5.80%—
and Safety

Months of high money rates have forced bond prices down to levels where many issues are attractive both for yield and likelihood of appreciation.

At the present time few issues are more attractive from the standpoint of safety and yield as New Brunswick Power Company 5 p. c. First Mortgage Bonds, due March 1, 1937, which sell for 95 and accrued interest to yield over 5.80 p. c.

We strongly recommend this issue from the viewpoint of safety and likelihood of appreciation.

The Wailing Wall

seems to spread peace alike over courtyard and wall and the forbidden mosque of Omar, that lies beyond. The silence is broken by the mutterings of a few aged Jews squatting on the ground in the shadow of the wall and wailing their lamentations as their fathers and forefathers have done for centuries at this, the nearest spot to which pious Jews will approach the site of the Temple now covered by the "Dome of the Rock."

On Fridays and on holy days the solitary worshippers give place to large congregations which chant their lamentation in unison to the leadership of a priest. An admirable translation of a typical service is given by Mr. Ormsby-Gore in an article on the Holy Places published a few years ago. It runs as follows:—

Leader.—For the palace that lies desolate. Response.—We sit in solitude and mourn.

Leader.—For the Temple that was destroyed. R.—We sit, &c.

Leader.—For the walls that are overthrown. R.—We sit, &c.

Leader.—For our majesty that is departed. R.—We sit, &c.

Leader.—For our great men who are dead. R.—We sit, &c.

Leader.—For our precious stones that are burned. R.—We sit, &c.

Leader.—For the priests that have stumbled. R.—We sit, &c.

Leader.—For our Kings who have departed. R.—We sit, &c.

During the time when the chant is sung leader and congregation work themselves into such a storm of weeping that the wall of the Temple is literally as well as metaphorically bathed in their tears.

Unfortunately these services have too often been the very cause of the controversies and actual conflicts that have raged beneath the wall. In justice to the Arab (who, too often, is labelled as the villain of the piece without proper study of the plot) it must always be remembered that the space in front of the wall is not only a "right of way" but, as acknowledged by the Colonial Office in a receipt White Paper, is actually Mohammedan property belonging to the charitable foundation of the Wakf. Not unnaturally, the Arabs resent any tendency by the Jews to appropriate the courtyard as a right, especially when the space is filled not by pious worshippers dressed in the robes of their forefathers and behaving with a dignity fitting their dress, but by a party of "Young Zionists" over on an excursion from Tel-Aviv complete with "gents' natty sports coats" and black velvet hats. Moreover, a certain lack of tact in erecting a wooden partition and laying down matting on the Day of Atonelement in September of last year was responsible not only for an unedifying conflict with the police but for an extraordinary irrelevant controversy rehearsed before the League Mandates Committee in Geneva.

The present clash seems to have spread far beyond the limits of the wall and even of Jerusalem, and passions on both sides appear to have run high. Whatever the causes may have been and wherever the blame may lie, it must be remembered that the British Government has hitherto been able to keep the peace in Palestine for year after year and through crisis after crisis with a bare handful of troops reinforced by a skeleton force of gendarmes.
