St. Louis Beaten In Opening Tilt

Philadelphia Athletics Take Gabby Street's Red Birds Into Camp 6 To 2.

By Allan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1.—The Philadelphia Athletics unlimbered their heavy artillery on the enemy's home battleground today, fired two booming salvos that crushed the youthful Cardinal sharpshooter, Paul Derringer, and moved triumphantly toward their goal of a third world baseball championship.

The final score was 6 to 2 as the Athletics, in a characteristically skillful exhibition, subdued St. Louis in the opening skirmish of the big series behind the somewhat erratic left handed pitching of the great Robert Moses Grove.

COLORFUL CROWD

A howling, hopeful crowd of 38,529 hometown customers came out to cheer the Cardinals in their fresh attempt to stop Connie Mack's baseball steamroller. They saw the great Grove hit briskly, touched for two runs in the very first inning, only to steady down and pitch himself, out of a clock of critical situations in holding the National League champions scoreless for the rest of the game.

The Red Birds outhit the world champions, 12 to 11, but the big guns of the A's were more destructive, and accomplished the downfall of the youthful Derringer in decisive fashion. Four runs in a wild third inning, when Derringer lost control, forced in the tying run and then a single by Jimmy Foxx with the bases full, decided the game.

SIMMONS' HOMER

As a parting salute, Al Simmons drove a home run into the left field bleachers in the seventh inning with Mickey Cochrane on base. After that wallop the fading Cardinal hopes flickered out, Derringer yielding to a pinch hitter and Sylvester Johnson held the A's hitless in the last two innings. The Athletics won like the favorites and world champions that they were in blasting the hopes that the National Leaguers had placed with such confidence on the youthful and inexperienced Derringer, a "freshman" big leaguer making his first world series start.

GROVE A SENSATION

For two innings, as he struck out four of the six batsmen to face him, the 25 year old Kentucky boy looked like the sensation he was expected to be. He fanned Bishop and Haas to start the game and struck out Foxx and Miller in the second inning to the accompaniment of wild applause.

It was a brilliant start, too good to be true, in fact, as events in the third inning quickly demonstrated. Jimmy Dykes led the first big attack of the A's, and before it was over hits by Dib Williams, Mule Haas and Jimmy Foxx, interspersed with passes to Cochrane and Simmons accounted for four runs. Dykes was cut down between third and home as the Cardinals fought to stem the tide, but Derringer's wildness and the pinch hitting of the A's was too much to be controlled.

Derringer rallied with a fine show of gameness to check the Athletics in the next three innings, but the big act was put on by Simmons, in the seventh, and Lefty Grove bore down in the stretch to choke off any lingering danger in the Cardinal bats.

It was not a brilliant day for the famous southpaw, although he had remarkably fine control and was master of the situation in the pinches after the first inning, aided by the steady and at times spectacular defense put up by his team mates.

Grove was hit harder than Derringer, however, all the day. He fanned seven Cardinals, whereas Derringer's deceptive curves set down nine of the A's on strikes.

WENT AFTER "LEFTY"

The Cardinals jumped on Grove at the start with such vehemence that it looked like a very bad afternoon indeed for the southpaw, who set a new winning percentage record this year in the American league. Robert Moses fanned Andy High, the third base replacement for the injured "Sparky" Adams, but was touched for successive singles by Roettger, Frank Frisch, and Jim Bottomley, followed by a double by "Pepper" Martin, youthful outfielder. This accounted for the only two markers the National Leaguers posted.

WAS LUCKY

In at least three other innings, the fourth, sixth and seventh, Grove was lucky to escape without scoring damage. Jimmy Wilson hit into a double play in the fourth to waste a pair of hits by Martin and Gelbert. In the sixth, a double steal by Chick Hafey and Martin, with one out, had the Athletics momentarily up in the air, but Wilson and Gelbert lacked the punch to bring anybody across the plate.

THE SEVENTH

Roettger and Frisch singled in succession in the seventh with two out, but Jim Bottomley could do nothing better to improve this situation than ground out to Max Bishop. Altogether nine Cardinals were stranded on the bases, and their only consistent batsman was the youthful Martin, who collected three safe blows off the fireball king in his first world series appearance.

A GREAT CATCH

Al Simmons contributed the most sensational defensive gesture of the game when he dashed back and speared Wilson's drive with his gloved hand up against the wall in deep left field in the eighth inning. The great outfielder, however, shared honors with Williams, the kid shortstop, who justified his selection for world series duty for the first time by handling seven chances perfectly and contributing two hits to the Athletics' attack.

THE SEVENTEENTH

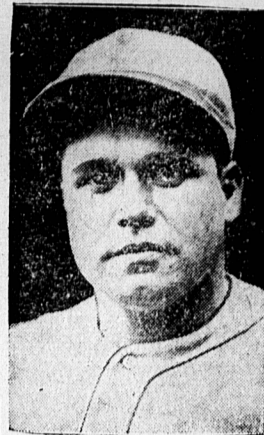

Today's triumph was the seventeenth for the American League forces in the last twenty world series contests. It was a bitter blow to their rivals, whether or not it forecasts another sweeping conquest for the house of Mack. The advantage now is all with the A's, who will play their second ace pitcher, George Earnshaw, tomorrow, against the Cardinal southpaw, Bill Hallahan, and then move to Philadelphia for three games next week. The worst that can befall the world champions is an even break before they hit the home grounds, where they have been almost invincible now for three straight years.

The opening game, minus much trumpeting or fanfare, drew a crowd that was barely 1,000 short of the park's capacity. The receipts, $165,161 were about $4,000 short of the record for St. Louis.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

(By Tec.)

The World Series

The shadow of Connie Mack's Athletics is again falling across the landscape, and the bats of Cochrane, Simmons and Foxx are beating a tattoo that sounds ominous to the ears of "Gabby" Street's cohorts. Put these three behind the stellar pitching of Grove, Earnshaw and Walborg and it can be understood why the Athletics are going to be hard to take.

According to the official records, dating back to 1884 when Providence faced the Metropolitans no ball club has won three straight championships in three successive years. The Cubs, Giants, Athletics and Yankees and others have turned the trick twice, but they have all been halted in their charge.

ancient glory will seem to have passed from the town.

"Yet the going was inevitable. It was inevitable as soon as professional hockey passed from what it was in the old days to Big Business passed, to United States magnates to whom the traditions of the game meant little and the receipts of the cash register everything. The old brave spirit of the game, community pride in local heroes, friendly rivalry between Canadian cities, the legends and the exploits of the great teams and stars of the past—these things were taken from hockey. What took its place were aggregations of Canadian players hired by United States business men to play the game in American cities for American audiences, simply as a spectacle. Many of these audiences never understood hockey, never imbibed its real spirit, but these things didn't matter. If money and ballyhoo could get crowded auditoriums in cities like New York and Chicago and Boston, with consequent rich dividends to promoters, what mattered hockey spirit and tradition? It was money, and only money, that talked.

The Coming Meeting

One of the most important matters that will come up at the next annual meeting of the A. A. U., of Canada on December 3 will be the plan of national registration. The idea is to have one card that will be recognized by all branches and allied bodies at present members of the Union and also by athletic organizations of other countries. It is suggested that a uniform rate of 50c per card of this sum, i. e., 10c should be retained by the National Body. Under this rule, the Y. M. C. A.'s throughout Canada, who, it is understood have charged their members nothing for the cards, if the new proposal goes into effect they will be compelled to charge for the cards in all probability since the Dominion body will charge 10c a card.

Perfect Ball

Only six contests in all baseball history have been classed as really perfect baseball games—games in which no player reached first base on a base on balls, being hit by a pitched ball, or through error.

INTERNATIONAL GOLF FINAL IS ASSURED

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 1. (By the Canadian Press)—An international final is assured in the Canadian Ladies open golf championship. As a result of today's quarter-final round of the tournament, two Canadians and two United States players will oppose each other in the semi-final tomorrow.

Continuing her impressive display Miss Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., eliminated Miss Marion Holms of Santa Cruz, Cal., five up and four to play today. The other surviving United States entrant is Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, Ill., who overcame the threat of Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, Mo., two up and one to play.

In one of the feature matches of the day, Mrs. W. G. Fraser of Ottawa, defeated Miss Enid Wilson, of Notts, England, British open champion, five up at the 18th. The other British contender, Miss Marjorie Kerr of Norfolk, suffered elimination at the hands of Miss Marjorie Kirkham of Montreal, Canadian close champion.

Tomorrow Miss Orcutt and Miss Van Wie will battle over the hilly

Perfect weather prevailed again today as the survivors teed up for the third day of match play. A cool breeze and bright sunshine made conditions ideal. The British open champion commenced in brilliant fashion, with a par on the first and then two successive birdies. She established a five hole lead over her doughty opponent, but Mrs. Fraser then settled down and commenced to creep up. At the turn, she was three holes in arrears, but at the 44th the match was all square. Not until the 18th hole was decided, however, was the issue decided. The victory of Miss Kirkham was likewise not an easy one.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE

All members of Abegweit Football team are requested to meet for practice at Victoria Park this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

She made a shaky start and her English opponent, Miss Kerr, was leading in the first few holes. But the Canadian close champion was one up at the turn and the match ended on the 15th green with Miss Kirkham ahead four and three.

The defending champion got into trouble on the second hole, 490 yards, and went one down, after halving the first with Miss Hollins, former United States champion. She went out in 41, leading by one hole. Miss Hollins required 42. Women's par for the first nine is 38. From then on, Miss Orcutt was invincible and the match ended on the 14th, five and four.

Jockey Killed

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 1. (By the Canadian Press)—Paul Haines, jockey for J. Bosley, was fatally injured in the steeplechase at the Woodbine this afternoon. He died on the way to the hospital.
