THE MARITIME PLAY-OFFS

Baseball fans of Charlottetown and the Province as a whole are anxiously awaiting the result of the Nova Scotia-New Brunswick play-downs. However, it matters little which team is returned the victor as two games and possibly three of the finals will be fought out in the local ball yard.

The Abegweit, P. E. Island contenders for the coveted flag, although hindered in practice preparations for the coming series, are none the less confident of making one of the strongest bids for Maritime supremacy in the history of baseball in this Province.

The material this year was never better, and judging by recent performances, it looks as if the Mainland champions, whoever they may be, are in for the series of their lives.

Nowhere in the three Provinces by the sea are there a smarter lot of fielders, inside the paths or in the outer garden, and so far as speed on the base lines is concerned, well, to see them is to marvel. To use the words of a member of the New York colored team which played here this summer—"Them there youngsters are just natural antelopes—boy, how they do run!"

Bating, once the weak point of the Abegweit machine, and which probably cost them the title on more than one occasion, is a hundred percent improved, so much so that they out slugged every for-ign team showing here this season. The above is a brightly painted picture, but nevertheless true, and should the players use their heads in coordination with hands and feet, its going to take a truly great ball team to head them in the final playdowns.

THE WORLD SERIES

Philadelphia's winning of their third American League pennant was a foregone conclusion since almost the middle of the season. They are so far in advance of the second place Washington team, they could lose their twelve remaining games, while Washington was winning their thirteen, and then finish one game ahead.

St. Louis in the National League has almost the same lead on the New York Giants, and no matter how hard the McGrawites play they stand little chance of catching the classy Cardinal Club. Therefore the World Series this year is slated for the Quaker City and St. Louis.

RAINED OUT

Harness racing in the Maritimes this season seems to have incurred the ire of "Jupiter Pluvius" who has on numerous occasions, and in every Province where harness racing is held, showed his wrath in downpours of rain. Yesterday's racing throughout New Brunswick had to be postponed on account of wet and heavy tracks. However, the silver lining is bound to show and the racing must go on.

ATHLETICS CLINCH THIRD PENNANT

(Canadian Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15.—The Philadelphia Athletics clinched their third straight American League pennant today by defeating Cleveland, while the Washington Senators were losing to St. Louis 5 to 4. The Athletics could lose their remaining 12 games, with Washington winning its last 13 and still finish a full game ahead.

Quotes Bible In Commuting Death Sentence

(Canadian Press)

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Sept. 15.—Quoting the bible and the "unwritten law" as justification of his act, Governor Rolph Jr. last night commuted to life imprisonment a death sentence imposed upon August Gignell, 37. Gignell was convicted of slaying his wife, Vera Gignell and Sigurd Bjornby, her alleged paramour in Los Angeles a year ago. Gignell was to have been hanged at San Quentin prison next Friday. "And the man that committeth adultery with another man's wife, even he that committeth adultery with his neighbor's wife, the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death," quoted the Governor in his statement on the commutation. He selected the biblical passage chapter 20, verse 10, in the book of Leviticus.

Boy Suicides

EXETER, N.H., Sept. 15.—Two younger sisters called to Ralph Wignin, 14, in his bedroom this morning and told him he would be late for school unless he hurried. "I'm not going today, be good," Ralph replied. The statement was followed by a shot and the girls found Ralph dead on the floor, a rifle near by. Dr. J. C. Hanford, acting medical referee said Ralph shot himself in the head.

The parents of the children had left them alone as they went to work. The girls, Rachel 10, and Lucille, 4, could not explain their brother's act and the parents of the boy said he had been a good student.

JOHNNY CRACKS ANOTHER

BALBOA, C. Z., Sept. 16. (U.P.)—Johnny Weismuller, Olympic swimming champion, visiting the Canal Zone enroute to California, thrilled more than 1,000 spectators in the Balboa pool here when he broke the pool record for one lap of 44 yards by swimming the distance in 20 seconds flat. The previous record was 21 and three-fifths seconds.

PRELIMINARY

appeared to have come from some one in authority. The article even had a suggestion as to the identity of the guilty parties, and seemed to have the general arrangement of the evidence to be given against the accused. The newspaper statements in question, Mr. Strong contended, were not fair to the accused, as there had been no evidence taken and the publication of any facts relating to the case before it came before the court might prejudice those giving evidence and others having to do with the case.

The magistrate replied that Mr. Strong's remarks were well taken and in perfect order. For the outline of a case to be published in a newspaper before it appears in Court is not giving justice to the defendants. Newspapers have a good deal of influence which should be used to good advantage to suppress crime, but to publish tales that they hear on the street, especially when dealing with cases that are to come before the court, is not in accord with British justice. He hoped that reporters and newspapers would take notice of this and govern themselves accordingly.

The attorney-general opened the case for the Crown. The first witness called was Mr. Johnson, of Bedouk, in charge of the factory from where the butter in question is alleged to have been stolen. He gave evidence that he had worked at the factory for twenty years and that one morning between August 15 and 25th he found the cold storage room broken into and between ten to twelve cases of butter missing. A case contains 60 pounds of butter. There were 14 cases left. He found that the padlock was gone, he saw tracks of men's feet in the driveway between the factory and cold storage.

Cross-examined by Mr. Strong witness stated that they had stopped taking records of the quantity of butter made, two days before this butter was missing. The windows in the factory may have been open at this time.

After recess, Mr. Callbeck, secretary for the company, gave evidence but could not give any definite statement as to how much butter was missing.

Mr. Carver of Linkletter Road, was next called and testified that at five o'clock on the morning of Friday, August 21st, he saw a car turn at the corner of his place and go towards Summerside. There appeared to be two people in the car. That evening he thought he would investigate tracks he had noticed going into the woods near where the car had turned and on doing so found four cases, which upon investigation, he found to contain butter with the stamp of the Dunk River factory on it. He took it home and then notified Mr. Harvey, the sheriff, who got in touch with the Provincial Police. At the instance of the police Mr. Carver took the butter back to where he had found it. The butter was there three weeks. He looked occasionally to see if it was still there. Last Tuesday evening he saw two men get out of a car and go into the woods. One of them brought something out and placed it in the car. The butter had been gradually going.

Cross examined, witness said that two of the cases of butter had been removed two weeks before and the other box a few days before the last one was taken. Witness said that Inspector Miller and Constable Mann came out to investigate the matter and watched the place. They stayed in the car in the daytime and watched in the woods at night.

Mr. Carver's son gave similar evidence to that of his father. On conclusion of the evidence of these witnesses the case was adjourned until Saturday, September 19th. 8.

CAVE YIELDS HISTORIC DATA

STUTTGART, Sept. 15.—(U.P.)—The accidental discovery of a cave in the so-called Swabian Alb, near Ulm, has resulted in a great number of valuable prehistoric finds. Most important of these is the skull of a man of the Aurignac period. It is the first of its kind to be unearthed in Germany, though others have been found in England, France and Austria. Excavations under the direction of the University of Tuebingen have proved that the cave was a Neolithic burial place.

It's hard to say which we'd rather not listen to, a man singing his own praises or one telling his troubles.—"Cincinnati Enquirer."

FREE TRADE.

LONDON, September 15.—Sir John Simon, long time Liberal free trader, is credited in political circles with the belief that the British economic situation demands a protective tariff policy. He is expected to speak in favor of such a change during the debate on Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden's budget proposals Tuesday. It was considered doubtful that he would champion the protectionist policy as a whole, but it was believed that he would advocate temporary tariff imposts to restore trade balance.

Addressing English labor recently, Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson declared that, on condition, he would abandon Free Trade and support a tariff for revenue measure.

LONDON, September 15.—The possibility that the emergency Government would abandon its free trade policy in favor of a protective tariff as a further means of dealing with the financial problem was discussed in political circles yesterday.

Encouraged by the developments of the last few days, protectionists were of the opinion that the ball already was in motion and some went so far as to say that a tariff policy would be adopted within the next three months.

The Daily Mail said it was able to announce that the Government was certain to make such a move before the end of the year. Premier Ramsay MacDonald and Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, were credited with expressing favorable opinions and even Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden was said to have realized that he must modify his free trade views.

"The political developments in recent days have all been pointing in this direction," the paper said, "and decisions which have been taken in the last 24 hours make a tariff policy inevitable."

Whether Mr. Snowden would be willing to father a tariff measure was considered doubtful and it was supposed that he would resign rather than identify himself with the adoption of the protectionist system by the Cabinet, leaving Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain as the logical candidate for the job.

Mr. Chamberlain, Health Minister in the Government, in a speech at Dumfries Friday night warmly advocated such a change and said unless the people had a tariff soon they would not be able to live. He scouted the idea of a ten per cent tariff, advocated by some, and said it must be higher to prevent foreign goods entering the country.

NATURAL CURVES ARE ACCENTUATED IN LATEST CREATION

The human form is a mysterious thing, very pliable in its willingness to conform with every whim that fashion in her fickle way advocates at various times. In looking back over the ages style directors seem to have taken very little interest formerly in the natural lines of the female figure.

Their great delight was in destroying any semblance of the simple curves so beautifully proportioned by nature and to swathe woman's limbs in voluminous drapes and yards of cumbersome material, the idea being apparently to produce the effect of a very small waist, thin hands and feet, and a baby-like maintenance. They piled yards of material on top of bustles and corinthes in order to achieve the desired effect and to show the slightest deviation from the prevailing mode by cutting away any of the billowing folds, to expose the natural outline, was considered nothing short of indecent.

The New Outline

The scene opens today with a graceful silhouette that reveals the natural outline of the human body in classic lines. The effort today to achieve certain effects is acquired by clever diagonal folds inset in the frock and a close study of line treatment to increase or reduce the appearance of the natural curve.

It is the underneath things today that fashionists treat with meticulous care and lingerie, as we understand it, is simple in line and is so arranged that it will increase or reduce the natural rounded curves of the body according to the style of the wearer. Bias cut garments produce marvelous effects and these clinging things bear greater weight than would seem possible in helping to produce that slim, graceful silhouette we are so accustomed to.

There must be nothing bulky in these new and fetching underthings, and although lace edging insertions and ruffled silk net are permissible, one must in no way break the hard and fast rule, simplicity and slenderness.

Exotic laces are a la mode, softly clinging silks and satins, as well as crepes, are permissible, but the is offering for the season.

Prominent Cattleman Passes Away

TRURO, N. S., Sept. 15.—Friedrick W. Swindells, Jr., who successfully combined the activities of Nova Scotia farmer and New England business man, died of heart disease today at the farm home he had made famous throughout Canada.

Coming to his wife's home at Princeport in search of health six years ago, Mr. Swindells built up the largest accredited herd of guernseys in the Dominion. His foundation stock was obtained from J. F. Roper, formerly of Charlottetown, P. E. I., who now is manager of the Swindells farm "Beech Hill."

Cattle from Beech Hill have taken prizes at every major livestock show in Canada and have brought home many a ribbon from United States Fairs.

Mr. Swindells, whose United States home was Rockville, Conn., continued his interest in various New England industries after establishing his Nova Scotia farm. He was vice president of the Colonial Wool Company of Boston.

He suffered a heart attack last July after a field day at his farm and although he rallied several times, never fully recovered. His father was at his bedside at the time of death. He is survived by his mother, his wife, and two adopted children. An adopted son left for Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., on Saturday.

Mr. Swindells was a member of the royal commission set up two years ago to inquire into the apple industry, and subsequently went to England to study fruit marketing conditions there. The financing organization growing out of the commission's recommendations was set up at Kentville today.

A TRIBUTE

"In the death of Mr. Swindells the province or Nova Scotia loses a man who made it his business in life to give a very definite lead in agricultural fields," said Premier G. S. Harrington tonight. "His efforts were inspired by a desire to be helpful to farmers of this province, and any task which would accomplish that end was welcome to him."

ARIZONA POWER PROJECT WILL COST 13 MILLIONS

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 15.—(U.P.)—The expenditure of $13,500,000 will soon add approximately $40,000,000 of taxable wealth to Arizona's tax rolls through development of the Verde River Irrigation & Power project which will place 85,000 acres of rich desert land under irrigation.

A combination of deep well pumps and dams will supply the water and the water, in turn, will create hydro-electric energy which will be used in operating pumps and distributing the water.

Cost of the development, for which bonds have been issued, is estimated at $13,500,000.

Fifty thousand acres of the tract have been tested and found suitable for citrus fruit.

Thought must remain uppermost, simplicity of outline.

Fyjasas Go Feminine

Fyjasas are coming to us lace trimmed, the feminine touch that makes this sophisticated garment more intriguing than ever. Nightgowns fit the form gracefully and are embellished with insets or embroidery, lace or tucking, according to desire and the Empire period nightie with its fitted lines and clever cut is in direct opposite to the garment that accompanied the wardrobe as originally designed for ladies of the Victorian era.

All the shades from one's pastel box are brought to play in the realm of lingerie today, and they paint a dainty picture of mauves, blues and greens, pinks, yellows and saffron tones.

Peticotats are form-fitting and slightly flared at the hem and designed in each instance to act in a manner fitting for such a foundation and not a wrinkle or line must in any way mar the beauty and cut of the outside frock. By playing an inconspicuous part, the petticoat makes a high trump card and to make or destroy the entire outside effect is in its power.

French embroidery and lace, the fitted silhouette and its high waistline, and flared skirt are the keynotes stressed in newest lingerie modes. Beautiful hand-made numbers are shown in the finest collections in silk, and lovely French models stressing dainty shades and clever designing are what fashion his way along among the maze of corridors in the lower part of the ing.

Brigade Major of the 18th Infantry Brigade, which position he still occupies.

Major Thompson holds the M. G. and V. D. decorations, and is honorary A. D. C. to the Lieutenant Governor. He is first vice president of the Charlottetown branch of the Canadian Legion, B. E. S. L.

As manager of the local branch of the Southgate Produce Company he has been intimately associated, since the war, with the seed potato industry.

Major Thompson's appointment as Prince Edward Island's representative on the Pensions Tribunal naturally gives great satisfaction to returned men and to all classes of our citizens who know him, personally or by repute.

The Pensions Tribunal was formed last year for the purpose of dealing with appeals from the Board of Pensions Commissioners. At its organization the following tribunal members were appointed: Lieut. Col. Thomas Morrison, V. D., of Hamilton, Ont., chairman.

Nova Scotia—Lieut. Col. Lawrence Howard MacKenzie, D.S.O., V.D., Stellarton. New Brunswick—Lieut. Col. Norman Phillips MacLeod, M.C., A.D.C., Saint John.

MAKES KNOWN

Karachi mandate given him by the Nationalists of India. The mandate, which was phrased by Gandhi himself, demands complete independence, Indian control of finances, National defence and foreign affairs, payment by Great Britain of the debt contracted by the British administration in India during the past century, the right to secede, complete prohibition of intoxicating drink and state control of mineral resources. India, he said, is willing to remain a partner in the British Empire, but that partnership must be such that it may be terminated at the will of either party. If God wills, he said, it will be a permanent partnership, but at the same time the right to terminate the association will constitute the test of equality of position enjoyed by both partners.

Complex Problem

The Karachi National Congress gave Gandhi a mandate which is supposed to form the basis of his demands. Observers believe that if Gandhi insists on the literal fulfillment of its terms, there is no chance of success at the conference. The whole problem is very complex. On the one hand some sort of agreement must be reached between the representatives of the different sects in British India, again between the ruling Princes and then between the Indians and the British.

The closest friends of the Mahatma all realize this mandate is only a preliminary basis for bargaining. It is known that Gandhi is personally intensely eager to avoid renewal of the civil disobedience movement which inevitably resulted in bloodshed and hardship. It is believed by his colleagues that he is willing to compromise on a sort of modified Dominion status with safeguards, and when the crucial point of the negotiations are reached, Lord Irwin, former Viceroy of India, who knows Mr. Gandhi better than anyone in Britain, is expected to act as mediator between the authorities and the Nationalist leader. Through-out India, Lord Irwin and Gandhi are known as the two Mahatmas, because of the similarity of their spiritual and religious ideals. Mahatma is the Indian term for a great soul, one who has transcended the limitations of the flesh and the world.

Gandhi, talkative and smiling, was a strong contrast today to the Gandhi of yesterday, who sat silent at the council table sipping goat's milk, observing the weekly day of silence he has kept for many years. He entered the Palace through the Priory court entrance, the back way, and trying to make his way along among the maze of corridors in the lower part of the ing.

General Synod Addressed By N. S. Archbishop

Worrell, Archbishop of Nova Scotia and senior metropolitan in the Dominion, delivered the charge to the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada, meeting here today. He reminded his brother Bishops and the 300 lay and clerical delegates gathered, that they must consider election of a new Primate, the findings of the Lambeth Conference of 1930, and the proposals advanced by the Anglican National Commission for re-organization of the church.

Politically as well as economically the world was in danger, he suggested, pointing to the vast armaments of modern nations. "The Great War proved the disillusionment of safety through armament he declared. Now the League of Nations is an oasis in a desert of dismay. Are we living in a fools' paradise?" He called upon the church to lead in the solution of international problems by peaceful methods.

Can. Fisheries Association In Session

(Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 15.—A resolution tending to widen the scope of the Association was passed at today's session of the Canadian Fisheries Association meeting here in its 16th annual convention. The Association moved that the Dominion Government "consider the wisdom of making an appropriation of $100,000 for publicity purposes to be expended in Canada with a view to the development of the domestic market for fish."

The question of increased membership created considerable discussion, and a committee was formed to consider ways and means to augment the present membership of the Association. The report of the transportation committee pointed out that the railway companies had done much to improve shipping conditions for fish during the past two years. Complaints were registered as to the unduly high cost of shipping scallops and lobsters, and this matter is to be taken up by the transportation committee.

CHILD AUTO TOLL HEAVY

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 15.—(U.P.)—Automobiles took heavy toll of children in Pennsylvania during July, the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles reported. Thirty-five children were killed and 772 injured by automobiles in the state during the month. Ten of the fatally injured were less than four years old.

CHINESE OFFICER STUDIES IN U. S.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—(U.P.)—An officer of the Chinese army, Captain Mo Chun Li, reported to the commander of the United States Army Quartermaster depot school recently. He will take a course given at quartermaster officers of the United States Army, according to Col. Miles R. Higgard, school commandant.

Palace, became lost. He had to be directed to the conference room by an attendant. His secretary again accompanied him with a vacuum bottle of goat's milk and a picnic basket containing dates and fruit for the midday meal.

Before the conference resumed, Gandhi had an hour's talk with Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for India and it is understood they discussed matters of procedure. Gandhi explained that the mandate given to him by the Congress called for an honorable partnership between Great Britain and India, which either party would be entitled to dissolve. He envisaged India as a valuable partner not held by force but by a silken cord of love. While admitting Britain's ability to hold India in subjection by the sword, he contended that the result would be an enervated and rebellious India. A British-Indian partnership, he continued, as between two equal peoples might be of considerable assistance to you in balancing your budget. The Congress would not be and I myself would never be satisfied with a mere political constitution, which in reading seemed to grant everything desired, but in reality granting nothing.
