Happenings of the Week

The fact that the Duchess of York has decided to dress her two daughters alike is expected to inspire many mothers to do likewise. The two little Princesses were exactly similar, raspberry pink serge coats and bonnets trimmed with rosebuds when they drove in London one recent afternoon. Neither child wore gloves. This was one of the few occasions when Princess Elizabeth has been seen with any covering on her golden curls, though Princess Margaret usually wears a bonnet over her darker ringlets.

Princess Margaret Rose is reported to be quite an expert walker now, and has learned to wave her hand in the regal manner adopted by her elder sister.

While Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose spend the morning in Hyde Park, it is now the custom for the two little girls to take a drive in the afternoon with the two nannies and go further afield, often as far as Highgate and Hampstead.

Lately they have taken the opportunity of inspecting the Inner Circle Gardens, formerly the Botanical Gardens, which have been opened to the public, from their Palace Victoria. Princess Elizabeth is particularly fond of the rock garden.

Colonel the Hon. Murray MacLaren, with Mrs. MacLaren and Miss MacLaren had the pleasure of renewing many old friendships during their short stay in the city on Thursday.

Many happy returns of the day were extended to His Honour, Lieut Governor Dalton Thursday, on the occasion of his 81st birthday.

A recent letter from the Chief Justice and Mrs. Mathieson tells of an enjoyable visit to Paris and their safe return to London in good health.

Mr. and Mrs. James Paton left on Wednesday for Halifax to attend the graduation of Mr. Paton's grand-daughter Miss Kathleen Logan from the Halifax Conservatory of Music.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Storey are the guests of Capt. T. G. and Mrs. Taylor, having arrived Tuesday afternoon by car, moving here from South Bend Indiana for the Summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. C. Scarth are motoring to Windsor, N. S. today to be present at the closing exercises at Edgemoor where their daughter Miss Virginia Scarth is in attendance.

SCIENCE FINDS NEW MERITS IN ALL-BRAN

Has "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation, and Iron for Blood

In the past ten years millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN the safe "natural way" to overcome common constipation—with the headaches, backaches, loss of appetite and energy, that so often result. Behind this success is the proved effectiveness of ALL-BRAN. Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN brings two things needed to overcome common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is like the bulk in lettuce. Inside the body it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

How much more pleasant it is to use this delicious cereal than to abuse your system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily with milk or cream—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation—in serious cases, with every meal. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

They will also visit relatives in Ireland and England before returning home.

Mrs. Philip Palmer's many friends regret her present indisposition.

The many friends of Mrs. Charles Kennedy will be sorry to hear that she is a patient at the Wickersham Hospital N. Y. for the past week, having undergone an operation. Mrs. Kennedy is the wife of the late Dr. Charles Kennedy of N. Y. Her recovery is looked forward to by her many friends.

The hostesses at the Summerside Golf Club this afternoon are Mrs. Reginald Saunders, Miss Mona Saunders, Miss Martha MacFarlane and Mrs. Enid MacFarlane.

Mrs. Benjamin Sharp entertained at her home on Granville Street on Thursday evening at five tables of Bridge.

Mrs. G. R. McQuarrie of Summerside gave an informal afternoon tea on Wednesday in honour of her sister, Mrs. J. Mills, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Levi S'phant.

What the Fashionables are Wearing

Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Furnished With Every Pattern
By Annabelle Worthington

A small patterned crepe silk is most satisfactory and flattering to the heavier figure. And don't you love the light topped bodice? Note the fluid slenderness of the bodice the way it is drawn snugly across the front, tying youthfully at the left side. The bias seaming reduces the hip bulk.

It would be difficult to find a smarter and more suitable model for the matron or those whose figures can support a few slimming lines.

For summer wear, it would be delightfully lovely fashioned of handkerchief linen print with plain contrast or of white tub silk.

Style No. 429 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material with 2 1/4 yards of 39-inch contrasting.

Quitter Wife Who Would Tie Her Husband to Her Home Town

Dear Miss Dix—Who has the right to say where a family shall live the husband or wife? Mr. and Mrs. X. have been married several years. They have one child. Through a personal friend, a good record and a streak of good luck Mr. X. has been offered a very much better job in another State than he has now. It is with a large established concern, and is really a big opportunity. Mrs. X. refuses to go because she doesn't want to leave the old town in which she was raised, her old friends, and she doesn't want to go so far away from her mother. Mr. X. must give his decision to the company in a few days. What should he say?

BACHELOR.

ANSWER: He should say "yes" and thank you, too, and go. If his wife prefers her mother to him and is more anxious to stay near her old friends than she is to help him succeed, leave her with them. That kind of woman isn't made of the right wife material and she would be small loss.

The women who helped make this country great were not the poor, weak creatures who couldn't leave mamma or part from the ladies in their bridge foursome and who couldn't bear the thought of going away from Main Street where they knew everybody and could gossip with the butcher and baker and candlestick maker. No, our pioneer grandmothers loved their husbands enough to dare any adventure with them and to go with them wherever fortune beckoned, so they tied their sunbonnets under their chins and climbed into the ox wagon and fared forth into the wilderness to face whatever danger might lie in store for them.

And the true wife still does that today. She goes with her husband to distant cities where very often for a time she is as lonely as she would be in any desert island. She goes with him to foreign lands where she learns to adapt herself to strange new ways of living. She freezes with him in cold countries and bakes with him in tropical ones, but there is never a complaint out of her. She is a brave soldier, fighting with her husband side by side, keeping him well and strong and fit by making him a comfortable home, keeping up his courage by putting new heart in him with her devotion and protecting him from that loneliness that saps a man's strength and eats away his bravery and makes him turn quitter and run back home a whipped man.

Of course, it is a hard thing for a woman to leave her mother and her brothers and sisters and go off among strangers with her husband but that is what she promised to do when she got married. "Forsooth, all others to cleave unto him," and she is a mighty poor sport if she doesn't do it. A husband's claims upon his wife come before her family, and she has no right to sacrifice his interests to be with them. Yes, many women do this.

They keep their husbands tied to cheap jobs in little towns where they have no possible chance of ever doing more than make a poor living by hard work, rather than go to some distant city where there is a chance of making a fortune. I have even known women to make their husbands give up their professions because it involved the men being away from home part of the time or moving about from place to place, while the women wanted to stay put in one spot.

I think a man is very foolish and weak who lets his wife tie him to her mother's apron strings or nail him to Squandunk because she doesn't want to leave the choir; because in the end the sacrifice of his ambition means no happiness to any one. He is always miserable and discontented and resentful of his wife's having stood in the way of his opportunity and that does not make for peace and harmony between them. And although his wife may have kept him from success, she wants the fruits of success, and wonders why he hasn't got along better in the world.

So my earnest advice to Mr. X., and to every other man whose wife is balking him of his ambition, is to follow his star. Go where opportunity waits. Don't let a silly woman's prejudice stand in the way of your career. Your wife may protest she won't go with you, but if you go alone she will come toddling after you.

She may shed a few tears over leaving mother and the girls, but she will soon wipe them away. She will adjust herself to her new environment and make new friends and boast of what you have done and how you a thousand times better than she would if you had let her bulldoze you into giving way to her and staying in Rabbit Track and clerking in the village store.

The Plains of Abraham

By James Oliver Curwood

A rumble of fresh-growing thunder was advancing out of the west, and preceding it came a roar of wind and a deluge of rain. Lightning cut once more in vivid flashings across the narrow panes of the bedroom window, and the roof seemed to bend and groan under a sudden torrential bombardment. Jeems fought in unison with the elements. His spirit mounted savagely with the turmoil. He had his enemy down and was thrusting his head into wet and slimy mud. He was beating his face and eyes, and spilling his splend'd raiment, and pulling out his hair. And Marie Antoinette was looking on. With the gorgeous red velvet in her hands and her eyes big and starry, she was watching him as he choked and kicked and pommelled the life out

For Baby's Bath

More than that of any other member of the family, baby's tender, delicate skin needs the greatest care and attention. The soft soothing oils in Baby's Own Soap make it specially suitable for babies, and its clinging fragrance reminds one of the roses of France which help to inspire it.

CHAPTER III

Henri and his wife sat up late with Hepsibah Adams, for this time Hepsibah had come with a set and determined purpose to his sister's home. The trader's countenance had grown stern, and Catherine's cheeks were like those of a pale nun in the candle-light. In Henri Bulant's face were still the cheer and good humor and untroubled equanimity of confidence and faith that Hepsibah, with the darkest pictures he had painted, had been unable to disturb.

"You Look So Tired"

MUSCULAR fatigue is soon overcome by rest and sleep. Not so when your nerves are tired from anxiety and mental worries. Then you can't rest or sleep—the nerves are excited and irritable—unchecked, your condition becomes daily worse until there develops a nervous breakdown, failure of the heart or other vital organs. Be warned by the early indications of nervous troubles such as sleeplessness and irritability and restore energy to the nervous system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the time-tested treatment for disorders of the nerves.
