LADY'S "MENAGERIE"

Stockbroker Complained of Being Annoyed by His Neighbor

A further case arising out of a Sydenham lady's domestic "menagerie" was heard at the Greenwich Police Court. Mrs. Juliette Hughes was summoned for abusing her neighbor, Mr. T. Owen, a stockbroker. Mr. Thomas, counsel for Mr. Owen, said that Mrs. Hughes kept a number of dogs and ducks and geese—quite a menagerie, in short. He read a letter which she had written to Mr. Owen, saying that he had accused her of stealing a garden hose. "You have spoiled my character," she wrote, "and children call me a French pincher." The conduct of Mrs. Hughes had become unbearable. Mr. Owen had been in his house for seventeen years, and was most anxious to stop this annoyance. Mr. Owen, sworn, said that Mrs. Hughes from her front garden called to him, "Can you smell the geese? Can you smell the rubber burning?" There had been some words over the garden hose and some geese, and they had had to call in a sanitary inspector about the smell from the geese. He had put up with the annoyance for two years. Mrs. Hughes now said she remarked to someone in her house, "Can you smell the rubber burning?" She did not apply the remark to Mr. Owen. She admitted sending pictorial postcards to him on which she had written, "Can you smell the geese?"

Mr. Hutton bound Mrs. Hughes over to keep the peace for twelve months, and ordered her to pay 50 cents costs.

STRIKE RIOT

A Lively Time at a Boot Factory in England

Owing to the introduction of outside labor during a strike at the boot factory of Messrs. Loake Brothers at Melbourne, England, a riot took place. The firm, who do not employ unionists, dismissed one man who joined the union and endeavored to persuade others to do so. Forty men handed in notices and Messr. Loake imported five men. The others resented the introduction of such labor, and a crowd of 600 demonstrated outside the factory. Police reinforcements were hurried on to the scene, but were assailed with stones The rioters, after smashing the factory windows, attacked the manager's house, wrecking the windows. The police made baton charges, dispersing the strikers.

CHILDREN HATE OIL CALOMEL AND PILLS

"CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS" BEST FOR TENDER STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers you cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

WILD MAN OF THE WOODS

He Kept Posted, However, on Topics of the Day

Thomas Lewis, the "wild Welshman," who spent a solitary two years in the woods and fields, is taking things easily in Caersws Workhouse. He boasts that he has kept in touch with passing events during his "outlawry," and can converse intelligently on important topics which have arisen during the last two years. When arrested he was wearing a silver watch and chain. The watch showed correct time. He says he used to compare it with the Llanidloes town clock, which at nights he could hear strike distinctly from his haunts in the hills.

CHAINED LIKE DOGS

Foxes in an 18-Gallon Cask and a Milk Churn

Harry Smith, a laborer, was, at Whitehal, Hants, fined $40 for cruelty to two foxes. Sergeant Clarke said he found a fox and a vixen confined in an eighteen-gallon cask and an ordinary milk churn respectively. Both utensils were turned up on end, and the foxes, which apparently had been there for some time, had no room in which to move, one being curled up like a hedgehog and not being able to stand. The bung-hole of the cask had been gnawed away to three times its ordinary size. Both foxes were very savage, and growled like dogs when approached. They could not be handled, but when liberated could hardly run off, as they were so stiff. They were well fed.

"I should think so," exclaimed Smith; "they had twelve rabbits in three days. I've handled foxes since I was a boy, and am like a lady with a new-born baby with them. I was keeping them for the huntsmen. The foxes were only confined during the daytime; at night I chained them up with collars, just like dogs."

TO FIGHT ZEPPELINS

Mr. Cody's Plan for Uusing Bombs Two Thousand Feet Up

Mr. Cody, London, has revealed a highly ingenious plan for fighting dirigibles of the Zeppelin type. He says: "I call my method 'fishing for the enemy,' and that is really what it is like. My device is based on the knowledge that aeroplanes can fly faster and higher than any Zeppelin, and the process has been already tested and found practicable and efficient. My plan is to fly up until my machine is one or two thousand feet above the dirigibles and then to fish for them with a long, thin steel hawser, at the end of which I propose to have a bomb of my own invention. That bomb will be of a very high power and easily exploded. In fact, the least touch will fire it, and it will shoot flames in six directions at once to a distance of eight feet each. If my first 'drag' misses its mark, all I have to do is to wheel round and try again. Following after the spurts of flame there will issue from my bombs pieces of lighted tow or other material soaked in some highly inflammable spirit, which will inevitably fire any portion of the structure of the dirigible that may have escaped the first effects of the explosion. The vessel would be absolutely at the mercy of the man in the aeroplane sailing a thousand feet above it. He could trail his bomb backwards and forwards to any point. The enemy meanwhile would have nothing to aim at with their guns except the quickly-moving 'plane, and would have to fire upwards. I have seen experiments in firing from dirigibles, and I am quite sure their work would be practically useless. Suppose a Continental enemy has determined to attack us with a fleet of dirigibles, she will have to employ vessels that can keep flying for long periods. All that we require to destroy them is a fleet of aeroplanes that will keep flying for a few hours. There is a good deal of loose talk about these dirigibles of the Zeppelin type. We are told they can lift twenty-seven tons. That sounds formidable. But they have a weight of their own of twenty tons, so that their real capacity is only about seven tons. With an aeroplane of my own and a 3 pound gun I could circle round and round and above any airship I know of and fire a shot through every ballonet. I have been up over 7,000 feet, and could easily get above them."
