KNEE-CHECKER IN PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 15 —(AP)— A knee-count on a busy corner in a good section of the city showed today that Parisians have not yet taken to the long skirts.

The standard adopted by the Associated Press knee-checker was:

Short skirts — anything which showed the knee, fore or aft, while the wearer was walking.

Medium length — Anything reaching the upper part of the bulge of the calf.

Long—Anything reaching below a point mid-way-down the bulge of the calf.

Score in a 10-minute count of passing women: 50 short, 29 medium, 12 long.

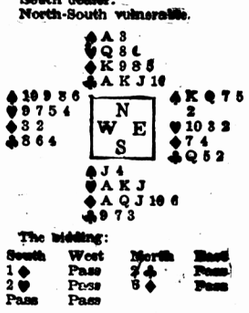
Losing A Slam

It is not likely that the declarer in today's deal deliberately jeopardized 1570 points in quest of an extra 20 points—but that nevertheless was the effect of his play.

South dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's two-heart rebid would not meet the approval of most good players, but in this case it had a magnificent result, because it convinced North that there would be an excellent play for a slam. He was right, of course, but his reckoning took no account of human frailty.

West opened the spade ten. The ace was put up and trumps were drawn in two leads. Then, undoubtedly observing that a successful club finesse would produce all thirteen tricks, South first led to the king—and as an elementary precaution against the singleton queen in East's hand—then returned to the heart king and took the club finesse. West swopped down on the trick and took great pleasure in cashing the spade king Down one!

South apparently overlooked a play that was as simple as it would have been effective, and which, in view of West's lead of the spade ten, had every prospect of success After drawing trumps South should have cashed the three hearts, led a club to the king, and then returned the spade three. Surely there was an excellent chance that East would have to win this trick, and that fact in itself would be enough to insure the contract. If East returned a spade or a heart (assuming he had another heart), declarer woud discard his only club loser while ruffing in dummy; if East preferred to return a club right up to dummy's tenace that also would be all right with South!

Even if West, by any chance, could take the spade trick, South would have lost nothing but 20 points by his effort, since the club finesse could always be attempted.
