Design Airship Car To Use As Motor Boat

AKRON, O., Nov. 7.—An all-metal airship car, designed for army and navy training dirigibles, under construction by the Goodyear-Zeppeln works here, is so designed that it will be detachable from the bag of a dirigible and can be used as a motor boat.

The cabin-boat will be operated like a motorboat except that aviation propellors above the water will give it motivating power.

The car is especially designed for coastal use. In time of war it could be used readily as a surface craft and within a few minutes time atached again to a dirigible bag for air service. If the dirigible became disabled at sea, the car would act as a boat using the dirigible bag as a sail. The car is being constructed of duralumin throughout.

PLEASANT GATHERING

A very happy evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allison Profitt, Freetown, on Oct. 29th, when five boys of Mr. Profitt's Sunday School class paid a surprise visit and presented him with a beautifully bound Bible, accompanied by an address, read by Lloyd Burns. The gift, presented by Camden Gardiner, was deeply appreciated by Mr. Profitt, who thanked the boys for their kindness to him. After a jolly time was spent in singing and story-telling around the fireplace, a dainty lunch was served by Mrs Profitt.

Following is the address: —

Mr. R. A. Profitt.

Dear Allison

We, the members of your Sunday School class have assembled here tonight to congratulate you on your marriage, and to wish both you and Mrs. Profitt a long and prosperous life.

We thank you for the kindness and patience you have shown in our Sunday School and for the pleasant evenings spent in your home, where you have been so ready to entertain us. You have always been an active worker in our Sunday School and have taken a keen interest in clean sport, and in everything that stands for Christian manhood We felt we could not let this occasion pass without presenting you with some token of our regard. Please accept this gift, and with it the best wishes of your Sunday School class.

OXFORD STUDENTS INDIGNANT OVER PAMPHLET

OXFORD, Nov. 9.—Oxfod University students are highly indignant because the university proctor has distributed a pamphlet containing the mid-Victorian code of conduct and morality which has long prevailed only as a matter of tradition among the student body.

Indignation came to a head in a leading editorial of "Isis," the leading undergraduate paper. Under the heading "Are We Irresponsible?" the editors vehemently attack the pamphlet issued by the authorities for the first time this year, called "Memorandum on the conduct and discipline of junior members of the university."

In this little grey pamphlet, distributed to all entering freshmen, all the rules and regulations governing the social life of freshmen are set forth. In one, one learns that "undergraduates will not loiter in the public streets, at coffee stalls or at the stage door of a theatre; that undergraduates may not attend any public race meeting; that undergraduates may not attend public dance halls; may not make an ascent by airplane; may not hire a motor vehicle; and that men and women undergraduates may not go on the river or for motor rides together, unless there are at least two women of the party."

All these regulations have long had a place on the university books, the university proctor explained, in some mystification at the commotion which his pamphlet has stirred up, but for the reason that they had long lain buried and had become a matter of tradition among the generations of new students, the undergraduates are all the more indignant at having them made so blunt in the newly printed booklets.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster; does the work without blister.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

British Film of Naval Battles

LONDON, Nov. 6. —According to the Daily Express Germany has offered to co-operate in the production of an official British film depicting the battles of Coronel and the Falkland Islands during the war.

In a naval engagement off Coronel, Chile, Admiral Von Spee's German squadron sank a British flotilla, commanded by Rear-Admiral Christopher Craddock. Later Von Spee's ships were annihilated by a squadron of British warships off the Falkland Islands.

The newspaper adds that it is understood that the offer will be accepted by the British Admiralty which intends to make the films as accurate as possible.

A Wonderful Cure In Charlottetown

The following letter from a well known Island man, for many years proprietor of the Eureka House, Alberton, and now of the Murray House, Charlottetown, will be read with interest by the public.

227 Water Street,
Charlottetown, P.E.I.
Oct. 30, 1926.

Dear Sir,—I believe in praising the bridge which carried one over, and as the Farador was the means of rescuing me from the verge of the grave, it seems only right that I should proclaim the fact.

When I began its use on the 9th of last June, I had about given up all hope of recovery. I had suffered from stomach trouble for at least eight years—at times very severly—and just previous to using the Farador I was confined to my bed for three weeks and had undergone an X-ray examination. My case baffled the skill of some of our medical experts, and it was even thought by some that I had cancer. I expected to undergo an operation, which would probably have hastened the end on account of my extreme weakness.

Marked improvement followed the use of the Farador. As soon as it was applied with hot compress my pains were subdued and the next day I was able to be up for a short time, and each day saw greater improvements.

Within ten days after using the Farador I was able to make a trip to Tignish, and since then have travelled from one end of the Island to the other.

Those who knew my condition best are greatly surprised at my recovery, but none are as much surprised as myself, for I had almost gone to a shadow and am now enjoying fairly good health.

Some people think the Farador is a faith-cure, but this is certainly incorrect, for I had no faith whatever in it until I had tested it by actual use. Death was staring me in the face, so I thought I had better give it a chance and sent for the agent whom I had not known previously.

(Signed) GUY MURRAY.

The foregoing letter is addressed to W. E. Enman, Farador Representative, 268 Sydney Street, Charlottetown. Phone 568-J. Ask for literature, including long list of cured Island people.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Adjustment of working hours still remains the great stumbling block in the settlement of the miners' strike. A number of lesser points, such as minimum wages and the percentages to be allocated to wages and profits, it is believed, were settled at a late sitting at Number 10 Downing St. last night, when Government Ministers discussed with the miners' leaders the controversial questions still existing between miners and mine owners.

Minard's Liniment relieves stiffness.
