MUNITIONS OUTPUT LARGER

Nearly 10,000 workshops in Great Britain are now producing munitions of war, says the London Times. "Of these 5,000 are establishments controlled by the Ministry of Munitions and 2,500 are national factories. The output of material of all kinds is on an immense scale, but the limit has not been reached.

The erection of four new national factories, at a cost of over $10,000,000, has just been sanctioned, and extensions are being carried out in many areas. Existing workshops are being enlarged; a new factory is being built for the readaptation of old boxes and packing cases from the battlefields; aircraft and instructional factories are being established, and almost every week there are demands for other varieties of building subsidiary to the production of munition."

LONDON, June 16—Germany is about to withdraw the bulk of her troops now in Russia for service on the Western front, according to a statement in Maxim Gorky's newspaper, the Petrograd Novaya Zhizn, quoted by the Daily News correspondent in Stockholm.

The Novaya Zhizn claims to give the text of a despatch sent by General Falkenhayn, former chief of the German general staff, which it says was intercepted, in which he says General Falkenhayn says the battalions on the Western front are critical and decisive, but in order to ensure victory and the end of the war the concentration of enormous forces will be necessary.

"In view of the fact that our troops on the Russian and Ukraine fronts have attained their objects," the despatch continues, "we are now reorganizing, the Emperor has instructed the general staff to take measures for the transportation to France of the majority of the German forces in White Russia, Ukraine and Great Russia, leaving there only small detachments necessary to maintain order."

The transportation, according to the quoted message, was to be effected within seven days.

SPORTS IN WAR TIME

A new event is being added to the list of athletic contests participated in at college track meets. It is grenade-throwing. Dummy grenades have been placed on the market which are exact duplicates in weight and appearance of the deadly hand missiles employed by our men in the trenches. In recognition of the fact that correct throwing may be something more vital than a mere accomplishment for our young men, college coaches are giving it a place along with shot-putting and hammer throwing, indicating that even our sports are being affected by the world war.—Popular Mechanics.

WOMAN COOLEST PERSON WHEN ASCANIA STRUCK

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 18.—Passengers and crew of the wrecked steamer Ascania arrived here this morning on a patrol vessel. On board the Ascania were 191 in the crew, of whom only one was a woman and eight passengers, three of whom were Marconi operators, en route to the Pacific coast, two returned soldiers and one a priest. The ship will be a total loss, according to members of the crew, it having commenced to break up yesterday. When they left the Ascania she was submerged at high water and there was about four feet showing at low water they declared. The vessel struck the reef at Rose Blanche, Cains Island, Nfld., at 10.50 p.m. on the 13th, during a heavy fog. Fifty men volunteered to remain on board, but they were forced to leave Friday. A moving picture man was on hand during the departure of the crew.

Miss Batley, the stewardess, the crew stated, was the coolest person on board, and by her example caused all to keep their heads.

WORLD IN SIGHT OF REAL PEACE WHEN AMERICANS CROSS

LONDON, June 11—What the American forces have accomplished in France during the first eleven months of their participation in the war is described in an authorized despatch from a correspondent of the Times. The Americans, the writer says, are rapidly completing the longest and greatest scheme of communication ever used in warfare.

"After a fortnight of solid travel," he continues, "I am convinced that what the Americans have accomplished will rank in history as one of the greatest achievements of the war. For instance, out of the waste lands adjacent to an old French port they have constructed a splendid line of modern docks, where ships now arrive daily, discharging men, war material, cars and machinery. A huge new warehouse system at this point is nearing completion, in addition to motor parks, cold storage plants and railway yards with tracks aggregating 200 miles in length. In the car assembling shops steel cars are being put together at the rate of a complete train each day.

"Work is proceeding rapidly on a new 20,000-bed hospital, the largest yet to be constructed. There are also an immense artillery camp and a remount camp, where I saw several thousand horses.

"These port schemes are being so well worked out that they are capable of almost unlimited expansion, which will be most valuable in pooling the Allied effort, for the American base ports may easily become the main reserve centres for distributing supplies to rail heads everywhere on the front. The conditions were the same along the hundreds of miles of American communications I visited."

In an accompanying editorial the Times says: "The German knows his doom is drawing near. He is well aware of what the intervention of America means for him. When American preparations in France are complete the superiority of numbers, the enemy's only advantage in the field, will be gone and the world will be in sight of a real peace."

BELGIUM.

In Belgium once the flowers bloomed. And orchard trees the air peeped among the flowers the children played. And by them shaggy puppies strayed.

The grass grew, birds sang in the trees. The fields were swarmed with busy bees. Small boys beside the brooklets fished. To get a fish was all they wished.

The parents tolled from break of day. Till when the sun shone his last ray. Then gathered round the fireside bright. And told of Belgium and her might.

But now the houses shattered lay. And homeless, helpless children stray. They're parted from their parents dear. And overcome with grief and fear.

The flowers that once grew by the way. Now trampled and crushed and broken lay. The fields are no more green but red. And covered o'er with Belgium's dead.

Oh Kaiser, and Oh German Bosche! How can you from your vile hands wash Sad Belgium's blood stain? You are cowards.

The murder is not worth the cost. —Dorothy Doull, (age 11) New Dominion.

LONDON PAPERS COMMENT ON SUBMARINES' WORK ON THIS SIDE

May Cause Anxiety, But it Will Not Radically Affect the Situation at Sea; A Matter Not Calling for Alarm

LONDON, June 8.—British admiralty officials have been expecting for some time that German submarine commerce raiders would appear on the American coast. In speaking of the possibility of this development they usually expressed entire confidence that the American naval forces would be able to deal adequately with the problem, and that the venture would not prove profitable to the Germans on the final balance sheet.

It was even predicted that no single event would be likely to so completely rouse the spirit of determination to win the war among the American public as the appearance of the war on their own doorstep.

The increasing radius of submarine activity has been repeatedly noted recently and was the subject of considerable comment a few days ago, when the steamer President Lincoln was sunk. It is possible that the submarine which sank the President Lincoln was on the way to the American coast at the time.

The discussion of so-called submarine cruisers has occupied considerable space during the past three days in the British press, owing to the prominence given them by Admiral Marston at Milford Haven, former first sea lord. In a speech at Cambridge Saturday he predicted further development of the submarine warfare in the direction of larger submarines with much greater cruising radius.

"In the construction of the larger types of submarine cruisers the progress will not be confined by any means to the enemy navy," said the marquis. "We shall keep pace. Unsinkable or submersible merchant vessels or valuable cargoes appear to be inevitable for the future, notwithstanding the increased cost and the decreased cargo space."

The morning newspapers give the news of the submarine operations in America waters prominence second only to the operations on the western front and comment on it was a matter not calling for alarm. The Daily Chronicle says it is a challenge which the people of the United States will not take lying down. "The submarine raid may cause anxiety," says the Daily Mail, "but it will not radically affect the situation at sea. The Daily Graphic sees in the fact that the U-boats are taking the hazard of operating such a distance from their bases a good omen of the seriousness of Germany's position." THE DUTY OF HOPE The past month has been the most anxious we have ever known, but when man's heart is suffering he lives by hope. Hope is now a duty. Do we really believe in our cause? Our men at the front do. Never a disheartening word from them. We also must keep constantly before us the good reasons we have for confidence.
