the Chancel steps was the thanksgiving contribution from the congregation. Rev. G. R.
Harrison, delivered an excellent sermon from the text "The Seed is the word of God." Appropriate hymns were sung by choir and congregation.

—DEATH OF J. EDWARD Mc-CARVILLE—Friends learned with much regret of the passing of Mr.
J. Edward McCarville whose death occurred at his home in Kirkcubria on Friday last. Mr. McCarville was 40 years of age and his passing is a distinct loss to the community.
Mr. McCarville was for some years Postmaster at Kirkcubria and was most obliging and efficient in his dealings with the public. He was also a successful farmer. He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church at Kirkcubria and received the consolation of his religion from the hands of his pastor, Rev.
Dr. Smith before he died. He was the father of the late Thomas Mc-Carville, who was killed in the widow Emma Flahaven of Kin-sington, two sons, Edwin and Ralph; also his mother, two sisters and two brothers. The funeral was held on Monday morning from his late residence to St. Malachi Church.

—NORTH BEDEQUE COMMU-NITY CLUB—The regular meeting of the North Bedeque Community Club was held in the Community Hall on Monday, Sept. 25, with Rev.
Mr. Haddinton in the chair. After the usual sing-song, a recitation was given by Master Eldred. A report was read by Joseph Perry of Summerside, then entertained the members with two very delightful readings. The speaker of the evening, Mrs. Fred O-borne of Summerside, and Belle Isle, Labrador, then gave a most interesting and fascinating talk on "Lighting Kooking" as she called it on Belle Isle. A most heartfelt vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Ralph MacCaull, seconded by Mrs. Marie MacCaull and Mr.
James MacDonald. A vote of thanks was also given for the very kind kindly assistance with the entertainment given by Mrs. Robert Baker and seconded by Mr. Preston Bow-ness. It was decided that the committee be authorized to be pointed to investigate the feasibility of having electric lighting in the district. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem. The program for the evening was under the direction of Mrs.
James Clark.

side. L-896-9-28-41.

—TAKES UP NEW DUTIES—Rev. Leonard MacDonald was welcomed by his parishioners at the Brace and presented with appropriate remembrances and an address before his departure for his new duties at Little Pond and St.
Charles parish. Rev. MacDonald celebrated Mass on Sunday in his new parish, where Harold Crok takes over the Brae parish after several years at the same.

—FAREWELL PARTY—On Friday evening, Sept. 29, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Monte-gomery, Lower Bedeque, a number of relatives and friends of Miss Gladys Fitzell gathered to bid her farewell previous to her departure to take a nursing training course in a hospital at Woodstock, N. B. During the evening she was given a travelling bag which was given by her little niece Gwyneth Doull. A social hour was spent followed by ice-cream and cake served by the hostess and her sisters. On Saturday morning Mr. Fitzell, accompanied by Mrs. Fitzell and family to brother Re week end with her stationed at Andover, N. B., before taking up her duties early in October.

—OTTAWA, Oct. 1.—(CP)—Pesonnel held in internment camps will be given the opportunity of liberty. The exact number held was not available tonight, but there are several hundred. Most of them are held at the Citadel in Quebec, at Fort Henry, Kingston, Ont., and at Kananaskis, Alta.

—The internment persons are in two classes, those who are enemy aliens whose petition for liberation will be heard by County Court Judges, and in the case of those interned under regulation 21 of the defence of Canada regulations, an advisory committee headed by Judge F. L. Smiley will hear their appeals against internment.

ROBERT ROSALIND DONAT - RUSSELL "THE CITADEL"

Great M-G-M Drama

Also Pete Smith
Shows at 3.30 - 7 - 9.10

CAPITOL SUMMER SIDE

"The Citadel" Starring
Rosalind Russell
And Robert Donat

The Citadel, A. J. Cronin's much discussed book has become even more dramatic on the screen. Robert Donat, noted screen artist is outstanding as the disillusioned doctor and Miss Russell as the distressed nurse. The picture drew large crowds to the Capitol Theatre last night and is on again this afternoon and evening.

A dramatic love story is unfolded in the account of the young surgeon who struggles through the minutes and marries a humble school-mistress. There is agonizing suspense when she descends into a mine arm of a man trapped beneath the fallen timber. This is drama when the deliriously dynamic sewer which authorities refuse to remove, son, two brilliant most capable actors, appear as fellow doctors with Donat and their performances are excellent.

Much credit goes also to Emlyn Williams as an official of the Ministry of Medical Aid Society. Mrs.
Clare as the sympathetic wife, Mrs.
Priestess and Mrs. Dudley Ward as the society girls. There are more than one hundred speaking parts in the play.

"The Citadel" is one of the most popular novels in years. It has been the best here and abroad since the M-G-M adaptation does it in honor.

eral favour. It is the experience of some operators that where too strong a solution is used the honey was tainted, also serious burning of the hives occurred when operators were careless in handling the crystal or solution.

Crystals must be taken to prevent robbing at the time the supers are removed, leaving no crumbs of honey exposed to the bees. The honey should be taken to a beehive house as soon as possible after removal and the honey extracted preferably while it is warm. If the honey house is artificially warm, if all the supers are taken off the hives and piled in the honey house and so on after the honey is extracted as soon after as possible.
To facilitate the uncapping of the honey, the uncapping knife should be kept hot. For this purpose a steam-heated knife or uncappingplane is used.

To prevent breaking the combs in the extractor it should be turned slowly until half the honey is removed from the side of the combs reverse the combs and extract the remaining honey. Where rapid extractors are used the reversing of combs is not necessary.

To strain the honey, strain it through wire screening and two thicknesses of cloth. The former will remove the large particles of wax.

The honey should be allowed to stand twenty-four hours in the tank before it is drawn into bottles as scum containing small particles of wax and pollen will appear on the top. This scum should be removed.
The removal of section honey is quite different than for honey which is to be extracted. In that any super of sections completely foe they become travel stained This is done by placing a bee escape board, fitted with two two-inch escapes, under the super before it is removed. It is removed. It is a good practice, when only a few colonies are used, to produce sections, to remove the sections that are well filled and capped over and place them with foundations.

The Morning After Taking Carler's Little Liver Pills

source of supply is located by scout bees. During such periods of inactivity among the field bees, one or more individuals will take to foraging on their own account. They will swoop around buildings, where preserving or candied making is in progress, or wherever fruit, cane sugar or other sweets. Damaged fruits or vegetables from which sweet juices may be extracted, especially attractive. Other individuals will attempt to pass the guards, or enter any unguarded hole or crevice in the beehive colony. Once these individuals obtain a load of nectar or honey or fruit juice they return to the hive, broadcast the glad tidings and shortly other foragers arrive in increasing numbers for their share of the loot. The guards of a weak colony may be overpowered in a very short time and thus understand the robbers will have to their own hive all the honey available, leaving the inmates of the weak hive no other course than starvation.

If the robber bees are successful in obtaining one load of stolen honey, or robbing out a hive, they become so bold that they attempt to enter stronger colonies, and in a short time a whole apiary may be in a turmoil with the bees so cross that humans or animals attempting to move around the apiary are severely stung. Such a condition makes it very difficult for the beekeeper to carry on the usual colony manipulations. In such houses, which are not bee-tight may be emptied of all exposed honey in a day or two.

Normally field bees fly with their legs tucked against their bodies but robber bees readily learn from experience that they can more easily fly by attacking guard bees by flying with their legs outstretched.
Thus robber bees can readily be identified from normal field bees by their method of flight. Furthermore, robber bees soon lose that downy appearance on their abdomens, because the body hairs get rubbed off when squeezing through narrow openings with a result that the abdomen becomes dark and shiny in appearance. It has been demonstrated that honeybees have a memory sense, which probably accounts for the phrase "once a robber bee, always a robber bee." Beekeepers might well bear this in mind for any colonies that develop a tendency for robbing should be very apt to resume the habit the following spring, therefore, robbing should be curbed as soon as possible after it is noticed. Robber bees may be trapped in a special robber cage and killed by the use of cyanogas powder or boiling water.

Beekeepers should be very cautious and not expose a weak colony for any length of time during a dearth of nectar. Honey houses or wherever honey is stored should be carefully checked to make sure that the buildings are bee-tight.
Furthermore, scrapings from hives, bits of comb, etc., should be carefully stored instead of being left indiscriminately around the apiary.
Additional care should be taken in the spring and fall to contract the entrances of weak or queenless colonies so that robber bees cannot readily gain entrance. Broken suppers, uneven covers, etc., should be repaired so that no cracks will be present to allow robber bees to gain entrance. American foulbrood spreads more rapidly through the action of robber bees than by ordinary apiary manipulation. This disease is dreaded by every well informed beekeeper because of the loss of honey crop or colonies of bees in many instances as well as the tremendous amount of work involved in ridding an apiary of an infection of this type. Beekeepers who have once experienced an epidemic of robbing in an apiary take extra precautions to prevent recurrence of such an incident.

Fifty children recently evacuated from the congested London areas, found happy times when Sir William Jovitt, the Attorney-General in the last British Government, received them "somewhere in England." Lady Jovitt and Miss Penelope, Sir William's daughters, are leading valuable aid in the matter of caring for the children and in the above photo, Sir William is shown giving one of his little guests a ride on his foot while another "gazes up" for the next ride, and, incidentally, Sir William's dog looks on in the most approving style.

BERLIN (Via Brussels)—Sept.
28.—(CP Hava)—The German army tonight prepared a "triumphal entry" into the wreckage of Warsaw as the German news agency proclaimed that the war on the eastern front was ended.

"The war in Poland ended at noon yesterday with the end of the battle of Warsaw," the agency said.
The German infantry, supported by artillery and planes, advanced "yard by yard" into the capital under a hail of sniper's bullets, according to the account.
