Crystals Defeat Victorias, 3-1

SUMMERSIDE, Jan. 15.—The Crystals hockey aggregation consolidated their position of first place in the Prince Edward Island hockey league here tonight in a manner that indicates they are to be a deciding factor in the race for the Island championship. In a game replete with thrills, spills and scintillating hockey the western sextette came through on the top side of a 3 to 1 score over the Victorias, but not before they were forced to the limit.

Tonight's game was one of the fastest and most spectacular ever witnessed in the Crystal rink. Upwards of eight hundred excited fans crowded the balconies and promenades and were kept on their toes throughout the kaleidoscopic whirl of an excellent exhibition of the Canadian pastime.

It was a highly creditable and sensational win that the hard-pressed Crystals secured from their hard thumping adversaries. Battling their way from behind in a third period charge that saw the game looking more rosy for the visiting team, Whackey McEachern took a pass from Williams and scored one of the fastest goals ever seen here. Things looked very bright on the completion of the play, but an air tight defence supplemented with a perfect and combined attack kept the blue and white puck chasers looking for other worlds to conquer rather than their own.

The first period opened fast, but both line-ups seemed to be feeling each other out and the only damage registered were two penalties drawn by the Vics and a number of close calls by both goalies.

In the second period Crystals opened fast and were rewarded when Danny Gallant netted the rubber behind Diamond on a pass from his namesake "Chickie" Gallant, late of the Halifax Wolverines. This score was registered in two minutes. In the third session Crystals counted again in ten minutes of play when Schurman realized on a pass from Silliphant.

The third period produced the fastest and one of the finest sessions ever seen in the Crystal rink. The Vics determined on a comeback, opened fast and pretty but a well placed and stubborn defence repelled every try attempted until Chick Williams broke through for a rink-end run to pass to McEachern who broke the proverbial egg in the greatest play of the game. The goal was scored before the fans realized what was doing. With the count reading 2 to 1 Crystals instead of going on the defence, launched a counter attack to score their third and last goal of the evening.

Tonight's game, as mentioned above was one of the fastest and most spectacular ever played in the western metropolis. At no time during the 60 minutes of play could a winner be

EMYVALE SCHOOL CONCERT
 The annual school entertainment was held in the school-room on Friday December 31st when almost every raterpayer of the district attended to hear a very pleasing programme which was carried out most successfully by the primary pupils.

As soon as the last number of the programme was finished Santa Claus appeared and after greeting the visitors and pupils in his usual jolly manner distributed gifts to both the teacher and pupils from the beautifully decorated Xmas tree which occupied one corner of the room.

At the close of the entertainment a hearty vote of thanks was rendered to the teacher Miss Mary H. Trainor for her thoughtfulness and kindness toward her pupils. They also expressed the wish that she would be able to remain with them for many years as her work in this school in the past three years has been most successful. The teacher then made a few remarks thanking the parents for the interest they were taking in school affairs and also the children for their very suitable gifts after which the afternoon's proceedings were brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Virtue Rewarded

(By British United Press)
 PARIS, Jan. 15.—A story which in many ways recalls Anatole France's ironic tale of Crainquebille has just come to light in Paris.
 On Christmas Eve, Alfred Loiseau, a bent and hungry invalid of 67, who had not even sufficient money to clothe himself warmly or buy the food of which he stood in need, found lying in the gutter a pocketbook containing 1,500 francs (600) in notes and a cheque for 7,000 francs (2800). The notes must have tempted the hungry, ragged man, but he was stronger than temptation and took his find to the nearest police station.

It is said that, if he would call again a few days later, he would receive whatever reward the owner of the pocket book left for him. He was penniless and so asked for a few francs on account, but this relief could not be given. He was about to return to the inhospitable street when he was called back, to be informed that his hawk's license had been withdrawn on the ground that he had no capital with which to purchase any merchandise. His act of probity had only brought misfortune.

But now there is a different story to tell. The Prefect of the Police has ordered the immediate restoration of the hawk's license. The owner of the pocket book has given Loiseau 500 francs and anonymous sympathizers who had read of his case have subscribed fifty dollars as capital for an honest man who will once more be able to push a well-stocked barrow through the streets and gain his livelihood.

Phantom Fiancee

(By British United Press)
 PARIS, Jan. 15.—The strange story of an elderly lover who is said to have courted a phantom fiancee for eighteen years at a cost of $5,000 has been revealed at Mentone.

In 1910, it is stated, a wealthy man named Gaziello, then aged forty-five, mentioned to Edmond Gaziello, an insurance agent that he would like to find a pretty young wife. A few days later Gaziello reported that he had found a beautiful girl named Marguerite Chierico, who also wanted to marry, but who lived with a nasty old aunt and was forbidden to talk to any men.

A courtship started, and dragged on for years, Gaziello transmitting passionate letters in both directions, as well as large sums of money that the elderly lover sent from time to time.

Belmon was shown a villa at Monte Carlo where his fiancee whom he had never laid eyes on was supposed to live. Last year Gaziello announced that the phantom fiancee had died, but had made a will in his favor. Belmon paid another $1,000 to get possession of the will, and it appeared that the nasty old aunt refused to surrender it. Gaziello is alleged to have discovered that the will was a fake, and make complaint to the authorities, who immediately jumped to the conclusion that it was another case of the old French swindle of the imaginary fiancee. To their astonishment they discovered that Marguerite Chierico had actually existed, and had actually died last year, but had been completely ignorant of the intrigue in which she had been innocently involved.

The alleged nasty old aunt had died five years ago. Gaziello has been accused of swindling.

MRS. WILLIAM H. SPICER
 There passed peacefully away at her home at Bradalbane on December 19, Eliza Helen MacLean, beloved wife of William H. Spicer in the 35th year of her age. Deceased had been in ill health since June last and spent three and a half months in the P. E. I. Hospital where her recovery, but God willed otherwise, and two weeks after her return home her pure spirit took its flight to Him who gave it.

Her many friends will ever cherish her memory as she had a kind and lovable disposition which endeared her to old and young alike. Through her long sickness at home and in hospital she was never heard to murmur or complain and always had a cheery word and bright smile for everyone.

In early life she joined the Presbyterian Church, and when possible was never absent from worship.

There are left to mourn a heart-broken husband and two small children, one three years and one seven months, also a father and mother two sisters, Mrs. W. T. Call and Mrs. W. J. Murray of Massachusetts and four brothers, George of Vancouver, James of Boston, Mass., and Sterling and Spurgeon of Fredericton.

The funeral was held from Bradalbane Baptist Church on Dec. 21st and was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Armstrong officiated, assisted by Rev. Mr. Coburn. The pall-bearers were Robert Hill, Gardell Stevenson, MacKenzie Matheson, Kenneth Graham, Andrew Stevenson and Ben West. The remains were laid to rest in Fredericton Cemetery, there to await the Resurrection morn.

MAE EDWARDS PRESENTS 'THE LONE THIEF'

Another Success Scored Last Night by Popular Players.

The Mae Edwards players scored another signal success in the "Younger Generation" which they presented last night.

This is a three act comedy drama of life in a small town, where one of the village grafters is trying to get possession of the property of a widow whose son is away in the big city, where he is trying to get money enough to pay off the mortgage. He returns just in time to save the old homestead show up the grafters and marry his girl, Molly, which part is most capably played by Miss Edwards.

The play was delightfully humorous, and all the players were in excellent form, giving a splendid reading of their respective parts.

The cast of characters is as follows:
 The Mother—Miss Netta Davenport.
 A Show Girl—Miss Peggy Downes.
 The Stranger—Billy Webb.
 St. Augusta—Carleton Pinckney.
 His Son—Walter Sanville.
 A Tourist—Clarence Marcotte.
 Molly—Miss Mae Edwards.
 The Boy—Wesley Patterson.
 Limbs of the Law—Charlie Downes.
 Officer—Chas. T. Smith.

"Open Forum" at Christian Church

The open forum topic discussion tonight at the Central Christian Church was "What principles should guide us in the choice of a vocation."

Mr. C. L. MacKay read a fifteen minute paper introducing the topic, in which he emphasized the place of the following in making such a choice: One's training; physical fitness, natural ability, desire and opportunity. He stressed the need that before one made a choice he should study both himself and the vocation into which he contemplates entering to enable him to determine whether the choice would be a wise one or not.

The discussion which ensued, and which was entered into very generally, was headed by the audience brought out the following as important considerations. That one's interests need to be examined, because frequently we are interested in some profession or work because we admire some one who is engaged in that work. This is not a wise basis, because we may not be fitted to do that work. The discussion brought out clearly the evil of parents choosing a life calling for their children, and trying to force them to follow it. They ought to help the child, however, in making the choice; but in the end the choice ought to be the child's not the parents. Otherwise later in life the child may rightly blame the parents for forcing it into a calling for which it later realizes it has neither the natural tendencies or interests.

Economic pressure compels many a youth to take the work that he can get. Two ways out of this difficulty were brought out. First, to use his leisure time to fit himself for the work he really longs to do, but if this should become impossible, another way of handling the problem is for one to try to find the values in the work in which he is engaged by economic pressure.

This led to the concluding phase of the discussion, namely the church's task to train these youth to see work as essentially noble, and that in the world as so constituted we really are working for the world and the whole world is working for us.

Tomorrow night's discussion is an excellent one, namely "What Principles should guide us in the use of our Leisure." Mr. R. H. Norton, M. A. reads the introductory paper.

PAGLIACCI IN REAL LIFE

(By British United Press)
 BERLIN, January 15.—A dead man with a white wig in his pocket was found some days ago in a forest near Berlin. There are no marks on his tattered clothing and no weapons or letters in his pockets to establish his identity. Not the tiniest coin was found on him—nothing whatsoever about a white wig.

The mystery of the forest occurred the police and press. Who was the man? How had he met his death? Had he been murdered? And why should the only possession of a man whose white hair stared out from a halo of waving red hair be a white wig?

The patient research of the police brought to light a moving tale. Who is not moved for a moment when a comedian in ridiculous clothes appears before the curtain and sings the prelude to Pagliacchi? In the darkness of the theatre, men would stare at the actor in that cry, "Is that an actor or a man with a heart five years for love and for sorrow?" but afterwards they see that they have been tricked into emotion by a writer for the stage.

There is no trickery in the tale of the man found dead in the wood near Berlin. He was the clown of a travelling circus, Erdmann Duchow, and the only thing he took away with him when he left his employer was a quarrel with the white wig which he had always worn when

Some facts about New Method Cleaning and Pressing

Through our modern equipment the care of clothes has become a scientific and sanitary operation which delivers far more than perfectly cleaned and pressed wearing apparel.

ODORS REMOVED—Arm-pit and trouser waist-band and center seams are freed from offensiveness. The odors of perspiration which cause garments to be unpleasant are removed by heat, steam and vacuum.

NAP RAISED—Clothing comes back to you soft-dried; never hard, never damp. The nap of the fabric is actually raised and the lustre of the cloth restored.

GERMS KILLED—Germs are always present in clothes that have been worn. This cleaning and pressing method, using temperatures at about the range at which surgical instruments are sterilized, kills the disease germs or influenza, common colds, pneumonia, tuberculosis and skin diseases.

MOTH EGGS DESTROYED—Our method of pressing destroys moth eggs and larvae which may lie within the weave of woollen goods. The eggs of other insects and the insects themselves are also destroyed.

VACUUM DRYING—Garments are not baked by dry heat. They never have a stiff boardy finish. A vacuum attachment draws air through the fabric and leaves garment with soft, natural finish.

CREASES LAST LONGER—Regular pressing by this method maintains the original balance and fine lines of your suit. The pressed effect lasts longer.

CAN'T HARM DELICATE DRESSES—By regulated steam pressure our New Method smooths wrinkles gently and safely, sending back your lovely chiffon, crepe or satin frock soft and fresh.
