village. It would meet the need and should be very successful. There is also a great opening for a boot and shoe business and also men's and ladies' ready to wear. A radio repair shop would do good. The young people of the village and district need a playground with a rink and baseball diamond. Mr. Charles Corrigan who purchased the McLellan property in Mt. Stewart last fall, has remodelled same and opened a Beauty Parlor which is a welcome addition to the business life of Mt. Stewart. Mr. Corrigan is well and favorably known having lived in Tracadie before he joined the Royal Canadian Airforce and after his discharge took a course in hairdressing. Other successful business besides Mr. Corrigan's started by veterans are, Harry Crane who operates a shingle and saw mill, Mr. Freddie Clark, who has opened a feed mill, Percy Griffin has a quick lunch counter, Colin MacDonald has joined in business with his brother Reginald has built a fine new theatre. Louis McAskill has opened up a shoe and harness making shop, Ralph Dunn and Basil Jay has built a new garage, Roy Lard has built and is operating a well drilling machine, Frank Trainor is building a restaurant, Martin Birt has opened a new store in Plaquid and P. H. MacMillan has opened a store on the St. Peter's Road, Arthur operates a transfer service to all parts of the Maritimes, Rod Innis is in business with his father-in-law in the barber shop.

BING, BOB AND DOT HIT NEW LAUGH HIGH "Road to Rio," the Paramount comedy which arrives today at the Prince Edward Theatre, is paved with blocks of solid belly-laughs. The film is the newest of the highly successful Bing Crosby-Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour screen travels which began some nine years ago when the trio hit the "Road to Singapore." That initial venture set laugh records all over the world, records that have been successively topped as Bing, Bob and Dot went on to visit Morocco, Zanzibar and Utopia. Now this latest threesome has hit the fun jackpot as they head south of the border and south of sanity. In "Road to Rio" Bing and Bob play a couple of down-at-the-heels musicians, cursed not only with unemployment but also with Bing's softness in the hands of women. The Bing's falling usually winds up as Bob's headache, and after being run out of town after town, the boys stow away on a ship bound for Brazil. Before the liner docks in Rio, our good neighbor policy has already taken a beating. Crosby and Hope meet up with Dorothy Lamour. She's in trouble, and that means the boys have to get mixed up in it, too. And before they can rescue her from the clutches of an aunt with an evil eye, they have done everything up to and including calling out the Brazilian cavalry led by Jerry Colonna. The Andrew Sisters, who have CIRCUS THRILLER OPENS Richard Denning Sheila Ryan Buster Crabbe and Mary Beth Hughes head the cast enacting Pine-Thomas' latest action-thriller for Paramount "Caged Fury," which opens today at the Capitol Theatre. "Caged Fury" is a suspense-packed murder melodrama with a circus background. It is an exciting behind-the-scenes glimpse of life, love and death under the big top, and of the fascinating people who live there. The lion cage is the focal point of the spine-tingling plot of "Caged Fury." Here a murder maniac playing a clown, plots the bestial deaths of those who stand in the way of the woman he loves. The tension mounts as two people become victims of this devilish scheme, one dying horribly at the claws of the enraged lion. The pulse-pounding finale finally brings relief from the breath-taking pace of this super thrill film. teamed with Crosby on some of our best-selling records, make their first screen appearance with The Groaner in "Road to Rio." They harmonizing with him on "You Don't Have to Know the Language", a catchy Samba number, is one of the film's musical highlights. This is one of the funniest and funniest films specially written for the picture. Heading the supporting cast of "Road to Rio" are Gale Sondergaard and Frank Faylen.
