THE SUN TAN VOGUE Is Here For A Definite Stay BY ANNETTE

And don't you love it? No small wonder for its popularity. Today's model is enticingly cool with its low-waisted back, crossed by suspender straps.

For tennis, it's adorable in pink cotton pique. And the small coat will be a revelation.

Style No. 595 may be had in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. It takes but 3 yards of 39-inch material to make it for the 16-year size.

White cotton mesh, pale blue linen, white flat washable crepe silk and light green shantung are stunning for this model.

Be sure to fill in the size of the pattern. Send stamps or coin (coin preferred).

Price of pattern 5c.

Form with fields for Name, Street Address, City, State, and No. 595. Size.

For The Cook

DATE NUT BREAD

- 2 cups-hot wheat breakfast cereal 1/2 cup brown sugar. 1 teaspoon salt. 1 1/4 cups nutsmeats (pecan or walnuts). 1 1/4 cups stoned and chopped dates. 2 tablespoons butter. 1 yeast cake. Lukewarm water. Flour.

Mix the hot breakfast cereal with the brown sugar, salt, chopped nutsmeats and dates; add the butter, melted; allow to cool until lukewarm, then add the yeast cake (dissolved in 1/2 cup lukewarm water), and enough bread flour to knead. Cover and set in warm place to rise; when doubled in bulk, shape in two loaves and put into buttered bread pans; let rise again until doubled in bulk and bake in moderate oven for about 45 minutes.

"So you had a New England bolted dinner?" "They called it that, but I think they must have left out several of the states."

WITH ALMA ARCHER

It seems ridiculous to want Sunday-night supper on a different plate from any other night, but nevertheless it's true. No formula of chicken a la king, souffie, or potato salad, will give you the right answer unless it's served on a special buffet chop plate.

There are at least six new designs, all on ivory-body Bavarian china, in a new 14-inch Sunday-night-supper size, and unless we're positively disrespectful about our Sunday groceries, it might behoove us to check the china cupboard.

Why Must Only Wives Be Beautiful Though Ugly? — Foolish Girl Who Fell for Married Philanderer — Selfish Parents Who Forbid Guests to Children

Dear Dorothy Dix—Why do they put so much stress on women keeping young and beautiful while nobody seems to care about a man's looks? Take it from me, if you look around in any company of middle-aged people the wives are just as good-looking and slim and well-dressed as the men.

Answer:

The white woman's burden has always been the obligation to be beautiful though ugly. No matter what her virtues, no matter what her achievements, she has always had to be a good-looker or else all the balance was dust and ashes.

Nor could she claim that if she was short on looks she was long on performances; that if her outside adornment was scanty she offset them by her inward attractions and that she had a brilliant mind, a beautiful heart and a lovely soul.

There is no other one thing that women have envied men so much as the privilege they have had of being as homely as God made them and not having to spend their lives camouflaging their personal appearance and vainly trying to be living pictures when nature turned them out chromes.

What this has cost women in money, in time, in suffering, in self-sacrifice, no tongue can tell, but every plain-faced sister of us could add a chapter of personal confessions to the Book of Martyrs that would wring tears from a stone.

Of course, if a man is handsome that is his luck and so much to the good, but his looks do not figure in his success in life. They are relatively of no importance. Nobody cares whether the President has a face like cream cheese or a Grecian profile.

When a man goes to hire a private secretary all he is interested in is the lad's ability to spell, his ability to take dictation and his general efficiency and reliability. The employer doesn't even notice whether he has red hair and freckles or looks like a sheik in the movies.

This having to create an illusion of beauty where none existed has been bad enough, heaven knows, but a worse misfortune still has befallen women in the last few years and that is having the curse of perpetual youth laid upon them.

Look how women have had to dress! Ninety and nineteen bought at the same specialty shop. Grandmothers and granddaughters both wearing wisps of chiffon. Emaciated old ladies exposing their vertebrae, which looked as if it should have been in a skeleton closet instead of being at a ball.

Dear Miss Dix—I am madly in love with my employer who is twice my age. His wife has been out of town for a few weeks and while she was gone he paid me a great deal of attention and gave me plenty of money.

For can't you see, you poor, silly girl, in what an unenviable position it puts you when you are cast aside like a toy of which he is tired or with which he is afraid to play any more by your married lover?

And it is nothing to him that he has won your love and that he leaves you with a hurt heart and a damaged reputation.

Of course, there is nothing you can do about it. When a man shows a woman the door all she can do is to make as good an exit as she can.

For a girl to have an affair with a married man is always playing with fire and nearly always she gets burned, which is perhaps no more than she deserves, but she suffers all the same.

Dear Miss Dix—We are four brothers and sisters in our late teens and early 20s. We all work and make good salaries and have many invitations to dinners, bridge parties, etc.

It is because parents are selfish and don't want to have their comfort disturbed or their habits interfered with. Father wants to sit around in his stocking feet and he doesn't want to have to be dressed up and so he doesn't want young people coming in.
