THE STORY
CHAPTER XII
No one questioned Gay's presence in the boat, no one so much as looked at her, or offered her a word. She dropped upon a bench, covering, just where she was pushed in the pushing crowd. Shyly at first she kept her face lowered into her collar, but later, gaining courage, she dared to look about in search of Rand. Her eyes found him at last where he sat crowded between two others on the opposite side, and there was no opportunity for her to draw nearer to him at that moment.

The three men, Ingram and Hodge, with the one in charge of the boat, stood together and talked. Gay was beside them, but their voices were so low that she could catch only scattered words of what they said, and none but Ingram's, whose voice was familiar.

"Hanging around—No, don't it, business is one thing, but murder is murder. Do as you like, but I can't have a hand in it. Remember Blakely. Nothing on me but smuggling and coast running. Few years at most, I've got, mine salted away, too, believe me."

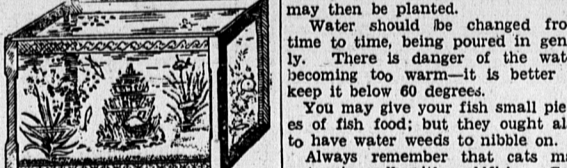

"Remember Blakely." Was it Blakely who had come to her in the cove, with the bullet wound in his brow? Not Ingram, then, who caused that gashing wound, but another, Garman, to whom they were taking Rand. Gay's fingers fondled her pistol, tentatively, but well she realized that any such action would be worse than folly, for these were desperate men, and they were armed. Ingram might stick at murder in cold blood but self-defence would put a different color on his scruples. If she could only get to Rand, slip her pistol into his hands, release his bonds. Still there was no opportunity, and she could think of no subtle expedient to contrive her ends.

She would have liked to fling herself across the intervening space and put both arms tenderly about those drooping shoulders.

"If I dare," I would. How surprised they would be. "Rand," I'd say, "kiss me." I dare say they would all drop dead of astonishment." Her teeth chattered nervously, her knees trembled, cold little smiles wrinkled her lips. "I am going to laugh," she thought, "I know. I am simply going to laugh with laughter. How absurd this is. Going to sea with a band of murderers—ridiculous, people don't do such things. Such things don't happen. I must be losing my mind, I dare say I am crazy, as they think on the island." A low dry chuckle gurgled through her cold lips. The man at her side turned.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

KEEPING GOLDFISH ALIVE
Do you have a little goldfish in your home? There are thousands of homes where there are goldfish. The shining swimmers are interesting to watch, and they make a pretty sight in the living-room or parlor.

A good-sized aquarium is an interesting and pleasing feature of a home.

The main trouble with keeping goldfish is that they are likely to die a few days or weeks after being brought home from the place of purchase.

Why do they die so soon? The chief causes are small bowls, lack of growing weeds, poor water and improper feeding.

The homes of goldfish should be roomy. Large bowls are better than small ones. Square or oblong glass jars are excellent—a food size is 18 inches wide and two feet long. In a state of nature, fish get some of their food from water weeds. That is why it is well to have plants in your goldfish jar; a growing plant is better than one which floats around.

It is good idea to cover the bottom of the jar with mud an inch deep—with an equal layer of sand over the mud. Small water weeds may then be planted.

Water should be changed from time to time, being poured in gently. There is danger of the water becoming too warm—it is better to keep it below 60 degrees.

You may give your fish small pieces of fish food; but they ought also to have water weeds to nibble on.

Always remember that cats may not mix well with goldfish. Cats are rather shy of water, but they may take a chance to enjoy a goldfish meal if it ever seems safe to them.

Other creatures besides goldfish are kept in glass jars. Small catfish and small eels seem to thrive in captivity. They may be fed with bits of meat and scrambled eggs.

When spring comes, perhaps you will obtain new pets from ponds or fields.

Seventieth Birthday Of Ex-Kaiser Sunday

BERLIN, Jan. 28—A white-haired, bearded man will celebrate his seventieth birthday next Sunday surrounded by about fifty relatives and friends and virtually ignored by the rest of the world. It was only 15 years ago that 65,000,000 people acclaimed with frantic enthusiasm the 56th anniversary of this man's birth, for he was King of Prussia, Emperor of Germany, William II, Emperor of Germany, King of Prussia, Markgraf of Brandenburg, Count of Hohenzollern, Duke of Silesia, Prince of Oranien, etc.

Times have changed indeed, since those glittering days when the "exile of Doorn" ruled Germany from the gigantic palace in Berlin, which nowadays stands dirty and unrepaired in the centre of the capital, the haunt of curious tourists from all parts of the world, eager to see the rooms where the autocrat of Germany lived and worked and guided the destinies of his country down the fatal path of war.

Now he is passing his declining days in a Dutch castle tending his rose garden, cutting down trees, walk-

JUDGE LENIENT WITH SCOT, WHO LAUGHED LATE

It seems there was a man in the Lord Chief's court who was always behind with his laughter over Lord Hewart's humorous comments during the hearing of a recent case. Not until a ripple of mirth had passed through the court did this man laugh; then he laughed too loudly. An usher warned him.

"Don't restrain him," Lord Hewart is said to have whispered. "It is some time to appreciate my humor."

The man's apologetic reply to the ushers warning was illuminating. "I am a Scot," he explained.

A LAWSUIT WHICH STARTED OVER SHORT SKIRTS

A mother who says that her daughter's short skirt was lengthened by people in authority at a mission school is suing the head mistress and superintendent of the school.

The mother, Mrs. Hilaria Mour-sound, is an Indian Christian. She claims that Mrs. J. M. Powers, the head mistress of Malabar Mission High school, and Miss R. C. Heath, the superintendent, took her daughter's clothes from her box in the school and lengthened the skirt.

Mrs. Mour-sound claims 5 pounds 10 shillings damages, as she contends that the altered skirt was a valuable heirloom presented to the girl by her grandmother.

relatives and friends as a present.

The ex-Kaiser, who, despite his age, looks robust and in the best of health, is particularly upset by the idea that historians in descriptions of the World War, may attribute the blame for causing it to him and Germany. He is continually writing to refute the allegation and it is reported he has compiled a book on the subject which is to be published after his death.

Fight The Germs In The Throat Before They Invade Other Parts Of The Body
EFFECTIVE PREVENTIVE MEASURES EXPLAINED

Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight the dreaded "flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of Influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you go a long way towards stopping the trouble. An effective means of prevention is to gargle the throat three or four times daily with Nerville. Half a teaspoonful of Nerville in water makes a most efficient gargle. The germ-killing properties of Nerville quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the chest is sore, if the throat is hoarse, if you have a cough—be sure to rub the neck and chest with Nerville. Every drop of it will rub in and out will come the congestion with Nerville. Every drop of it will rub in and out will come the congestion with Nerville. Every drop of it will rub in and out will come the congestion with Nerville. Every drop of it will rub in and out will come the congestion with Nerville.

Milady Beautiful
By Lois Leeds
BLEACHING MUDDY COMPLEXIONS

A clear, smooth unblemished complexion is attractive no matter what its shade. An olive or medium skin is as beautiful in its way as the white or ivory shades. It is when the skin becomes sallow or muddy that it loses its individual charm.

The chief factor in maintaining a clear skin is good health. Nothing can take the place of this, for the healthy skin has a glow and bloom upon it that cannot be counterfeited by cosmetics. Milady's complexion may be said to reflect the condition of her digestive tract; if her skin is rough or dull, the cause is almost always digestive trouble or constipation. Lack of fresh air or outdoor exercise also robs the skin of its beauty. A sluggish circulation and a rich diet makes the skin muddy.

Besides correcting the unhygienic habits that are the underlying cause of the muddy complexion, milady may use bleaching treatments to help lighten her skin. The materials required for the bleaching treatment I am going to describe for you today include (1) a cleansing cream, (2) a skin lotion, (3) a bleaching cream and (4) a food cream.

Pure commercial preparations may be used in this treatment, or you may make the cosmetics yourself according to the recipes that appear in this column every week. The bleach used may be a lemon cream or the following mixture: Three tablespoons stearate of zinc, two tablespoons lemon juice, six drops tincture of benzoin, one tablespoonful boric acid and enough white vaseline or cold cream to make a thin paste.

Begin the treatment by cleansing the skin with cleansing cream. Wipe off the cream, massaging your face slightly upward as you do. Next pat on the skin tonic, which may be made of one ounce rose water, one ounce cologne water and thirty grains sulphate of zinc. Now apply some cold cream over the lips and eyebrows and spread the bleaching paste over your face and neck. Leave it on for twenty minutes. Wipe off the paste with a clean cloth moistened in warm water.

The food cream is applied next. Spread it evenly over your face like a mask. Massage gently for a minute or two and then wipe off the cream. Pat on the skin lotion. Apply foundation cream and make-up.

The treatment just described may be taken daily for one week when the skin is very dull and faded in appearance. It is especially helpful for wrinkled, sallow skins.

Lux keeps stockings like new more than twice as long

Washing your stockings (whether flares, chips, or cakes) may do more than weeks of hard, everyday use to weaken delicate silk or chiffon fibres, to pull threads, start runs—to fade colors.

For many soaps contain harmful alkali which injures delicate fabrics and colors.

Lux is safe! Lux has no harmful alkali, nothing to harm even the sheerest, wispiest thread, the palest flesh or champagne color.

Because Lux is so safe, stockings washed in Lux stay new-looking more than twice as long!

Save your stockings with Lux! Buy it in the regular size or large-size blue box. Lux is never sold loose, by the pound. And with genuine Lux you are sure of extra wear!

*Every musical show in New York uses Lux in washing the hosiery worn by its choruses. By actual experience, the producers found that with Lux, hosiery stayed like new twice as long! Gave twice as many performances!

If it isn't in the blue box it isn't Lux

NEW RAILWAY FUEL TO SAVE 60 PER CENT
Railway engineers are conducting tests at Darlington with a new oil and coal burning locomotive. The engine, which is special construction starts with steam, but afterwards speed is maintained by a Diesel internal-combustion engine which is said to be capable of maintaining with an average load, a speed which can be obtained by an average engine only. It is believed that the engine will reduce railway fuel costs by 60 per cent.

Insidious Eye Strain
We use this adjective advisedly.
Sufferers from Eyestrain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any eye defect.
The motive power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy.
Normal eyes, it is computed utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy but when Eyestrain is present, a much larger proportion is required. Hence defective eyes, through their consumption of an excessive amount of Nerve Energy may seriously affect the functioning of other organs of the body and produce ill health.

FIRST FOLIO SHAKESPEARE COPY TO BE SOLD

There will shortly be sold by auction in London the only first folio Shakespeare, ownership of which can be traced back to its first purchaser. It is not a particularly fine copy three of the preliminary leaves being marred (in the words of the catalogue) by childish drawings.
