Some Real Hunting. "Well, Joe," said Wilkins, as he met his friend Robinson on the avenue, "did you get any good hunting up in Maine?"

"We sure did," said Robinson. "We did that new dog Brown sent you work?"

"Splendid!" was the reply. "Fact is, if it hadn't been for that dog we wouldn't have had any hunting at all. He ran away at the first shot and we spent four days looking for him."

Appetite Good, Gained 20 lbs. Could Not Feel Better

From a nervous wreck this man was restored to health, strength and happiness.

He tells his own story in this letter. Mr. Ralph A. Roberts, Loverna, Sask., writes:

"In 1917 I had lost all appetite, failed 25 pounds in weight, became very nervous and shaky and in fact given up all hope of recovery. For some time I had suffered from constipation, which kept getting worse, until I was fast becoming a total wreck. Doctors and their drugs were sending me to my grave at the age of 39.

"Then I read about people being restored by Dr. Chase's Medicines and after three months' use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills I found that my bowels were restored to normal movement each day and the constipation was no more. I had a good appetite, had gained 20 pounds and could not feel better. I shall always be grateful for these benefits."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box; Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25c a box, all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Bluebeard Case Circumstantial And He Rejoices

VERSAILLES, Nov. 18.—When the trial of Henry Landru, called "the Bluebeard of Gambais," adjourned this evening until tomorrow, the prosecution had made acknowledgment that it was basing its case on circumstantial evidence alone in charging that Landru was guilty of numerous murders. Landru was exultant over the admission of Prosecutor Godoy. With regard to the disappearance of women in Paris, Landru turned to the prosecutor and said: "I can point out 150 women taken from the morgue and buried in Potter's Field each year during 1915, 1916, 1917 and 1918.

When adjournment was taken today only three women remained to make accusations or produce direct evidence against the prisoner.

Contrary to other famous trials in which interest has decreased as the trial proceeded, the number of spectators in the courtroom today was much larger and more select than on any day since the opening of the hearing. A member of the French Academy, theatrical stars and famous authors were present, but the momentous recital of the sort of details by the women witnesses recorded them little ever which to become interested.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF THE ROAD.

"Roads think," writes Mr. Albert Donald, in the King's Highways. "The way they think is psychology just as the way a man thinks is his. It's a big name, for a small thing. So is politician. But I must come back to my subject, roads. Roads think. Their makers didn't and their users don't; but that the road itself is a thinker beyond all dispute.

"How does a road think? I admit it doesn't talk. But that is no proof that it has no sense. Quite the reverse. If words were the only evidence of thought, man could scarcely be defined as a 'rational animal.' What, then, is the real, tangible evidence of thought? Bumps. If a man has a bump on his head, he is admitted to be a man of brains. But a road, especially an Irish road, is all bumps. It is far more 'bumpy' than a man. And so we may fairly speak of its psychology.

"Other signs of man's intellect are crossed roads, crookedness, and slippiness. And aren't 'crossed roads' to be found at every corner? Isn't crookedness in the very nature of roads; and isn't their slippiness the cause of countless skids?"

"Roads, then, have thoughts, but I don't intend to analyze the mind of macadam, the reasoning of ruts or mentality of mud. No, what I'm aiming at is to lift the lid off the brainpot, not off the road itself, but of some of the people who use it. men, women, children, animals, and to regard them all simply and solely in their relation to the motorist.

"Women first! Here comes a lady walking down the road. She is young. She is pretty. She is right in the middle of it. She is reading a letter. Ten to one it is a love letter. Go slow, boys. She doesn't hear you. She is in a dream. Her mind is in a trance. No psychologist on earth could analyze it. Go slow. Don't make a noise. Slip past. Let somebody awaken her."

Publicity. "All you need for success in business is persistent publicity." "I can't agree to that," replied Mr. Cumrox. "If publicity were the only requisite, the 'Swanne River' everybody has been singing about would have had one real cete boom after another."

STEAMER FOR HAVANA.

The S. S. "Canadian Sealer" arrived here yesterday morning from St. John's, Newfoundland and will load general cargo of potatoes for Havana this season to make shipments of potatoes, etc., from the province to Havana direct. She has considerable space yet available and in order that all parties interested in the shipment of potatoes may have an opportunity of shipping by this boat, we have decided not to sail her from here before Wednesday evening 23rd inst. Book at once with Buntain and Bell & Co.

After being undisturbed in the dust for more than a century, the remains containing the bones of the Rev. James McChord, buried in 1820, has been discovered under the ruins of the old Market street Presbyterian church here.

TREACHERY ON MYSTERY SHIP

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 18.—Arrests are expected at any moment in an amusing smuggling episode which occurred at South Bay, three miles below the city, one dark night recently, when a smuggling schooner from St. Pierre landed a cargo of the choicest stuff on the beach where it was loaded into waiting motors and hauled away.

An hour later when the real consignees appeared it was discovered that through the treachery of two of the smugglers' crew the liquor had fallen into the wrong hands. The vessel's identity is a mystery, but local revenue officers state that they had information as to the identity of the parties who got the free booze.

Clemenceau Begins Book on His Life

PARIS, Nov. 18.—White Paris celebrated the third anniversary of the Armistice, her principal political figure in the drama of 1918 sat in seclusion in his little flat in the Rue Franklin writing the first chapter of the work in which he intends to embody the fruits of his long career.

Georges Clemenceau, a friend today, said smilingly: "Like Charles Quint, I have seen my own funeral."

Physically and intellectually, "the Tiger" is as well, alert and vigorous as ever. He counts on completing his book in three years, but has ordered in his will that in case he dies without finishing it, the fragments are to be burned.

General Bruce May Head Next Everest Expedition

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Brigadier General C. C. Bruce, of Cardiff, has been offered the leadership of the Mount Everest expedition to succeed Col. Howard Bury, your correspondent learned today. General Bruce, at the present time is secretary of the Glamorgan Territorial Association but has asked for and received a leave of absence.

Gen. Bruce is considered one of the greatest living authorities on the Himalayas, where he passed 20 years, and is fitted for the task, in addition, by his wonderful physique. Gen. Bruce was the organizer of two previously planned Mount Everest expeditions which did not materialize, and is a member of the special committee of the Royal Geographical Society, which planned the present expedition.

He has seen military service all over the East, chiefly in India. He commanded the Gurkha riflemen at Gallipoli in 1916, where he was severely wounded and mentioned in dispatches. He returned to India in 1917 and commanded the North Waziristan field force. For valuable service in this and other frontier wars he received further mention and was decorated.

Meharg Sentenced To Be Hanged January 18th

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—Wilfred Meharg, convicted of murder, was sentenced to be hanged on Jan. 18, and Clarence Spaulding and Edward Dickenson were sentenced to serve seven years' imprisonment on conviction for conspiracy to rob in connection with the shooting of Dr. Whitworth, veterinary surgeon, Whitebrook, some months ago.

Two other men who were in the bandits' car on the night of the crime were remanded till January for sentence. Before receiving sentence from Chief Justice Mulock, the prisoner, Meharg, declared dramatically that he had no intention of killing the doctor. After being sentenced Meharg was carried from the court room in a swoon.

MOTERING LADY. The accidental killing of a goose in Perugia, Italy, has resulted in the death of one man, the wounding of four and the arrest of 19 others.

A military motor containing several Fascists ran over a goose. The car was stopped immediately and on the appearance of the owner money was offered him as compensation for the loss of the goose. This he indignantly refused and became so angry that he stabbed the driver. More Fascists appeared on the scene and in the subsequent quarrel the goose owner was shot. Then the police arrived and arrested nineteen of the Fascists. They are now being held pending the result of investigation, but it is believed that they will be released, as they acted "in self-defence."

Crooked Agitator Is Suing a Duke

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Duke of Northumberland, the Morning Post and its editor, H. A. Gwynne were defendants today in a libel action in the King's Bench Division. The plaintiff was W. F. Watson, chairman of the North London Unemployed Council, who conducted his own case.

The alleged libel was contained in an article published by the Duke in the Morning Post in August 1920 entitled: "Bolshevist Plot in England" which referred to Watson's unsavoury reputation and declared that Watson had boasted that he had formed the nucleus of 200 Soviets and had corrupted many Irish soldiers.

The plaintiff also stated that the allegations were also made in a pamphlet published by the Duke in 1916 regarding workers' organizations in the munition factories, in which he said: "If we had half the grit of the old trade unionists and Chartists there would be some slit gizzards in Park Lane."

He also admitted that he had received money from Scotland Yard for reports on Bolshevist activities but declared he intended to deceive the authorities and took their money to use in the workers' movement. He said he had sent the Scotland Yard authorities, a lot of twaddle.

Doctors And Divorce

Men and women disappointed in their life-mates feel too often that the one course open to them is to see a lawyer and start divorce proceedings. They might better consult a doctor first.

For again and again, the trouble of which divorces grow are essentially medical. Ignorance of sex hygiene, nervous irritability due to faulty living habits, morbid jealousy springing from psychasthenic weakness—these provide the starting points for innumerable divorces.

Repeatedly it happens, in fact, that doctors all unknowingly avert divorces by correcting conditions which, if left uncorrected, would soon or late culminate in court action.

Here, for example, is a woman who seeks medical treatment because of an extreme nervousness. She cannot sleep, she cannot digest her food, everything seems to be wrong with her.

The doctor, investigating, finds that absolutely nothing is wrong so far as her physical organism is concerned. Questioned, the patient denies that she has any cause for worry that might account for her condition.

But the doctor is skeptical. He has real education for marriage, and until marriages that perhaps ascertain that the patient is "not exactly happy" in her home life. Meantime he perhaps court intervention.

Divorce, statistics show, is on the increase. In these years of growing enlightenment as to the psychology and psychopathology of human behavior, it should be steadily decreasing.

But it will not decrease until we have real education for marriage, and until marriages that perhaps ascertain that the patient is "not exactly happy" in her home life. Meantime he perhaps court intervention.

There are hundreds of instances in which separations and divorces are sought on the ground of "incompatibility of temperament" or similar circumstances, in which the right course of action would have been for the parties concerned to consult a doctor before resorting to drastic measures.

Why should not an irritable husband or a nagging wife take such a reasonable step before seeking legal advice which may lead to irreparable misery and disaster for them both?

There are thousands of cases which are now dealt with in the public courts, the proper place for which is the consulting room of the specialist.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. THEO. M. TAYLOR. There peacefully passed away on October 9th, 1921, Eithel Jane, wife of Theo. M. Taylor, of Granville, Lot 21. Although in delicate health for a number of years her death came rather unexpectedly as she had only been confined to her bed a couple of days before the Angel of death called her from her earthly surroundings and took her to be with God in whom she confidently put her trust. She was a member of the Methodist church at Granville, where she performed the duties of organist for a number of years before her retirement from the activities of life. Being a young woman 33 years of age of a kind generous and cheerful disposition—despite her suffering, she made many friends and was a general favorite in the community. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Ayers and the remains laid to rest in the Granville cemetery there to hear the masters call "well done good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of the Lord." There are left to mourn besides the husband the father and mother Mr. and Mrs. Colley, one brother William D. and one sister Verma, all residing at Pounds Mills. The pall bearers were her cousins, Gerald Burgoyne, Edward Burgoyne, John Burgoyne, Ernest Colley, Everett Taylor and Tupper Taylor.

Arms Conference Over By Christmas

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Appointment today of the committee of Admirals to draft the technical agreement covering the limitation of navy armaments was viewed by leading members of several delegations as a most important step towards the successful and comparatively early conclusion of the Conference. The opinion was expressed by some delegates that the conference might conclude its work in a month, or that it might be possible to adjourn before Christmas leaving some details to committees if necessary, it was said, the principal delegates could return to Washington later for the signing of the agreements.
