Let's Face the Facts!

CANADA'S farmers have done their part—and done it nobly. With far too little help, they have sown extra land and brought it to produce more food than ever before. More food for our Armed Forces—more food for our Allies—more food for ourselves. Yet in the midst of all this plenty, Canada faces a food crisis. Food in the fields is not food on your table—is not food in your son's mess-kit somewhere in Europe or on the high seas. The food in the fields must be harvested and then processed in the food factories, and there aren't enough people to do this job. THE SITUATION IS DESPERATE!

- Q. Will I be paid?
A. Yes, at a rate that you can work out with the farmer with whom you work. A set wage is not in force and you may have had previous experience which makes you more valuable than a beginner.
- Q. How many hours will I have to work?
A. As many as possible. A whole day is best, or a week. But even afternoons and evenings will help considerably.
- Q. How will I get out to the job?
A. If possible, get a group of four or five to go together and alternate cars each evening. Cases will vary, but it will be part of your job to arrange your own transportation to suit your need.
- Q. To whom should I apply to offer my services?
A. Read this:

THESE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS MAY HELP YOU DECIDE:
Q. What work will be required of me?
A. Picking vegetables and tomatoes, digging potatoes, hoeing, haying and harvesting.
