

RELIGIOUS SERVICES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

The services at St. Peter's Cathedral were well attended yesterday. The Rev. Canon Malone officiated and preached splendid sermons at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. Most of the Easter music was repeated. Next Sunday night at 7 o'clock, there will be a stately service in the Cathedral in connection with the King's Jubilee Celebration, which will be much the same form of service as used in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, the following day. The same prayers, lessons and versicles for the most part will be used. At the close of the service the National Anthem and a solemn Te Deum will be sung before the altar as an act of thanksgiving for His Majesty's reign. The public are invited. The service will be broadcast.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Reverend Mr. Raymond in his address to the younger members of the congregation took a key as his object lesson. By the use of this little contrivance we are let into secrets—secrets of what is locked up in a box or room. Life contains many secrets which are revealed to us by use of the keys to life. Two of these keys, the Rector went on to explain, are work and prayer. By diligent work and earnest prayer we are enabled to obtain the fulness of life which God has to offer us.

"Depart ye, depart ye, go ye out from thence, touch not the unclean thing; go ye out of the midst of her; be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord. For ye shall not go out, nor go by flight; for the Lord will go before you and the God of Israel will be your rearward."—Isaiah 52: 11 and 12, was the text of Mr. Raymond's sermon for the morning.

The writer in this passage has given us a dual picture—that of a company of warriors carrying on a warfare and that of a company of priests carrying a sacred deposit. To us this applies to life as a journey or pilgrimage which goes on from day to day, month to month and from year to year in which we are to carry the sacred deposit He has given us, to the journey's end.

One of the conditions coincident and really necessary to the following of this command is that we live a life of separation—separation from the common things of life, separation from those who are not going on His journey. This separation will enable us to be clean and pure and in love with God who will guide and direct our lives if we only give ourselves up to Him.

During the taking of the offering the choir sang very acceptably the anthem "And Behold," Caleb Simper.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

At both the services in Trinity United Church, Rev. Hugh Miller was the preacher. His morning text was from the words of Jesus recorded in St. John's Gospel, Chapter 9, verse 4—"I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day; for the night cometh when no man can work."

There is much to be learned by watching a master craftsman at his work. It was thus the disciples of Jesus learned a great deal, and we may do likewise. One thing that impresses us as we watch the Master is the urgency of the task. It was urgent because of its nature, giving men freedom and life. Secondly, Jesus worked under a divine compulsion, "I must work"—it was a God imposed task. So we must do the work God has for us for if we leave it unfinished someone else must take it up. The opportunity is limited. "The night cometh." Therefore we must make full use of our allotted time.

We observe also the spirit in which Jesus worked. He did not suffer Himself to be deterred by envy, prejudice, unreasonable criticism, or anything in the pettiness of his workers or of those around whom he worked.

One of the most marvelous things about Christ was His faith. Despite the magnitude of His work, the seeming inadequacy of the means at His disposal, and the apparent failure of His efforts He did not lose His faith.

So it is for us to do the work God has given us to do with the same sense of urgency in the same spirit and with the same faith.

Some reasons for our faith in immortality were considered in the evening discourse, which was based on the text from Job 14, 14—"If a man die shall he live again?"

First, there is the desire to live after the experience we call death. This is instinctive. It is found in the most primitive races, and in all stages of civilization. And even when obscured and for a time forgotten, the instinctive desire for immortality returns again. We believe our Creator does not mock us when He implants in us this universal hope.

And there is the dissatisfaction with our present life and its accomplishments, "So much to do, so little done." The greater and worthier our plans, the surer it is that we shall not complete them. But God never denies his people any good thing without preparing some better thing for them.

by Miss Margaret Sterns in the former and Mr. George Johnson in the latter.

At the Sunday School a special missionary programme was carried out. The Mission Band rendered a Spring Song, Jennie Lowther sang a solo, and a letter was read from Mr. Walter Mutch of Southport, who is now on the teaching staff of the Indian Residential School at Norway House, Manitoba.

ST. DUNSTAN'S BASILICA

A triduum to commemorate the closing of holy year was brought to a close at St. Dunstan's Basilica by a holy year beginning at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The sermon, which was preached by His Excellency Bishop O'Sullivan was followed by Pontifical Benediction. Rev. Louis Dougan assisted as deacon, and Rev. Frederick Cass as subdeacon.

The service brought to a close holy year commemorating the 19th century since the crucifixion of Christ and was in keeping with the principal religious event at Lourdes, France.

The Corpus Christi choir under the direction of Mr. W. J. Brown, and Miss Bees; Blanchard, organist, furnished the music.

HOLY REDEEMER CHURCH

Yesterday morning at the Holy Redeemer Church Masses were at the usual Sunday hours, High Mass being celebrated at 10.30 by Rev. H. I. Fleming, C.S.S.R. It was announced that at the Masses that next Sunday night at the Most Blessed Sacrament, the Te Deum was chanted, and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was given by Rev. H. I. Fleming, C.S.S.R. The singing was rendered by the Mixed Choir at both morning and evening services, the choir being under the direction of Rev. C. O'Hara, C.S.S.R.

CENTRAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The theme of the morning service was "Follow Me," based on Christ's words to St. Peter, "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?"

The development was as follows: "Cast the net upon the right side of the ship and ye shall find." "Come and dine." "Follow thou me." This program is personal and individual, and leads to health, safety to living, and to confidence. The special music included a gospel song, "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind."

The service of the evening was evangelistic in nature and included a period of evangelistic singing by the congregation. The theme of the evening was "Yea, Yea, or Nay, Nay," the text being first Corinthians 1:17-23 and dealt with the personal commitment of the life to the positive religion of Jesus Christ, which commitment demands a close relation of profession of faith to character.

During the service the choir sang the anthem, "I Will Forgive."

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

Yesterday at the morning service the Independent Order of Odd-fellows, and the Rebekahs attended the service of worship with the congregation of the Baptist Church. The audience taxed the capacity of the Church and Schoolroom. Dr. A. C. Vincent spoke on "The Good Samaritan's Way," reading as his text Luke 10:30, "A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves," he referred to Jesus as the master of story tellers, whose stories are filled with meaning, ally with the facts of human life. To illustrate a truth, to answer a question this beautiful story was told.

Vividly picturing the scene he introduced the four characters, the unsuspecting traveller, robbed and left with deadly wounds, the priest whose office it was to mediate between God and man, but sadly only a priest by profession, the Levite, set aside to wait on the house of God, but with no kindly human sympathies, the Samaritan upon whom the traveller could have no claim, save the one recognized by the kindly rescuer, the call of the common need of humanity.

Carrying the incident into our day and conditions an impressive picture of the duties implied in common Christian brotherhood was set before the hearers. The religion that moves the Samaritan to the deed of mercy on the Jericho road is now, as it was then, the religion that is vital, effective, persuasive in its appeal.

The Ode was very finely sung by Mr. A. R. Gillis, the congregation joining in the chorus. A choral "Beautiful Garden of Prayer" was sung by the choir, with the solos taken by Mrs. A. C. Vincent and Mr. R. D. Quigley.

Dr. Vincent spoke again to a large congregation at the evening service on "The Message of the Church to a Crooked World."

At this service the scriptural ordinance of Believer's baptism was administered. Mr. R. D. Quigley and Mr. V. L. Dingwell sang with fine effect "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Mrs. Helen Callbeck, organist gave competent leadership to the music of the day.

PAPER ON WAGNER'S LIFE AND MUSIC

A very interesting paper on Wagner's life and music was read by Mrs. A. B. Cosh at the meeting of the Women's Music Club on Saturday, April 27th, and in addition a program of vocal and piano music, selected from the works of Wagner and other German composers was greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Cosh began her paper with the following quotation which had been prophetically penned by Jean Paul at the time of Wagner's birth in 1813—"Hitherto the God of Light with his right hand tossed the gift of poetry, and with his left hand the gift of music to two beings so far apart from one another that we still await the coming of the man who shall be able at one and the same time to compose a complete opera."

Mrs. Cosh described how as a child Wilhelm Richard Wagner had strummed a little on the piano but had had far more interest in mythological tales—"Even then in dim fancy the tales of the Gods of Valhalla must have been taking form in his brain." His interest in poetry brought him under the influence of Shakespeare's works which fired his imagination for a time. A little later the genius of Beethoven burst upon him and he spent much time copying the works of his new hero. After some years his conducting and reading of the Beethoven symphonies attracted a great deal of attention. The incomparable singing of Wilhelmine Schroeder Devrient also influenced him and inspired him to pursue his chosen path of opera writing.

After many unsuccessful years in Leipzig, Riga and Paris, Wagner's opera "Rienzi" met with a great reception and he became conductor-in-chief of the Dresden Theatre Royal. Critics soon spoke of him as ushering in "a new era of music," but the new operas "Tannhauser" and "The Flying Dutchman" were received in a disappointing manner.

However, in 1850 at Weimar, Franz Liszt who had become Wagner's devoted friend, conducted the first performance of "Lohengrin" which proved so memorable a production that the success of Wagner's movement in Germany was dated from that night.

Wagner next began to make plans for his vast work, the entire story of the Niebelung Ring, but before he completed it he wrote a shorter work which embodied all his theories of the music-drama, his "Tristan and Isolde" which was performed in Bayreuth in 1876 and Wagner lived to see still another opera—"Parsifal" published.

The service of the evening was evangelistic in nature and included a period of evangelistic singing by the congregation. The theme of the evening was "Yea, Yea, or Nay, Nay," the text being first Corinthians 1:17-23 and dealt with the personal commitment of the life to the positive religion of Jesus Christ, which commitment demands a close relation of profession of faith to character.

During the service the choir sang the anthem, "I Will Forgive."

and nothing definite has been done. Naturally, the question of submarines plays a role in our considerations for the future."

The reports stirred foreign diplomats here and brought hundreds of inquiries at the Reichswehr (army) Ministry and the Foreign Office. Officials were as reticent, however, as they were before the recent public announcement of the Fatherland's rebuilt air force and "regenerated" army.

"U-boats might be an excellent starting point for the new navy, experts said, because they were the cheapest sea weapon.

A recent official visit by representatives of the British armaments firm of Vickers, Ltd., was believed in foreign military circles to furnish clues to the rumors that orders already had been placed for submarines.

"These military experts now believe the Vickers men have been here to sell submarine patents. A group of German naval experts will go to London 10 days hence to discuss the Reich's armaments at sea with the British Naval Office, and this was adduced to support denials that construction of U-boats is actually under way.

May Be Legend Of Ponce de Leon Is True

(By Central Press Canadian)

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., April 23—

Findings made at the spot where Ponce de Leon sought the fabled Fountain of Youth, Easter Sunday, 422 years ago, have aroused interest among archaeologists and directed new attention to the expedition of the Spaniard.

Ponce de Leon, warrior, explorer, discovered, on Easter Sunday in 1512 the shores of this sunny land, and named it Florida from the Spanish Pascua Florida, meaning Feast of Flowers.

He found the Indian village of Seloy, and on this spot thousands of tourists annually visit Fountain of Youth Park, where gushes a spring connected with him, by legend.

It was here where workmen were excavating to plant orange trees, that the new archaeological discovery was made.

Now 80 skeletons lie under the shelter of an Indian ceremonial lodge of cedar posts and poles erected over the area.

These skeletons are believed to be those of Indians who peopled the vicinity of the "Fountain of Youth" when Ponce de Leon arrived, and possibly of the first Indian converts to Christianity.

So far over 100 burials have been exposed. The race was very tall, the structural bones being of unusual size. The skeletons are in remarkable state of preservation. J. Ray Dickson, the archaeologist on location, attributes this fact to the type of soil, and the mineral content of the bones themselves.

The well developed and well preserved teeth which he has found, still in the jaws and in the apparent hardness of these people, may have given rise to the legend of the "Fountain of Youth," which attracted the ageing Ponce de Leon to Florida.

NEW R. C. N. V. R. HEADQUARTERS—Work at the Sims building, which is to be the new headquarters of the R. C. N. V. R., is proceeding apace. Workmen have been employed remodeling the interior of the building to make it suitable for the training and work of the naval reserves, who will move into the building as soon as the work is completed.

UNSATISFACTORY DUMP—Strong complaints are being made regarding the present condition of the dump at the eastern end of the city. It is suggested that visitors arriving by train get an impression anything but favorable to the city from the condition of this dump, and that from a sanitary as well as from an esthetic point of view it should be cleaned up at once.

SPLENDID DISPLAY—Very convincing proof of the wonderful work being accomplished by the Catholic Social Guild of Holy Redeemer Parish may be seen in the large display window of Reddin Bros. The window is artistically arranged with striking displays of handcrafted work, in the form of sewing, which the young ladies of the Guild have designed and completed at their regular weekly meetings. Great credit is due the Sisters of St. Martha, who have taught the members of the Guild to do such useful and skillful work.

Mr. John Currie, who has spent the past several months with his sister, Miss Flora Currie, at their home, Green Street, left last week on return to California, where he has made his home for the past thirty years.

Winners of Mementos

Winners of mementos presented by the Countess of Bessborough for the best individual performance by a man and woman respectively were then announced by Mr. Wade. The winner of the man's prize was Moray Sinclair, of the Masqueurs Club of Winnipeg, for his playing of Smirnov in Anton Tchekov's "The Bear." The memento for the best woman's performance was awarded to Brenda Ferguson, who played Jeanne d'Arc in the trial scene from "St. John" presented by the Embassy Players of Vancouver.

Mr. Wade confessed here again that there had been some very close marking before the winners were finally determined. For the man's prize Vincent G. Perry, who played St. Simeon in the London Community Drama Guild's presentation of "St. Simeon Stylites," had run Mr. Sinclair very close. For the woman's award Thora Adams, who played Ada Mason in the play "Vindication" of the Halifax Theatre Arts Guild, was right on the heels of Miss Ferguson.

Special Awards

It was announced subsequently that the Countess of Bessborough had agreed to present two mementos for individual performances of outstanding merit, in addition to those given for the best man and woman, and that these had been awarded to Mr. Perry and Miss Adams.

The Sir Barry Jackson Challenge Trophy presented to the group giving the best presentation of a Canadian play at the final festival was won by the Play-makers Club of Toronto who gave "God Caesar" for Marjorie Price. The cash prize of $100 given by the festival committee to the author of the best play judged as a dramatic composition written by a person domiciled in Canada, was also awarded to Marjorie Price for the same play.

tion and in incidental features of the Cathedral service.

This move to infuse more vitality and color into the Royal procession has had a tonic effect upon all having a monetary interest in the jubilee arrangements.

In addition to the Sovereign's escort of Life Guards, preceding and following the royal carriage, more than 200 cavalry of the 1st and 2nd Royal Horse Artillery will figure in the procession. They will appear in full dress uniforms, rarely seen these days.

ADD TO COLOR

In the Cathedral, too, the Honorable Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, resplendent in scarlet with their helmets plumed in swansdown, will line the nave and the chancel. The Yeomen of the Guard, commonly but erroneously called scarlet and gold, will add notably to the general effect.

Troops also will line the whole route between the palace and Cathedral. A naval guard of honor will be posted at the palace with an air force guard in the immediate vicinity. The guard at the Cathedral will be provided by the honorable artillery company which claims to be the oldest regiment in the world, tracing its ancestry back to the bow-and-arrow period, and for centuries the city of London's crack volunteer regiment.

LOWER TREND ON MT'L. MART

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) MONTREAL, April 23—The Montreal Exchange struck another down-current Saturday and dropped to lower levels as pressure which made its appearance towards the close of Friday's session increased. The whole list reacted behind the leadership of a group of selected stocks and demand dried up to be replaced by heavy selling.

Metal shares again drew chief attention, reversing their form of Thursday and the early part of Friday to side-slip lower as the price of silver dropped on world markets. Consolidated steelmakers closed with a loss of 3 points at 187, nine points lower than the new 1935 high touched on Friday.

Alcohol shares were also subjected to pressure after reports Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company had nearly completed negotiations towards an important sale of its matured stock to the United States had induced heavy buying Friday. Dominion Coal preferred and St. Lawrence Corporation were up fractions. Total sales were 8,888 shares; bonds $6,700.

Plan Monster Bazaar To Aid Hospital

Among the many worthy institutions in our province there is one which has already done an incalculable amount of good and which is still functioning in a most efficient and modern manner, dispensing relief to sick and suffering, and employing during all times the true principles of charity. The institution referred to is the Charlotte town Hospital and definite plans have been made to hold a monster Bazaar in Charlottetown during the last week of June for the purpose of wiping out a maintenance debt which has accumulated during the past number of years.

Through the generous co-operation of a number of the leading merchant firms of the city a special lottery is being held in connection with this event.

The Bazaar, reminiscent of the old time affairs of this nature, will be put over on a big scale. The market building, through the generosity of the City Council has been secured and everything points to a big time during the last week of June. Tempting meals will be served and the colorful displays of the many booths, stocked with worthy while commodities of all kinds—say nothing of the concessionaires, games, bands, etc., will make the occasion a memorable one.

The entire proceeds of this draw, the first public appeal in the history of the hospital will go to liquidate the maintenance debt, making it possible to carry further the splendid work so capably being done by the Charlottetown Hospital.

"If the situation is sufficiently serious to require it, we must be prepared to seize these outlying bases to prevent their development by the enemy as bases of operation against us."

"EMERGENCY"

Andrews did not explain what he considered an "emergency," but prior to reciting his list of possible "enemy" bases, declared that "with Canada involved on the side of a hostile coalition, many land bases and sheltered water bases are available." At another point, however, he added "it is not believed Canada, unless forced to do so, would ever join a coalition against the United States."

Birthday Greetings

(By The Canadian Press) To P. J. (Pat) Mulqueen, chairman of the Canadian Olympic committee, one of the country's most beloved sportsmen. The white-haired track and field chieftain was a noted athlete back in the '90s. He was born in Toronto, April 29, 1879. He held a national reputation as a hurdler.
