Detroit Tigers Take 3-2 Lead Over Reds In World Series

Tigers Rout Reds On Greenberg's Homer And Newsom's 3-hit Hurling

(By JUDSON BAILEY Associated Press Sports Writer)

DETROIT, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Showboat Buck Newsom and his sidekick, Hank Greenberg, routed Cincinnati Reds 8-0 today for Detroit Tigers to give the American League Champions a three-games-to-two advantage in the 1940 World Series.

Newsom, who had beaten the Reds with eight-hit pitching in the first game of the series at Cincinnati, allowed only three scattered singles today. He walked only two men and altogether faced only 31 batters.

It was a truly magnificent pitching performance that included seven strikeouts and five pop outs, four of them to the catcher.

The luster of the big right hander's hurling dimmed the value of the 13-hit bombardment that the Detroit sluggers loosed on four Cincinnati pitchers. But in the beginning it was this fierce assault that wrecked the Reds.

Gene Thompson, a 23-year-old right hander, was Manager Bill McKechnie's starting choice and from the first few moments of the game it was evident he wasn't going to be able to hold the surging Tigers in check.

Finally the tide rolled over him when Barney McCosky and Charley Gehring hit successive singles and Greenberg followed with a tremendous home run that sailed right through one of the portals in the upper deck of the left field stands, 350 feet from home plate and some 60 feet above the ground.

Besides their 13 hits, which Greenberg accounted for a home run and two singles the Tigers received 10 bases on balls.

Moore was removed for a pinch hitter in the fifth and Johnny Vander Meer, the double no-hit southpaw who took his place on the mound, managed to hold Detroit scoreless until he, too, gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth.

John Hutchings, a rookie right hander, pitched the final round to the Tigers with less success. Greenberg led off with a single and Campbell sent him to third with another single. Then Hutchings made a wild pitch to let Greenberg come home.

For the first time in this series the fielding was errorless and Jimmy Rippe, the Reds' catcher, came up in the eighth inning with the finest catch of the five games when he ran far to his right and speared a liner by Sullivan, slipping and falling to the ground just as he got his glove on the ball, but always keeping the sphere in view as he rolled on the grass.

Recruiting Exceeded Expectations

By Frank Flaherty Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—(CP)—On the eve of the start of compulsory military training, figures compiled at the Department of National Defence show that the summer recruiting drive of the non-permanent active militia far exceeded expectations.

The aim was to bring the militia units up to war strength—about 90,000. When all enlistment returns were received from military districts it was found the militia had a strength of close to 112,000.

This figure added to the 165,000 men in the Canadian Active Service Force at home and overseas and the 240,000 additional recruits to be brought into the military by compulsory calls in the next 12 months indicates the Canadian army will have reached 500,000 men sometime next summer.

The active service force is the full-time soldiery. The two divisions and auxiliary troops overseas are, according to their commanders, fit and ready for any operation. The two divisions, reinforcements and auxiliary troops still in Canada are advancing towards the same status through constant training.

The coastal defence artillery and fortress troops and the troops mounting guard at key points and at internment camps are ready for the duties required of them.

The militia is serving not only as a recruiting agency for the active service force but as a reserve of partly trained men for active duty in Canada in case of emergency and for future C.A.S.F. requirements.

Present intention is to put eight groups of 29,700 young men through the 30-day training periods now arranged within the next 12 months. That means an increase in strength by some 240,000 men.

BRITISH CHILDREN IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—A group of 116 British children, who an escort said had been subjected to bombing 16 times on the train to their port of embarkation in England, arrived in New York Saturday.

They came by train from Canada, where they arrived Saturday after an 11 day crossing of the Atlantic, which was uneventful except for a false alarm that a submarine had been sighted.

The escort said the children ranking in ages from five to 15, took the bombing "bravely." The children will go to foster-homes. The youngest, five-year-old K. Simir Stevenson, is headed for Sitka, Alaska.

Camp Life From Privates' Angle

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—(CP)—Canada's Class of 1918-19 will pick up a smattering of military essentials in the 30 days of camp life starting next week — but there won't be time to become adept at "swinging the lead" it takes years of professional training to make an expert in that line.

The fine art of "soldiering" — the navy's word for workshirking — is an inevitable by-product of almost any military training but recruits from militia camps, across the country indicate there was a minimum of buck-passing, kicking the gong and general unwillingness to do a fair share of the work at hand.

Except in the grease and grime of the cookhouse fatigue the summertime militia tent-camps saw next to no tendency to shirk. Hired kitchen staffs eliminate the cookhouse job in the heated hutments of this month's camps. So the innate inclination to rest instead of work will find some new outlet.

Fatigue Worries

The consensus of competent observers — privates all — is that the surest way to avoid extra work is to be born with a name starting with Z, for army selection is largely alphabetical. Next-best guarantee is not to be thin, bald or redheaded. It takes a sergeant a fortnight to learn his men's names, so "Slim," "Baldy" and "Red" do the non-routine jobs for the first two weeks.

The run-of-mine militiaman encounters a minimum of fatigue worry. If he keeps in step and can order men without fracturing a toe he'll miss the awkward squad and won't top the list for the chore-call. If he's weak in his drill his safest spot is at the middle of his platoon's centre rank—and no one will ever remember his name.

Analysts of militia-camp training agree the civilian-army manning to its extra fatigue duties with a fatalistic will. They conferred quick-thinking honors on those who snatched acceptance on unexpected calls for messengers "into town" or for duty on the wood-pile, the most philosophically congenial of all fatigues.

The problem of learning the militia-camp syllabus without becoming an expert at culinary and sanitary tasks resolves itself into knowing when to jump at a job. If you keep jumping at the wrong job you're liable to end up a corporal.

CAPTURED FREIGHTER ARRIVES

A WEST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Oct. 4.—(CP)—The German speed freighter Weser arrived at this port today with a prize crew aboard. She was under naval escort.

The crew of the Weser, captured last week off the coast of Mexico by a Canadian cruiser, were placed in some custody immediately after their arrival. There were 38 officers and men.

Air Marshal Returns To Ottawa

OTTAWA, Oct. 6.—(AP)—Air Marshal W. A. Bishop always "high" on the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, returned to the capital Saturday night from the United Kingdom and told newsmen his visit was a "new conception" of the plan's importance.

"The plan is even more important than I had previously imagined," said the Canadian ace of the first Great War, "and I am sure that Canadian Air Force recruiting, it will be a vital factor in winning the war."

Air Marshal Bishop flew back across the Atlantic in the British flying boat Clyde, landing at Bonaventure, Que., Saturday afternoon. Then he boarded an R.C.A.F. plane for the rest of his journey to near-by Rockcliffe air station.

Optimistic about the progress of the air war, he said Britain is on the way to gaining numerical superiority over the enemy. British figures on enemy losses were conservative, and a "definite under-estimation."

"In addition," he said, "we have superiority in our machines, and is the quality of our personnel."

LONDON, Oct. 6.—(CP)—The diplomatic correspondence of Reuters News Agency suggested today that "the Balkans may offer scope" for axis action soon.

"Greece seems to be in the first line of fire," he said, "and there are reports of considerable concentrations of Italian forces on the Albanian frontier."

"The Greeks are reported to have adopted counter-measures and, no doubt, will resist any attempt at forceful violation of their territory. It is doubtful, however, whether Italy will proceed quite so crudely as an act of aggression would automatically make the British guarantee effective."

"It is more likely that under a threat of overwhelming force Italy will demand the right to use Greek harbors and airbases so as to place herself in a more favorable position in the Eastern Mediterranean and facilitate her campaign against Egypt."

"The island of Crete would be of inestimable value to the Italians — but Britain will have something to say in the matter of any such concessions even if her aid has not been invoked."
