greek at Pinehill College, Halifax, becoming professor in 1895 and principal in 1904. Knighted in 1917 Sir Robert's honors grew to include K. C. M. G. M. A.; D Litt; D. D. LL D.; D L. L. and F. R. S. C. He married on May 12, 1897, Sophie Gandier, daughter of Rev. J. Gandier of Newburgh, Ont., and sister of Rev. Dr. Alfred Gandier, principal of Knox College, Toronto, and later of Emmanuel Theological College, Toronto. They had two sons, Dr. J. Gilbert Falconer and Robert D. Falconer.

Active After Retirement

When in 1932 Sir Robert Falconer resigned the presidency of the University of Toronto to be followed by Dr. H. J. Cody, the staff alumni and students paid tribute to Sir Robert's quarter century of leadership at several distinguished gatherings. Dr. G. H. Locke, representing the graduates, said: "He has been president during a changing world when, with the advance of applied science and a vast increase in wealth and population, the age has taken on a somewhat materialistic tone for there has been no corresponding advance in spiritual life. His stand has been for humanism and the development of the spiritual."

After his retirement Sir Robert led an active life. His chief interests were theological studies on the New Testament, international affairs and the Falconer lectureship. A fund raised by friends of the president emeritus founded the lectureship in 1938 to bring a world figure to the university every few years to lecture on international affairs. Earl Baldwin delivered the first series in 1939.

Sir Robert wrote many articles on New Testament, educational and public topics in English and American reviews and encyclopaedias. His books include "The German Tragedy and Its Meaning for Canada", "Idealism in National Character" and "Citizenship in an Enlarging World".

Sir Robert played a prominent part in the union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregationalist denominations in the United Church of Canada, and was one of the delegation which addressed the Canadian parliament in connection with the passing of the Church Union Act. For a number of years he was president of the Lord's Day Alliance and also of the Upper Canada Bible Society.

Besides being a successful administrator Sir Robert Falconer was known as a great scholar. His learning, while based on the classics, had an ever widening scope which enabled him to deal effectively with newer and more practical branches of knowledge which new facilities and courses brought to the university. He kept pace with such new departments as Forestry, Social Service, Ceramics and Dietetics. As a classical authority he enjoyed an enviable reputation.

Sir Roberts widow and two sons, Dr. J. Gilbert Falconer and Robert D. Falconer, survive, also a brother, Rev. J. W. Falconer, Pinehill College, Halifax, and a sister Jean, in Nova Scotia.

Canadian Army Wants Men Not More Than 38

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 — (CP) —Canada's young man's army whose newest divisional commander is only 39 years old, today announced it has turned its back on new recruits who have passed their 38th birthday.

Under a new order the enlistment of men between that age and 45, except in special circumstances, will be discontinued. At the same time, it was learned, the compulsory call up of men past their 38th birthday and up to 40, previously authorized, will be stopped.

The order says acceptance of volunteers for active service "will be restricted to those who have passed their 18th but not their 38th birthday, and who measure up to a physical standard as 'pulhems 2222222'"

An army spokesman said medical officers declined to express that rating in terms of the more generally used "A", "B", and "C" categories but that it came obviously "below 'A.'"

The new order is understood to be based on the army's changing requirements for men and on recent experience with the recruitment of older men following extension of the compulsory call-up of single men to the age of 40.

From the start of the war the top limit for enlistment, except in the Veterans' Guard and under special circumstances, has been up to a man's 45th birthday. The compulsory call up, however, started with calls to those in the age groups 21 to 24 and single as of July 15, 1940. It was progressively extended upward and downward until it applied to all single men between 19 and 40 and married men between 19 and 30.

The new army order on age limits became public only a few hours after the announcement of promotion of Brig. Christopher Vokes, 39, of Kingston, Ont., to rank of Major General and to command a division, presumably the 1st Division in Italy. At the same time it was announced the veteran 40 year old Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds who led the 1st through Sicily and up from the toe of Italy has been shifted to command an armored division.

The enlistment age announcement, it was said here, will not affect the status of older men in the army already. Those who are required for the duties they are performing will remain. Those who by reason of age or physical condition can, with advantage, be replaced by younger and fitter men will be discharged to civilian life.

The exceptions to the new rule are men beween 38 and 45 who are required in the army because of special trade or other qualifications and are considered physically fit for the special duties for which they may be enlisted; and youths between 17 and 18 who have completed grade VIII in school, pass the army intelligence test with a score of 140 or better, and are potential trades trainees.

Cattle Club Competition Held Yesterday

The Interprovincial Junior Boy's & Girl's Club Competition was held yesterday in Charlottetown, there being four club teams participating in the contest.

After the teams had assembled, they were taken to Falconwood Farm by the federal and provincial Department of Agriculture officials where they conducted a judging class, consisting of four Holstein cows. After completing their examinations they proceeded to the farm of A. McRae & Sons, Charlottetown, R.R. 6. There they judged a class of mature Ayrshire cows.

After lunch the boys gave their reasons for the placing of the two groups of cattle. An oral examination was conducted, the test being set by W.R Shaw, Deputy Minister, and conducted by J.W. Reid and Stewart Wright of the Provincial Department, assisted by L.W. Roper of the federal livestock & poultry services.

When the scores were completed it was found that Glydon Maund and Sterling Yeo, of the Golden Guernsey Club Brackley, were the successful winners of the contest, making a total of 477 out of a possible 600. These boys will proceed to Toronto, to participate in the National Boys' & Girls' Judging Contest, which will take place during the last week of November.

At present there are between 40,000 and 45,000 Junior Club Workers throughout Canada, representing various livestock and poultry divisions, together with field crop, garden and domestic science workers.

The trip to Toronto is sponsored by the management of the Canadian National Railways in cooperation with the Canadian Pacific Railways and various breed organizations, Department of Agriculture, and manufacturers throughout Canada.

Dr. J. Gilbert Falconer and Robert D. Falconer, survive, also a brother, Rev. J. W. Falconer, Pinehill College, Halifax, and a sister Jean, in Nova Scotia.

Reds Surge Ahead In Kiev Sector

LONDON, Nov. 5—(AP) — Soviet forces swarmed down from the north into the northern and western suburbs of Kiev to outflank that historic Cathedral city and surround it on three sides in a major new Russian drive that broke through two German defence lines, Moscow announced tonight.

Entrenched for more than a month on a Dnieper River Island a few hundred yards from the eastern cliffs of Kiev, the Russians suddenly pounced down on the city from their bridgehead in the north and in a 16-mile advance in 24 hours broke the German defence lines one after the other.

De Marigny's Private Life Is Laid Bare

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 5 — (AP) — The questions of Attorney General Eric Hallinan laid bare Alfred De Marigny's private life today before the Bahamas Supreme Court Jury which is trying him for the murder of Sir Harry Oakes, his wealthy father-in-law.

Hallinan subjected the defendant to a long cross-examination regarding his testimony that he was asleep at home the night the Canadian mining millionaire was struck on the head and set afire.

Even as he told intimate details of his past, De Marigny remained calm and sure of himself, his temper under control.

The husband of Oakes' eldest daughter Nancy managed to parry with some thrusts of his own, while every spectator who could squeeze into the tiny courtroom listened to the heated exchanges.

Outside the courthouse police halted the sale of soap boxes offered at two shillings (50 cents) apiece for use as seats inside, and officers held back a crowd. Chief Justice Oscar Bedford Daly barred camp chairs from the courtroom, and permitted inside only those who could be seated.

Police frowned on the practice but some places were sold for as much as £1 each.

Hallinan questioned De Marigny at length about his financial transactions with his second wife, Ruth Fahnestock De Marigny, from whom he was divorced before he married Nancy.

He brought out that De Marigny had received various sums from her, and that some of the money was spent for "non business" purposes. One of the items in a financial statement placed in evidence was a £10,000 (about $43,000) "separation agreement."

De Marigny admitted writing a letter to banker John H. Anderson saying he had no cash, when actually he had a £1,500 bank balance. He said he did so on Anderson's advice in seeking a property settlement with Ruth. Anderson previously has testified that De Marigny asked him to try to forestall a threatened $125,000 lawsuit by Ruth.

5TH ARMY

Nazi troops had evacuated Venafro.)

It appeared that Nazi evacuation of Venafro was likely because the Germans are in position to be caught there as only one medium road to the rear is still open.

The main highway northeast was blocked as a result of the capture of Isernia yesterday by British and Canadian mountain fighters. These troops have pushed on north from the inland communication centre to threaten a main lateral highway extending from the Apennines to Vasto on the Adriatic and passing eight miles north of Isernia.

In the centre of the line, American units of the 5th Army crossed the upper Volturno in front of Venafro and captured all high ground dominating the upper valley. Other forces occupied San Capito, three miles south of Isernia, and Carpinone, six miles east of Isernia.

San Salvo, near the mouth of the Trigno, was taken yesterday by the 8th Army after days of savage fighting in which numerous Nazi tank led counter attacks were repulsed. The final charge that carried the heavily defended town was aided by two British destroyers that stood off and blasted the Nazis from their entrenchments.

(The German High Command broadcast from Berlin that an Allied force had attempted to make a landing from the sea in the Pescara area, 40 miles up the Adriatic coast from the 8th Army's present position and well north of Rome. There was no Allied confirmation of such a leap frog tactic.)
