Izzy Einstein Dies, Noted Dry Sleuth

WAS A MASTER IN DISGUISE AND WON FAME BY COLORFUL METHODS—ALWAYS UNARMED

Isidore Einstein, whom Supreme Court Justice William Howard Taft once called "the only prohibition agent of prudence and caution," has just died at the Manhattan General Hospital following the amputation of his right leg. He was 57 years old. Mr. Einstein was born in Austria on Aug. 8, 1880, and came here at the age of 15. A few years later he became an American citizen and in 1908 married Miss Esther Sattler of this city. Besides his widow he is survived by his sons, Joseph, Charles, Edward, and Albert. He was a member of the Grand Street Boys and belonged to the Emanu-El Masonic Lodge. He made his home at 167 Ridge Street.

Only One Star: Always Fresh

In the days of the prohibition era when New York State enforced the Volstead Act, a smart, shrewd man, smoking a huge cigar, leaned over the bar.

"Have you heard the latest story?" he whispered to the aproned bartender.

"No," said the bartender, "go ahead."

"You're pinched," said the short, fat man.

He was Isidore Einstein, Prohibition Agent No. 1, who became known to thousands whose establishments he raided and to the boys who ran the streets about the raids.

He was Izzy to them, and he established his fame on the front pages of the world press.

It was not only success that brought him fame as a dry sleuth. It was his tactics and his skill or what he called the "Einstein theory of Rum Snopping." And it was because of this theory, which he transformed into practice, that, within eight years, 4,932 (to give the exact number) bartenders, bootleggers and speakeasy proprietors expected an amusing story from Izzy and landed in jail instead.

He was at it from 1920 through 1928. He never carried a revolver. Like a character out of Gilbert and Sullivan, he provided daily comic relief for prohibition enforcement.

There was bribery, hijacking, shooting in those days, and the then newly invented ride. But Izzy would simply whisper in his victim's ear and take him to headquarters in a taxicab. There is even the story of the bartender who heard Izzy's whisper—and fainted.

New Disguise Every Day

Izzy was ingenious. He had a different disguise for every day. He would play street car conductor or Polish laborer, German immigrant or fiddler, granger, farmer, fisherman, or ice man. Once he showed up as an opera singer and took Chicago's speakeasies by surprise. So nicely did he play the trick that he was a washed afterward that no offer from grand opera was forthcoming.

He would disguise ten fellow-agents as a team and smear their faces with mud. He would woo the "team" into a speakeasy near one of New York's parks that featured a band. "Season's over, we can drink," Izzy shouted. Whereupon the drinks came and another bartender heard "the latest story."

Izzy unloaded bananas from ships and raided the liquor supply along the waterfront. He wore plus fours and a sweater on a college campus until bootlegging on the campus ceased. He dressed as a white-wing and raided seventy-one New York speakeasies on a Sunday just to show hurchgoers that he was on the job.

He worked with Moe Smith, and the team became known as "Izzy and Moe." Each received $3,800 a year from the government. Moe left the service at the end of 1925. But Izzy, being fluent in Yiddish, kept his job several years longer, investigating rabbinical wine scandals. Then repeal came and he, too, quit. He joined his former partner and became an agent for the New York Life Insurance Company. Both carried cards: "Formerly with U. S. Govt. 'Prohibition.' Izzy and Moe."

Sold Insurance to Ex-prisoners

In their new field they belonged to the 400 Club and associated with well-paid business men and athletes. They even sold insurance to men they had arrested. "Many of the men I pinched are now friends of mine," Izzy used to say. And avoiding a discussion of Mr. Roosevelt's and Mr. Farley's policies on repeal, he would add: "And I'd probably have stayed in the work if they let me really loose."

Of course, he didn't like the situation after the Eighteenth Amendment was repealed. He was a prohibitionist though. He simply didn't like liquor. But he objected to those who didn't know what they were drinking.

"A lot of people don't know the difference between ginger pop and dynamite," he said.

In 1922 he wrote his memoirs, "Prohibition Agent No. 1." He told "how it's done." He told how he confiscated a violin "box" that was used as a liquor cache, and then used the case to disguise himself as a musician in another raid. He told, too, how he met his famous namesake, Professor Albert Einstein, when the physicist first came to America. He asked the Professor what his business was. "I discover stars in the sky."

Taste that enchants you!

PANETELAS 10¢
PERFECTOS 10¢
LILIES 15¢

Punch CIGAR

said Professor Einstein. "I'm a discoverer, too," said Izzy, "only I discover in the basements."

But Big Moe Smith, Izzy's partner on the prohibition force, was not mentioned. Izzy's excuse for the omission was:

"Maybe Moe will write a book. So why should I write about him?"

In 1935 there was a ban-up party in honor of the marriage of Izzy's son, Joseph, and of Izzy's own thirtieth wedding anniversary. Beverages were served.

"If you want my opinion," said Izzy, "the quality you get these days isn't so hot. The bootleggers sell better stuff in prohibition days."

In May, 1930, the dry agent extraordinary was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Krynkaer Young Men's Benevolent Society at the Central Plaza on Second Avenue. Among the 1,000 persons present were many prominent in the city's official and political circles. Izzy defended his native city against the charge that it was the wettest in the nation.

"New York is as dry as any other city in the United States," he claimed. "Why, I didn't even see any liquor at this dinner."

The Agony Of Eczema

Eczema, or salt rheum, is one of the most torturing of itching skin diseases. The principal cause is bad blood, aided by inactive skin and inflammation. It manifests itself in small, round pimples or blisters which later on break and form crusts or scales, and the intense burning, itching and smarting are almost unbearable.

To eradicate eczema from the system it is necessary to give the blood a thorough cleansing, and for this purpose we would highly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mrs. JOSEPH R. BERGER, Millbank, Ont., writes:—"Several months ago I was troubled with eczema on my hands. I could not help with the milking my hands were so sore and itching, and could hardly put them in water."

After I had taken two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I found my hands were healing very quickly. I have never found a remedy to compare with B.B.B. for purifying the blood."

ANNUAL MEETING CRAPAUD CREAMERY COMPANY

The annual meeting of the Crapaud Creamery Company was held in the Crapaud Hall, February 15, 1938. There was a good attendance of both shareholders and patrons, and a keen interest was shown in all the affairs of the Company.

The president, Mr. A. R. Toombs, was in the chair and in his remarks he reviewed in a general way the work of the Company during the past year. He was pleased to report that a gain of 17 patrons had been added to our list over the past year and as far as we know it was a record patronage for any year. Again, we manufactured 209,000 lbs. of butter in the twelve months, another peak for the Company and in the thirteen months which constituted the past year we manufactured 214,445 lbs. of butter. The average price received for butter was 26.44 cents per pound, and the average price paid for cream was 11.17 cents and for No. 2 fat 27.08. The Company distributed in cash to its patrons during the year the sum of $1,187.88. The president was also pleased to report that over eight carloads of mill feed was bought and distributed among the patrons at a small profit of about 2½ cents per bag.

The auditors reported that they found the books in good shape, and the affairs of the Company were in a healthy financial condition.

The manager, Mr. L. H. Rogerson, spoke briefly on the care of cream and butter grading, and he was pleased to say that our butter had sold practically all first grade during the year. He also thought the farmers should avoid themselves of the evils of cow testing, which is at their disposal and free of charge. A vote was taken as to the advisability of introducing cow testing in this vicinity for the coming year and the majority was in favor of same.

Mr. John H. Myers was asked to explain the circular sent out by the National Dairy Council asking that a duty be imposed upon vegetable oils now coming into Canada free of duty and taking the place of butter and lard. After he had fully explained the situation he felt it wise for the present at least to leave the matter with the Tariff Board while he has the question under consideration at the moment and who, he felt, would deal with it in a fair way to all concerned.

Mr. E. C. Holm gave an interesting report on the Dairyman's Convention of which he is a director, and explained to the meeting the work they are endeavoring to carry out especially in the grading and marketing of our Island butter.

Mr. C. D. Wright, Tryon, spoke on behalf of the patrons and congratulated the Company for their endeavor in procuring feeds for the farmers in such a big way, and also for the fine quality of butter produced here. He thought the officials of the staff were doing their best, and satisfaction was felt all around.

Mr. John H. Myers was duly appointed secretary of the Company for the coming year in place of Mr. J. W. Newsome, who served in this capacity for a great many years. Appreciation was expressed for his services and his faithful work and interest in the Company all down through the years from its very inception and he was added here that Mr. Newsome was the Company's first president.

Mr. Bert J. Trowsdale, Westmoreland, congratulated the directors on their success in procuring feeds for the farmers and that they be re-elected, which was carried by an unanimous vote.

Mr. Raymond Myers asked the Company to build a cold storage in connection with the creamery, which he said would not only serve the benefit of the fox-ranchers and the general public of this vicinity. The Company felt that they were not sufficiently informed on the cost and maintenance of a cold storage to give it any consideration at the present time. Others taking part in the various discussions were: Frank Meyer, Crapaud; J. V. Moore, Bertram Trowsdale.

The following patrons received over $500.00 during the past year:

Clifford Lea, Victoria	$1145.43
Charles Pooley, Victoria	782.44
C. D. Wright, Tryon	758.54
John H. Myers, Crapaud	683.34
Bowley Leard, Tryon	635.03
A. D. Inman, Hampton	625.10
W. W. Lea, Victoria	589.38
Percy Ry. Campbell, Tryon	581.88
Frank Meyer, Crapaud	531.11
Frank Robblee, Tryon	500.41

MAGDALEN ISLANDS EXPECTS GREATER NUMBER TOURISTS

MONCTON, N. B., Feb. 22.—"We are expecting a considerably greater influx of tourists this season to the Magdalen Islands," stated J. J. LeBourdais, of Grand-Steele in these picturesque group of islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, who was a visitor in the city en route over the Canadian National Railways to Montreal and Ottawa on a vacation trip.

There are about ten thousand people inhabiting the Magdalen Islands. Mr. LeBourdais said, and homecraft such as weaving and hooking rugs is quite an industry among the women. There are good roads on the islands he remarked, and each season the number of tourists is increasing. Tourists can reach the Magdalen Islands in the summer by way of Picotou, a steamship service plying between Picotou and these islands.

Mr. LeBourdais, who is District Superintendent of the Government telegraph service on the Magdalen Islands flew by airplane from the islands to Charlottetown and from there travelled by train to Moncton. While in the city he called on D.A. MacNeill, District Superintendent of the Canadian National Telegraph here.

"THE BOSS SAYS I'M ON THE SKIDS!"

AND THEN HIS WIFE TOOK A HAND

GEORGE, YOU CAN'T HAVE ANY SNAP IF YOU'RE SLOWED UP BY COMMON CONSTIPATION, AND THOSE PILLS YOU TAKE ONLY MAKE YOUR MATTERS WORSE.

I DON'T LIKE TO TAKE THEM, BUT WHAT ELSE CAN I DO?

NOW I'M TAKING CHARGE. YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE A LITTLE KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN EVERY DAY. TOMORROW WE'LL HAVE IT IN SOME DELICIOUS ALL-BRAN MUFFINS.

H'M—LOOKS GOOD!

SOME TIME LATER

WHOOPLA! I GOT A RAISE TODAY. WHO SAID I WAS A HAS-BEEN?

JUST A "REGULAR" FELLOW NOW!

"REGULAR" FOLKS GET AHEAD!

If you are troubled with common constipation, due to insufficient "bulk" in the diet, Kellogg's All-Bran will make you "regular". Instead of over-stimulating your intestines, it provides two things they lack: First, "bulk"—All-Bran absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-soaked mass aids elimination. Next, Nature's intestinal tonic, Vitamin "B". Eat Kellogg's All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. If you do this regularly, you can avoid common constipation—and cathartics, too! Every grocer sells All-Bran. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

The new color card of the British Color Council for spring and summer has appeared. This association acts as a clearing station for the color worries of manufacturers of hosiery accessories, fabrics, millinery, lingerie and even household equipment. By sending out an official color bulletin with finite names twice a year they simplify a tremendous problem.

Manufacturers are able to ascertain what will be the most popular colors of the coming season and plan their merchandise to harmonize. The new card stresses the success of pastel shades, emphasizes in particular "Dahlia," a new deep mauve rose, Iris blue and various shades of hyacinth and sea blues, soft golden "marquise" gold and pale chartreuse young spruce green. Brighter shades are mentioned as "good for sportswear and bathing suits, among them tangerine, lipstick red, mayfair green and cavalry blue."
