ada's Arctic waters in any new war, it also is wintering all its sea-going ships in the belief that there would certainly be some operations in northern seas.

It was further indicated by defence circles today that the navy is gunning for a strength of 10,000 men, more than one-third larger than now, as the minimum necessary for effective training.

As one step, consideration is being given to lowering the age limit for recruits from 17 1/2 to 17 in an effort to boost the influx of new men.

In Blueprint Stage The anti-submarine escort craft now is in the blueprint stage. It will be constructed in Canadian shipyards and will have a lot of equipment standardized with that used by the Americans. Its construction is expected to be paralleled by build-up of more minesweepers.

This is a reflection of the belief that combatting subs and mines still will be the R.C.N.'s main job in any new war.

Meanwhile, there are no navy ships now under construction, although major repairs and rearmament are generally under way.

The navy would like to have its own subs but the expense is heavy and establishment of a special arm of the service would be at the cost of surface craft. The compromise consists of manœuvres with British and U.S. subs.

It is felt that the current strength of less than 7,500 men is considerably below the minimum needed for effective training but improvement in the manpower situation is considered fairly satisfactory.

Navy sources point out that unless a navy is of a certain size it cannot hope to function effectively because it can't get the essential gear training, nor can it afford to man all types of ships that are essential to training.

Princess Elizabeth is expected to step forward as soon as she recovers from the birth of her prince, now nine days old.

These new responsibilities will mean indefinite postponement of any visit to Canada by Princess Elizabeth and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh. Nothing had been arranged for the Canadian visit, but it is known an invitation had been made in the widest possible terms.

Another point is the difference between the British film and the Canadian curriculum and one of the main objections is the extreme "Oxford" accent.

Chandler felt that an attempt will be made by Gaumont British to meet these objections and stated that they are already looking around for a "commonwealth" voice.

Elementary and secondary schools were visited in Harrow, where the party saw at first hand the use made of visual aids. The Middlesex area had just had a grant of £12,000 for the purchase of films for visual education. This represented the equivalent of one dollar per child per year being spent in this field alone—exceeding any U. S. or Canadian projects.

High-spots of Visit The Canadian party was particularly interested in a visit to the animated film studios where David Hand, until recently closely associated with Walt Disney, is now turning out both entertainment and educational cartoons for Gaumont British. He had just completed an animated educational film on the geographic concept of the seasons, day and night, latitude and longitude. Current projects are a "Medieval Castle" and "Civil Wars in England."

Another high-spot in the well-organized visit which gave them little time to themselves was the visit to the television studios. Britain leads the world in this field and the party of visual educationists watched remarkably clear vision experiments with large screens 12 feet by 14 feet similar to normal sized movie screens. It is expected that some of the experiments witnessed will revolutionize the moving picture industry.

Mr. Chandler remarked on the practical application of electronics developed during the war. He saw an off-shoot of the mine-detecting foreign matter in animal and massed produced foods.

A feature of the visit was their visit with J. Arthur Rank. "Practically a minister without portfolio in the British Government, Mr. Rank, who is a tremendous worker and a retiring gentleman, gave the impression of complete sincerity in using his world-wide interests to the best advantage of the commonwealth. He is particularly interested in the development and production of religious and educational films," said Mr. Chandler.

The party paid a visit to the House of Commons and dined there with Hon. Geo. Tomlinson, Minister of Education. A rough and ready Lencastre trade-unionist, Mr. Tomlinson impressed them with his vigour and stated that the British Government is supporting the educational film industry.

Expect Canada, Nfld. To Sign Union Terms At Ottawa On Dec. 2

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (CP)—Formal date for the signing of the terms under which Newfoundland will join Canada as a 10th province tentatively has been set for Dec. 2.

A source in close touch with the negotiations, in progress since Oct. 6, said work on the terms is practically completed. The delegates have been presented with a seventh draft of the terms for study.

If they recommend any changes, the recommendations will be studied at a plenary session of the Newfoundland and Canadian delegations later this week. Should any changes be accepted, an eighth draft of the terms will be made and submitted again to the delegations for study.

The source said it is expected that the Newfoundland delegation will likely leave for St. John's Dec. 3.

Once the terms are formally signed, the Newfoundland Commission Government will ask the United Kingdom Government to approve them.

Newfoundland will then have to wait until the terms have been ratified by the Canadian Parliament. Following ratification, Canada also will send addresses to the United Kingdom asking for approval of the union terms.

Section 146 of the British North America Act states: "It shall be lawful for the Queen, by and with the advice of Her Majesty's most honorable Privy Council, on addresses from the Houses of Parliament of Canada, and from the House of the respective Legislatures of the colonies or provinces of Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia, to admit those colonies or provinces, or any of them into the union."

The source said that the Commission Government was given the powers formerly held by the Governor-in-Council and the Legislature. In view of that the Commission had the power to send the union addresses to the United Kingdom Government.

reminded him of one's "having his parts dusted off by the same person that had done the kicking."

Mr. MacWilliams said he had read recently where the authorities in one large community had placed the records of their government in a cabinet for future generations to read and study. "If your authorities should ever do that," Mr. MacWilliams said, "and future generations should one day read the record, I am sure they would be struck with astonishment. Reading the records, they would, I am sure, come to the conclusion that your Government leaders were nothing more or less than a group of mental defectives. What other conclusion could they come to?"

"For, in the employing of a man to show pictures to the school children of the evil effects of alcohol, what are they really doing? Are they not selling booze to make money to buy books and pictures to tell people not to drink booze?"

"I wonder how much influence books or films, bought with booze money, would have for temperance in this Province. Would not the children revolt at such evidence of hypocrisy?"

Mr. MacWilliams had previously announced he had several temperance films, owned by the Provincial Government, and that he was prepared to show them in any school or schools desirous of having them shown; that he has also prepared to illustrate the films with a lecture and that since the Government was paying all the expenses, the showing of the films would cost the Federation nothing.

Mr. MacWilliams concluded by saying: "When the voters allow the Government to sell booze to make money to buy temperance text books for the school children of this Province, or films, or anything else, they are voting against the laws of God and man."

Mr. Coburn's Premonition Rev. John Coburn, Toronto, secretary of the Canadian Temperance Federation, brought greetings to the Island Federation from the national body and from all earnest temperance workers throughout Canada.

Mr. Coburn said he had left Prince Edward Island a year ago with a "heavy heart" because he had a "premonition of what had since taken place. He wished to extend his heartfelt sympathy to the mothers and fathers of this Province and to the members of the Island Federation, who had fought so sincerely for the cause of Prohibition, at the great loss they had sustained in the defeat of the prohibitory law.

"God grant," Dr. Coburn said, "that such evils as now afflict Ontario may never be experienced here. But you will have to be on your guard at all times. You will win back in temperance who are members of both your political parties in the Legislature to keep you informed. For remember, the defeat of your prohibitory law and the sale of liquor in Government stores is only the entrance of the third side of the wedge.

"The Government will want more booze sold. They will want beer parlor opened; then they will want cocktail bars. In Ontario, we have those things now. The cocktail bars in Ontario remain open until 2 o'clock, the latest hour at which such places are legally allowed to be open of any place in the 'British Empire'."

amendment was the most flagrant piece of liquor legislation ever foisted on a law-abiding people. Under it, the registration of motor vehicles increased by seven per cent but traffic accidents increased by 130 per cent.

Claims Statements Misleading Dr. Coburn said statements that less liquor was being sold now are made deliberately to mislead. He was not in a position to say that there has not been less liquor sold during the last few months than for the corresponding period under the Cullen amendment. But there was more liquor sold during the last few months than there ever was for a similar period under the Prohibition Act. Those in authority were trying to fool the issue for the corresponding period under the Cullen amendment. It was not intended to be the Prohibition Act. Rather it was the first deliberate attempt to loosen up the cords that had kept the liquor business within reasonable bounds.

"One hundred years ago," Dr. Coburn said, "our fathers fought against slavery. Even then, and may God forgive them, there were clergymen to be found who would stand in their pulpits and attempt to defend that infamous institution, even as there are clergymen today, who, by their apathy, condone liquor.

"We are down today, but we are not out. The day shall come when the forces of temperance and abstinence will win the day. I believe that God will not expect to see it, for the sands in my life's hour glass are fast running out. But it will come. A condition where the people of Canada spend $20 million annually in booze, and 200 million in education, and 300 million for the churches. Protestant and Catholic, cannot and will not long endure."

Children may eat three good, hot meals at the schools, the biggest meal costing only 10 cents, or 10 cents. No child is refused. "There is no doubt that the rich are as poorly off as the working man as the matter of food," declared Mr. Chandler. "Even though they eat in restaurants they have little or no opportunity to get any very good fats and sweets are very unobtainable and meats are seldom served."

"Cripps really shook the British people when he told them that even at their present high rate of production, they would only begin to pay their way in 1952," said Dr. Coburn. "In paying a tribute to their doggedness in face of the most extreme and heart-breaking difficulties.

He recounted how the matter of clothes has become a constant problem and preoccupation, as can be seen from the fact that, for instance, compared to ours, are high and all internal trading in England is subordinate to the export market requirements. For instance, Mr. Chandler noted that local stores were better supplied with a wider range of choice china than the largest and best known stores in London.
