NOVA SCOTIANS ARE TIRED OF PROHIBITION

Says Lieut. Governor J. C. Tory—"Majority Always Against Prohibition," He Added.

MONTREAL, Que., April 1—Confidence in some form of government measure for the regulation and sale of liquor in Nova Scotia would be passed by the House of Assembly, was expressed by Hon. J. C. Tory, Lieut. Governor of Nova Scotia, in an interview here. There is little doubt in his mind that some form of government control will pass the House of Commons, observed Mr. Tory. Whether government control will prove an advantage as compared with prohibition remains to be seen. It is pretty clear however, that the majority of people were tired of prohibition, commented the Lieut. Governor. One reason why it was difficult to enforce prohibition in Nova Scotia was the fact that in the Capital of the Province there always seemed to have been a majority against prohibition. Commenting on business conditions in Nova Scotia, His Honor said he thought the outlook for the future was much more hopeful. There appears to be a much better feeling in regard to the Bescoe interests and the outlook seems to be much more hopeful as to the ultimate success of the corporation. Mr. Tory said "While there are many difficulties in connection with coal mining and the steel industry in Nova Scotia there will be a steady progress from now on," Mr. Tory declared.

DOINGS IN THE FEDERAL PARLIAMENT

Unemployment Situation In Canada Gets An Airing—Treaty Rights of Eskimos And Indians.

(Special to The Guardian) OTTAWA, Ont., April 1—The long drawn out and rather wearisome discussion of yesterday afternoon about Indians and Eskimos was continued last evening. It involved several things which were somewhat new to the House—the right of Eskimos to vote, in view of the proposed extension of the Yukon Territory; the transfer of the Eskimos from the Indian Department to another branch of the same service; and the right of Indians to attend games of pool, etc., on Sunday. The Eskimos not being Indians and not affected by treaty rights, though not at present residents in any electoral constituency, seemed to have the right to vote, when and as soon as their habitat became organized. The Minister of the Interior and the Minister of Justice admitted as much, although they would not commit themselves to adequate statements. It was a new problem to work out. Continued on Page 3

Miss Kauffman landed safely with the aid of her parachute while the plane crashed to earth with its motor wide open. The accident was witnessed by several thousand persons, who for a time believed the aviatrix had plunged to death in the craft. Miss Kauffman said she was making the 31st loop when she was thrown from the cockpit as the ship went into a partial stall. Helplessly she dangled upside down from the plane with her feet caught in the safety strap. After several attempts to right the craft and climb back, the diminutive aviatrix kicked herself free and pulled the parachute cord.

Battle Livens Tedious Party

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 1—It might have been just as well that Mrs. Rose Gordon's bridge party was broken up anyway, but it wasn't just exactly according to the rules of expert. She had admitted things weren't going so well. Someone had apparently hidden all the face cards and even a one-club bid went begging. The guests were complaining of the lack of good cards and unless something happened, it certainly would be a dull evening. Just then Mrs. Mollie Katz entered and, to judge from her looks, she hadn't dropped in to play bridge. Instead she accused Mrs. Gordon of stealing the affections of her husband. Being the hostess, Mrs. Gordon seemed more obliging and with practically no hesitation dropped a bowl of goldfish on Mrs. Katz's head. A surgeon took four stitches in her guest's head, and Mrs. Gordon must answer to a charge of felonious assault.
