This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry

Save $2 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.00. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough—stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, croup, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in gualacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully. A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to the Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A Grizzly's Strength

It is related that a grizzly bear that had had one of its fore paws so shot as to render it useless, employed the other to draw its weight of 1,000 pounds up an incline almost precipitous, a seemingly impossible feat.

A Californian asserts that while in the mountains he observed a big grizzly in the act of carrying a dead cow home to her cubs. From his position on the mountain side the observer could follow every movement of the bear in the sparsely timbered valley below. He contends that the big beast carried the cow in her forepaws for a distance of three miles, across jagged rocks several feet in height; over fallen logs around the rocky mountain side, where even a mule could not get a foothold, to a narrow trail up the steep mountain.

This bear, it appears, stopped not for a moment's rest, but proceeded straight on. The observer followed her, and about half a mile from her lair shot her.

NOT NEAR RELATIVES

Sword Fish and Saw Fish Belong to Different Families

Related to the sharks are the odd saw fishes of the tropics, which are common in the lagoons, bayous and sounds of the West Indies. These fish grow to a length of twenty to twenty-five feet and as they are of no real value are never fished or hunted to any extent.

In fact, the fishermen dread these creatures, for they often become entangled in their nets and rip and tear them to pieces by lateral jerks and sweeps of the huge "saw" on the nose. This "saw" is a bony elongation of the nose and is armed on either side with large, sharp, strong teeth, and in the largest fish these "saws" grow to five or six feet long and nearly a foot wide.

Very different from the saw fish is the sword fish, which is related to the mackerels and is of great value for food and is widely and assiduously hunted or fished on the southern New England coast as well as in the Gulf of Mexico and in the West Indies. The sword fish is a splendid creature, often weighs as much as six hundred pounds and has huge, brilliant eyes, clean, speedy lines and a long horny snout or "sword" with which it can impale another fish or even pierce the strongest oaken timber of a boat.
