WHEN THINGS GO WRONG.

Make up your mind that things will go wrong now and then. There are days when fires do not burn. The furnace has been overhauled, the range is in order, the flues are apparently safe, and there is plenty of fuel, yet the wind is in the east, the atmosphere is fog-laden, and the house is chilly. There are days when the grocer delivers your order at a neighbor's down the street and you are delayed and the housekeeping is out of gear because of his mistake. Other days come when you have made special efforts for the entertainment of an expected visitor. You have set aside the table with the finest napery, taken down the best dishes, made lemon pie and plum cake. About the time when you are putting on your bonnet or your hat ac-ording to your age and taste, and looking out to see whether you need overshoes or may don your best wrap, a boy dashes in with a telegram. Your visitor is detained and will not arrive until the day after tomorrow. Who cannot mentally make out a list of these trivial disappointments and trifling embarrassments that for the moment rob life of flavor and send a shadow to the face? Ah, friend, it is when little things go wrong that you must not show the white feather. It is when there are tiny bits of discouragement that you must gird on your armor, be brave, and wear a smiling face. Little trials are in the day's work, and we are very foolish if we suffer them to cloud the day, both because doing this lessens our energy and because, too, it shows ingratitude to the dear Father above who gives us so many things to be glad for, and who sends the great sorrows at such wide intervals. Those who bear little trials cheerily will meet great ones victoriously.—Christian Herald.

COVEHEAD SCHOOL.

The semi-annual examination of the Covehead Road School took place on Thursday, the twenty-sixth, a very large number of ratepayers and visitors being present, showing the lively interest taken in the school-work. The children by their prompt and decisive answers spoke excellently for the teacher, also for her method of teaching. After the children were examined in all school subjects, the following interesting program was rendered by the pupils, which gave much credit to both teachers and pupils:

Gramophone Selection, Casey Jones. Opening Address by Willard Lanks. Recitation by Stella Morris, The Last Charge. Instrumental music, furnished by Merrill Marshall and Samuel Woodridge. Song, Wreck of Titanic, by Sadie Willard, Hayden, Vernon, and Herbert McDonald. Instrumental music. Singing by Jean McEachern and Helen White. Recitation, "The Housekeeper," by Frank Whelan. Drill by smaller children. The Race. Recitation by Nellie McEachern. An Incident of the War. Instrumental Music. The Union Jack, by May Morris. Recitation, The Telephone, by Jean McEachern. Solo, by Helen White. Instrumental Music. Recitation, "Ostler Joe," by Ida Whelan. Exercise by four boys. Reritation, The Last Hymn, by Emma Whelan. Singing, by three girls. Recitation, My Dolls, by Rosella Woodridge. Instrumental Music. Dialogue (first part). Gramophone Selection, The Berlin Reel. Dialogue (last part). Recitation, My Pa, by George White. Singing, by five small children, The Farmer. Recitation, Lady Hildegrade, by May Morris. Then the visitors and pupils were served with ice-cream and cake, which was enjoyed intensely as the day was very warm. This was followed by speeches by the trustees (the secretary being unavoidably absent), commencing the teacher Miss Woodridge upon the good work accomplished in the past year. The remarks of the Inspector, Mr. Devereaux, being brought forth as to the teacher being one of the best teachers in his inspectorate. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered by Mr. W. McDonald (trustee), seconded by Mr. W. White and Mr. N. Brown (trustees), to which Miss Woodridge replied in suitable terms.

The teacher was then presented with a beautiful lemonade set, on behalf of the pupils, by Mary Ready, and the following address was read by May Morris:—
To our Dear Teacher, Miss Woodridge:
Dear Teacher:—It is with feelings of deepest regret that we learn you intend to resign your position as teacher in Covehead Road School, and allow us to present you with this little gift as a token of our appreciation of you and your valuable teaching. During the few short months you were among us, you have gained the esteem of the pupils and residents of this community. Under your skilful management our school has prospered visibly and were it not for your diligent labor this school would not be what it is today. The pupils of this school shall ever recall with pleasant memories the days when our school was directed by the guiding hand of our loving teacher, Miss Jean Woodridge. In conclusion, we join in wishing you every success in life. Signed in behalf of the pupils of Covehead Road School.

CRUSADE TO REDUCE GREAT DRINK BILL

LONDON, July 7.—One of the biggest "campaigns of education" on record in this country is being carried on at present by the United Kingdom Alliance, the official temperance organization. Its object is to get re-introduced into Parliament, at the earliest moment practicable, the famous Licensing Bill of 1908, which was brought into the House of Commons by the present Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the Campbell-Bannerman Ministry, and was ultimately thrown out by the House of Lords. This Bill, which had it passed into law, would have resulted in a compulsory and systematic reduction of the number of saloons, or public-houses, in this country—numbering 94,000 and averaging, in the congested districts, one to every 174 of the population—and which would have made the creation of new licenses a matter for ultimate, primary or direct vote of the people, produced one of the fiercest parliamentary fights in the history of this country.

WOULD LIMIT THE NUMBER OF SALOONS.

The Licensing Bill, its advocates claim, would limit the number of saloons throughout the country and reduce to reasonable dimensions the nation's colossal drink bill, of over eight hundred million dollars a year. In November last, a huge convention representing every religious and political party, was held in London, and sent a deputation to Mr. Asquith, who replied, in effect, that he had his hands full with Home Rule for Ireland, Welsh Disestablishment and National Insurance, but that he hoped to re-introduce the measure during the life of the present Parliament, or in other words before 1915.

SERVICE OF BILL TO TEMPERANCE CAUSE.

"How great a service the passage of the Licensing Bill would render to the cause of temperance, it is scarcely possible to estimate," said Mr. Alexander Thomson, the parliamentary agent of the United Kingdom Alliance, when seen at the London headquarters of that organization, a few days ago. "Its primary result would be the compulsory reduction of the number of saloons in this country by something like 30,000. The adoption of local option throughout the country, too, unquestionably will result in furthering limitation of the number of drinking places. All of which will constitute the most effective blow that has yet been struck against the omnipotence and reactionary influence of the brewery trade, the great monopoly which controls over 95 per cent of the saloons in this country and whose leaders value it at £150,000,000."
"We temperance workers," he continued, "are not clamoring for the abolition of the saloon, (or 'pub,') but only for its effective regulation with the public itself instead of in effect—the drink interests as the arbiters of increase in the number of existing drinking places. All over the country, new areas are being opened up as residential quarters for the working classes, and in many cases we have been able to prevail on the ground landlord, in whose hands the authority primarily lies, to limit rigorously the number of public houses to be built on such estates."
