Patty Comes

THE TWO SISTERS Chapter 8

The week that followed Patty's luncheon party was cold and wet. An extra week of winter brown in late to discourage them.

Millie was quick to see where she had been wrong in her choice. That a superfluity were the two essentials.

"I can't be expected to do better, with nowhere to shop but this dingy town," Millie said by way of defence.

"He's showing off because you're so plain," Millie explained with all the scorn and disillusionment of only a long married woman is able to.

"You are a stranger, though," she said. "Humphrey knew you as a child, he used to buy you dolls and dolls, and before you went away fans and bead necklaces when you went to school."

"I hope they—and you too, won't think I'm putting on airs. They all now know that I was a paid companion to Mrs. Grainger-Munn, and they'll be sure to talk."

"They will," Millie answered emphatically. "They talk about everything here. I guess I do too."

Can't Express Her Gratitude

NOVA SCOTIA WOMAN IS TOLD BY HUSBAND THAT SHE IS A FIGURE OF HEALTH

"I just can't begin to express my gratitude for what Tanlac has done for me, not only for myself, but also for my husband," said Mrs. Annie McEneaney, of Eastern Passage, N. S.

"I had been in wretched health for several years and was in a bad way. I couldn't walk a short distance without getting all out of breath. After eating a lump like lead would form in the pit of my stomach and I had awful attacks of heartburn."

"Tanlac had helped my husband so much I started taking it too. I have a wonderful appetite now, everything agrees with me and I never felt better in my life. I told my husband this morning he looked the picture of health and he said he could return the compliment."

"There's nothing else to do in such a place as this but gossip of your neighbors. But you have such a nice way with you that they won't accuse you of putting on airs. Only you see, you have changed so much that you are really a stranger to all of us."

"I hope you'll all like me, then when you know me better," she said. "Oh, I wouldn't worry about that," Millie assured her. "Anyway, Humphrey has taken a big enough fancy to you. And I suppose the boys around here will all go crazy about you. There were some pretty much so when you went away."

"I'm glad you had a couple of years away from this town and all those people. I wish I had." Discontent spread over her face like a dark cloud. "The only thing is, you may not want to settle down here again."

"I shouldn't think I was a stranger," she said. "I was ten years you were married, he knew both of us for two years or more."

of inheriting those fine qualities of honesty and integrity. It must be a source of pleasure to you as it is to all of us to see all your children home to complete the family circle and take part in the festivities of this joyous anniversary.

You are both young yet almost in the prime of manhood and womanhood. You have reached the stage, however, when years will glide more rapidly by.

"I hope you'll all like me, then when you know me better," she said. "Oh, I wouldn't worry about that," Millie assured her.

WOMEN OF CANADA—Today you hold the greatest power ever held by the women of any nation in the history of the world. The fate of the Dominion rests in your hands.

Through the long struggle of the war you proved yourselves equal with men in stern, unselfish patriotism and fervent devotion to duty. In war you gave your husbands, sons, brothers, lovers and carried Canada over the top.

WOMEN OF CANADA—in this election you can compel all the factions in the Dominion to pull together. With all communities and interests from the Atlantic to the Pacific acting in unison and in harmony, Canada will take its rightful place as one of the foremost nations of the world.

The only thing that can hold back Canada's prosperity is lack of national unity. WOMEN—Vote for a united Canada—compel unity. United, Canada is safe; divided, Canada faces the financial collapse that is at present engulfing half the world.

What Canada needs to ensure unity is wise, constructive, impartial government. MEIGHEN is the leader of the Government which gave you the vote. He is the only leader in Canada today who stands firm for policies which are a guarantee of unity.

Make Ready For Winter Port Work S. JOHN, Nov. 26.—A radio was received at C. P. R. headquarters to the effect that the C. P. R. liner Tunisian will arrive here Sunday about noon.

James McKenna, travelling passenger agent of the C. P. R. and J. O. Apps, general agent of baggage, mail and milk, arrived in the city yesterday from Montreal to arrange for the season's activities.

At the present time the C. P. R. elevators in West St. John contain 1,042,000 bushels; 980,000 in the new elevator and 60,000 in the old.

Some freight is beginning to arrive here for the steamers. Only a small amount has been received to date as the port of Montreal is still open and traffic is still being routed there.

A man in Regina has just got a dictionary as a premium for subscribing to a local newspaper and has discovered that a plebiscite is only an election.
