

A PROVINCIALIST HAS PASSED AWAY

The following clipping, forwarded from Tonopah, Nevada, will be of interest in this Province. Mr. McLeod referred to was formerly of this Province and a son of the late John McLeod, born in Scotland, but reared to manhood on the old McLeod farm on Wigmore Road, New London, Lot 20. He was a cousin of John McLeod, Long River, New London, and of Neil McLeod, lawyer, of Summerside, and a brother of the late Malcolm McLeod, father-in-law of John Murray who owns the old farm on Wigmore Road, where above men were all brought up.

freely in the interchange of thought and feeling with all such. Mr. McLeod was a constructive force in the community life, in the state, in the church, in the home, in all those commendable qualities that go to make up that imperishable thing we call character. There is abroad in the land the destructive forces which make for unrighteousness of man and woman-kind, that bite and blast and wither and decay. Honesty and industry, sobriety and thrift, manliness and Godliness, were distinguishing features of this Godly man's walk and conversation. He was pre-eminently an optimist for he always looked on the bright side of life and always saw the best that was in men. It is the sunlight which makes the graceful flower, the delicate stem, the fragrant leaf, the luscious fruit and the golden corn. He was a brave man under the spell and majesty of the Christian hope for what is life but a boisterous sea with its wind and wave? What is life but a battlefield with its shot and shell? What is life but a broad thoroughfare with its jostling and elbowing? But he, our beloved brother, has entered into that city whose maker and builder is God and while it is true we cannot bring him back again—it is nevertheless true we can all go to him in that city which is incorruptible having no seed of dissolution nor decay because it is undelled and fadeeth not away. While it is true the departure of our friend causes the heart to be sorrowful, and the eye to be dim with the tear, and darkness to gather round the place of earthly dwelling—yet that is today largely removed by the joyful expectation of a happy reunion with our beloved when the lights are removed and the curtain drops and we are no longer required to play a part on the stage of human activities. And now our heart's desire and prayer to God is that in this case, also, God may be a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless children and that, as one by one love's links are broken, they all may be re-united around their Father's throne to go out from His divine presence no more for ever. Mr. McLeod was a teacher of a high order all his life—for many years superintendent of schools in Humboldt, Iowa. He entered the service of the U. S. A. in August 3, 1862, serving three years to the close of the Civil War.

NORTH AMERICAN LIFE

Solid as the Continent, has been chosen as the motto of the North American Life Assurance Company through the inspiration of a remark by its first president, Hon. Alexander McKenzie, ex-Prime Minister of Canada, that in his opinion the Company was not excelled in solidity by any other life insurance company in Canada. After thirty years of continued progress the policy-holders of this popular Canadian company should be gratified with the standing which it has attained as shown by the Company's Annual Statement published today. The Company claim that they are paying profits to their policy-holders that compare favorably with the best managed companies on this Continent and are in a position to continue highly satisfactory settlements on all policies as they mature. The Company has been represented here for a number of years by J. K. Ross, and enjoys a large share of public patronage throughout the Province.

"Cyclone" Burns who wrestled in Charlottetown last spring, has undertaken a big job. He meets the great Mahmut in Mechanics Building, in Boston, on February 6th. The match is carded as a straight one, but it seems highly improbable that the "Cyclone" can do aught but give the "Terrible Turk" a long, hard battle. Mahmut is a top liner in his class; heavier than Burns, and is a formidable man.

The death occurred at Milton, last evening, under very sad circumstances of Garnet Coles, aged 23, son of William Coles. The deceased had been apparently in excellent health that day, and in the evening had been working around the stables. He came in the house, and about 11 o'clock, left saying he was going to the barn. As he did not return, his father became uneasy and a search was started. They discovered his footprints leading from the barn, and followed them to Curtis's mill pond, a mile and a half distant. In this pond, there was an opening, where ice had been removed and hauled away, and this opening had a coating of thin ice. At the bottom of this hole, in about 5 feet of water, the body of Mr. Coles was found. The supposition is that he had walked out upon this thin ice, and plunged to his death. No cause is assigned for the unfortunate deed, and his relatives are grief stricken over the deplorable affair. Dr. Johnson, of this city, Coroner, drove out to Milton today. After learning the facts, and coming to the conclusion that it was a case of suicide, he decided that an inquest was unnecessary.
