HALIFAX, Aug. 15 (CP)—Adequate provision for handicrafts in educational systems was urged in an address delivered at the education conference here tonight by Colonel Wilfrid Bovey, O. B. E. of Montreal, director of Extra Mural Relations, McGill University. He is president of the Canadian Handicraft Guild.

end to conform more closely in their judgment as expressed in the issue of inspection certificates. "That this association strongly urge the restoration of lower freight rates competitive with water and trucking competition.

"That it is the opinion of this association that a marketing export should be continued in the South American markets to keep the New Brunswick potato industry fully posted on all matters affecting this trade. It is further resolved that the man selected for this post should also meet with the approval of this association.

"That it is the opinion of this association that present long term credits are inadequate and interest rates exorbitant and that we request the department of agriculture to take such steps as they may deem necessary to provide funds at a much lower rate of interest comparable to rates prevailing in other provinces.

"That the potato growers and shippers of New Brunswick strongly urge the provincial and federal department of agriculture to find ways and means to set up or encourage the setting up of a potato by-product industry in the Province of New Brunswick, sufficient in scope and capacity to utilize any low grade and surplus potatoes that we may have in our average potato crops, and further resolved that the provincial and federal departments of agriculture be urged to investigate fully the possibilities of manufacturing potato starch from low grade and surplus potatoes to be sold as motor fuel and for other purposes, as well as to investigate the possibilities of manufacturing potato starch, flour, glucose, dextrose, etc., etc."

official opening of the Fair. Speaking on the value of the exhibition to many branches of agriculture he said he believed cattlemen owed a debt to those who year after year strove to improve herds for show purposes. In such a way were cattle improved and the whole industry reaped the rewards of efforts of premier cattlemen.

With Lieutenant Governor DeBlois he visualized great tourist prospects for this Province when highways were completed, the National Park developed and the second car ferry at Wood Islands in operation. "We will have here a tourist trade that will not be denied in other parts of Canada," he predicted.

His Worship Mayor E. A. Foster, had with other speakers words of praise to Col. Mackinnon and his associates for bringing this fair to the high place it now occupies.

On behalf of the citizens of Charlottetown he extended a very cordial welcome to visitors telling them that there were many other places of interest in the Capital City in addition to the Big Fair which was just opening.

Hon. B. W. Lepage, president of the Executive Council extended welcome to visitors on behalf of the Government of Prince Edward Island.

Referring also to the predicted greater influx of tourists to this Province he declared he believed Prince Edward Island would become to the summer tourist what Florida was to the winter tourist of North America.

The Department of Agriculture congratulated Col. Mackinnon and his associates for the marvelous improvements at the grounds. Hon. W. H. Dennis, Minister of Agriculture, said, "The management, however, was not alone in making the exhibition a continuing success. It pointed out. The exhibitors contributed largely to the success but the management had been very successful in gathering in their products."

Referring to the tourist industry he believed that the amount of money the tourists were expected to bring was "a pipe dream." He sincerely hoped it would come true, however.

SENATOR MARSHALL—"It's livestock that makes the land and it is not only getting to the hearts of our boys and girls the love of the land our greatest problems would be solved" Senator Duncan Marshall, Toronto, declared in an interesting, interesting and powerful address. Love of the land was "why our ancestors came across an almost uncharted ocean in small sailing ships" and he urged that the new country to get a peace of land of their own.

Cultivation of the soil was a thing of "primary importance in the life of a nation," Senator Marshall declared. Many nations were beginning to realize that but England had known it for years. When a man over there became rich in business or the professions he had to get an estate to have the "proper background."

The speaker warned against coaxing anyone to take up land, however. Sometimes it was said that what the country needed was more people on the land but "let us go along slowly and give the girls and boys the idea that a man doesn't have to be a pig to raise them." Rather what was needed was to teach them that agriculture was the most honorable of the professions and one which required the greatest intelligence.

Following Example Of Royalty

Referring to His Honour's remark that it was the fifth Provincial Exhibition which he opened Senator Marshall reminded the audience Governor DeBlois was following the footsteps of the Throne which he represented in this country. There wasn't a great fair in the Old Country which some Member of the Royal Family did not officially open. The King often exhibited and it was a treat sometimes to see a tenant farmer beat the King's classes in which they both had entries.

Here in the Dominion of Canada "we have been fortunate" along similar lines, the Senator continued. Governor Willingdon had been in turn spectator, exhibitor and judge at large shows in England, while the present Governor and his Lady were pleased to call themselves "plain country folks." Indeed Lord Buchan has said his mother's ambition was to make a sheep farmer of him. Lord Bessborough, too, had been an agriculturist and had a bull sent to this country from his estate in England.

For hundreds of years Great Britain had held agricultural fairs and Canada was following her example. One there at the Universities of Oxford, Glasgow and Edinburgh, too, were to be found the finest schools of agriculture in the world.

Edward DeBlois, Minister of Agriculture, said, "I take my hat off to the farmers of this Province." They had made more progress than the farmers in any other section of the Dominion that he knew. If some people did not know where the Island was, he did the speaker present in Charlottetown. He had spoken in 84 school houses in the Province. At that time "one of the things that broke my heart was the state of agriculture in this Province. I saw the little cheese factories go up and they were the salvation of agriculture present and for the future. I shall declare from this time on farmers here had begun to take care of the soil."

No Stranger Here

In beginning his address Senator Marshall said he was no stranger here. In fact yesterday as he came across the Strait it seemed he was "coming home."

Col. Mackinnon was an old friend of his, the speaker said. They had met as boys in a boarding house in Charlottetown. He had hoped also to meet at the exhibition Premier Campbell for although he did not know him very well he had known his father Sandy Campbell and uncle, William Campbell of Grahams Road very well. He was glad to see an old friend Senator John Sinclair present and for Minister of Agriculture Dennis he said, "Bill some 43 years ago had settled the problems of the Dominion while leaning against a rail fence on a farm near Emerald." They knew just two things, that the world was badly out of joint and that they were especially destined to put it right.

Col. Mackinnon in introducing Senator Marshall had referred to their long friendship and to the fact that he was "best man" when the Senator was married to a Charlottetown girl.

things have happened in the almost half a century of its existence. Institutions have come and gone. Thrones have disappeared, countries have been dismembered, but the Provincial Exhibition has pursued the even tenor of its way," he continued.

"Perhaps one reason for this continuity of existence is the fact that it was built on solid foundations by men of high ideals and good business judgment. They certainly made a wonderful selection of sites, their layout must have been guided by an experienced hand and the structures which exist from the past are evidence of good building and clever architecture.

"The hope of the founders was of course to improve our live stock and agricultural products, but has been worthily fulfilled as you know from past experience and from the records which our products have made not only here but throughout the Dominion and further afield. One can always be proud to be known as a Prince Edward Islander. We can point with pride to the achievements of our potato growers, our poultry men, our stock breeders and all who are connected with the agricultural industry. By joining together in competition the various parts of this province, which was the aim of our forebears, there has been created a worthy spirit of rivalry."
