I. O. O. F.—Willey Lodge, No. 27, meet to-night at 8 o'clock. Election of representatives to Grand Lodge.

The Christian Endeavorers of Zion church enjoyed a very pleasant outing at Rocky Point yesterday afternoon, and the young people are eagerly looking forward to another of the same kind in the near future.

The Band of the 82nd Battalion under the leadership of Prof. Vinnicombe discoursed sweet music on Queen's Square last evening, carrying out in a splendid manner the programme announced yesterday. The cornet solo and the baritone solo were worthy of special mention. Prof. Watts kindly assisted, taking first clarinet. A large crowd was in attendance and greatly enjoyed the music. This was the first appearance of the 82nd Band on the Square this summer and it gives evidence of noteworthy improvement. Major D. Stewart showed an affectionate interest in the Bandmen by furnishing them with temporary drinks.

VALLEYFIELD.—The services in connection with the Valleyfield communion communion were concluded on Monday, 11th inst. They were conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. McL. assisted by Rev. John Munro, of Antigonish, N. S. As usual large crowds were present and the best of order prevailed. It is estimated that fully 2,000 people were present on Sunday. Both preachers were listened to very attentively while they preached very acceptable and impressive sermons on every occasion. Rev. R. McL. is already so well known as a fearless, forcible and impressive preacher that nothing further need be added, save that he well upheld his well-earned reputation for power and impressiveness. Rev. Mr. Munro, who is a son of the late Rev. Alex. Munro, formerly pastor of Valleyfield congregation, was but little known here as a preacher, as he had preached only on a few occasions previous to this time. It is but natural that the people would be pleased to hear the son of their beloved pastor; and now that their wish has been gratified, nothing can be heard on either hand but expressions of admiration for Mr. Munro. He is a deliberate and thoughtful speaker, and the people are proud that such a preacher has been brought up in their midst. Their only wish is that they may be privileged to hear him again in the near future.

ELECTRO

MAGNET

That Will Draw Nails out of Wood

LIFTS 250 LBS. IRON.

Used in Surgery for Various Extracting Purposes—A Test Case.

NEW YORK, July 20.—One of the latest things in a surgery is an electro-magnet with a pull stronger than the persuasive powers of the entire board of aldermen. The one in use at Manhattan Eye and Ear hospital is capable of extracting nails from a plank and has proved a valuable adjunct to the usual implements of surgery.

The magnet at first sight appears to be two cones wound with insulated wire. In other words, the poles of the magnet taper to fine points. With the introduction of an electric current the cores become highly magnetic.

The power of this magnet is almost unbelievable. It will lift 250 pounds of iron, and a handful of nails or a bunch of keys dropped within a radius of influence will fly toward it as if propelled from a gun. A row of tacks craven into a pine board, if held within the focus of its attraction, will leap out of the board as if enchanted, and as a destroyer of the mainsprings of watches it has no equal.

In surgery, however, the use of this magnet is limited to extraction of steel and iron particles. It has been used so far only in removing iron and steel particles from the eyeball but its power is so obvious that one cannot doubt that it would be equally useful in removing similar foreign substances from any part of the body.

The first practical test of the new machine was made a few days ago upon a man whose eyeball had been perforated by a speck of steel. The man was a metal worker who had been struck by the splinter while working over a lathe. The force of a bit of steel was enough to cut the outer envelope of the eye and penetrate the tissues beneath. The bit of steel had worked backward until it was in a position extremely dangerous to the life of the sensitive organ.

When the patient was brought to the hospital the steel had already worked through the eye into the posterior chamber where the vitreous fluid is secreted. No surgical instrument of the ordinary character could have reached it without destroying the sight. It was plainly apparent that it must be removed at once.

The patient was placed upon the operating table and moved within the focus of the machine. The current was turned on, the point of the magnet toward the eye, and the table moved slowly toward the centre of its focus.

By an ingenious swivel joint it is possible to move the point of the magnet in any direction. When the patient was within its reach the point of the magnet drew nearer until its influence was readily apparent. The eye began starting from the socket and the wound where the splinter had entered began to dilate.

Presently when the eye had almost been withdrawn from the orbit the bit of steel shot from the wound and flew toward the magnet's pole. Instantly the eye returned to its normal position, the pain subsided, and the operation was complete.

An examination disclosed that the eye was not ruined, but that instead stood a promising chance for complete recovery. But for the magnet the case would have been hopeless. No other instrument could have been used without destroying the sight altogether.
