MISSION BAND ANNIVERSARY—On the afternoon of Feb. 11, the Manse at Hampton, was filled with members and visitors of the Esther Ayers Memorial Mission Band. Besides being the regular monthly meeting, this was also the first anniversary of the organization of this Band. After the usual devotional and business exercises, a nicely prepared program was successfully carried out. This consisted of choruses, sunbeam drill, recitations and report from the Watch-tower. The retiring Secretary, Violet French, then gave a comprehensive review of the year's activities of the Mission Band. Especially noteworthy in this carefully written review were, the increased membership, from nineteen to thirty-three; the good financial standing, twenty-five dollars having been given to Missions; and the enjoyable and instructive meetings throughout the year. The new officers were then installed by the pastor, Rev. G. Ayers, a Mission Band life member. Excellent refreshments were served by the Superintendent, a special feature being a birthday cake, daintily decorated in the Mission Band colors and greatly displaying one brightly burning candle. When the wants of all were fully satisfied, the meeting adjourned, each declaring this to be the banner meeting of the year. Much of the credit for the splendid showing of this Band is due to the capable and painstaking Superintendent, Mrs. Hammond Johnson, who has cheerfully given much time, thought and energy to this great work among the young people. The following are the new officers: Superintendent, Marguerite Ince.—(Patriot please copy).

Staring Theme Marks New Film

Pathos and comedy, thrills and drama, mingle in Jackie Cooper's latest and perhaps most interesting appearance on the talking screen, in "Divorce in the Family," now being seen at the Prince Edward Theatre.

The story is a vivid drama in which divorce and its relation to the children who are affected by it is the motivating theme of a swift-moving plot.

Jackie is the child of divorce. His mother has remarried, and he has a stepfather, a doctor. He is torn between love of his mother and father, and cannot understand his stepfather any more than the latter can understand him. He is first rebellious, then becomes despondent—but finally, partly through the help of his real father, learns that his stepfather is his friend, and that there is no love like his mother's.

"Downstairs" Tense Drama

John Gilbert turns author and villain at the same time in "Downstairs," his latest starring picture now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

As an author he has furnished one of the strangest and most gripping plots the screen has seen in some time. As an actor he gives the screen a debonair, unscrupulous villain who makes up in audacity what he lacks in morals.

The star upset all precedent, abandoning romantic roles to play this part, a cold-blooded characterization which might have been written for a Von Stroheim—in fact it was once planned that Gilbert direct the Austrian screen malfactor in "Downstairs."

Malpeque

A very successful carnival was held in Malpeque Rink on Tuesday evening, Feb. 14th. The largest crowd that the new rink has held was present and judging by the favorable comments passed, all enjoyed the program to the full. Mr. L. D. MacNutt officiated as master of ceremonies. The first event on the program was a half hour costume skate. The judges of this event were Mrs. George Bearlsto, Mrs. L. D. MacNutt, and Mr. Wilbert Delaney. Miss Margaret MacGougan and Mr. Oliver Burns were the winners of the ladies and gentlemen's prizes. The presentation was made by Rev. M. A. MacMillan. Prizes for costumes were also presented to Miss Eleanor Ramsay and Master Glennie Crozier. Prizes for the best skating were presented to Marjorie Crozier and Robert Craig by Mr. Archie Woodside.

The second event was a mystery game between the Malpeque Tiny Tots and the Hamilton Heavy Weights. This game was fast and furious and refereed in chief Archie Woodside was forced to hand out more than one reprimand to over anxious players. The Hamilton team forced the play and scored two goals before their opponents got going and then it was too late as the victors refused to play anything but a strictly defensive game and at the end of the play the score still read 2-0 and amidst loud cheers Mr. G. W. Ramsay presented to Mr. William Woodside, captain of the winning team, the cup emblematic of championship.

The next event was the Old Timers skate. The winners of the prizes in this class were: Mrs. Ralph Bearlsto and Mr. George Proffitt. These prizes were presented by Rev. F. Williamson. This ended the program and the rest of the evening was spent in a general skate. Much credit is due Mr. Irskine MacNutt for his tireless efforts in organizing the carnival and helping to make it such a success. The following is a list of the costumes: Ralph Bearlsto, Explorer; Mrs. Ralph Bearlsto, Aunt Jeemima; Roy Woodside, Bridgroom; Mrs. Roy Woodside, Bride; Thelma Donald, Bridgroom; Gene Simpson, Bride; Thelma Woodside, Gipsy; Alma Woodside, Gipsy; Wesley Crozier, Country Squire; Marjorie Crozier, Valentine; Rosa Bell, Nurse; Margaret MacGougan, Queen of Hearts; Marjorie MacNutt, Santa Claus; Fred Donald, Clown; Aulden Donald, St. Valentine; Oliver Burns, Black Knight; Reddie Gallant, Hard Times; Mrs. Bill Mills, Jack O'Tar; Mrs. Earl MacKay, Lady of 1847; Hazel Hoppod, Dutch Girl; Arnold Bryenton, Big Devil; Lawrence Ramsay, Little Eleanor Ramsay, Nurse; Bruce Crozier, Indian; Everett Donald, Grandmother.

her husband, five daughters, Mrs. Leo Frank, Sturgeon; Mrs. Herbert Dixon, Bradabane; the Misses Adele, Thelma and Cora; four sons Ansel, Vernon, Edison and Charles at home; her mother Mrs. William Abbott, Malpeque; one brother, Hartwell Abbott, Malpeque; four sisters, Mrs. Hickay Darnley; Mrs. Frank MacKay, Sea View and two in the United States.

There passed away at his home in Malpeque on Feb. 9th, Victor Peake at the age of 85 years. Mr. Peake had been for many years a resident of this district where he followed the trade of blacksmith and by his obliging nature won many friends. He leaves to mourn his widow and son John to whom sincere sympathy is extended. The funeral was held on Sunday, Feb. 12th. Service at the home and in Keir Memorial Church was conducted by Rev. Mr. Williamson, assisted by Rev. Mr. MacMillan. The pallbearers were: Sinclair MacGougan, Harold Stewart, Erskine MacNutt, Everett Burt, Jas. MacKinnon, Hon. Thomas MacNutt.—J.

Murray Harbor

On February 13th, the regular monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Women's Institute was held in the upstairs room of the public hall, Murray Harbor. Meeting opened about 7.30 p. m. with President, Mrs. Milton White, in the chair. Roll call was responded to by members giving an original valentine verse. Thirty-five members responded and the original verses repeated were good, some amusing, and some humorous. The business part of the programme was then carried out and reports heard from visiting committees to Murray Harbor and Cape Bear Schools. Institute has purchased a splendid globe for Cape Bear School and some smaller articles for Murray Harbor school. Teachers of Schools have offered to put on their splendid play, "She's A Bachelor," in aid of Institute work and their splendid offer has been accepted. In the absence of Mrs. H. L. Machon, who was to have read a paper, and Mrs. J. McLeod, who should have had a contest, Mrs. J. J. McKay read a splendid article from "The Institute News," from the pen of L. M. Montgomery. Also from "The Institute News," Mrs. L. J. Brooks read a paragraph on Institute donations to Provincial Sanatorium not compulsory or binding. Programme committee was appointed to create programmes for next six months work. Meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem. A splendid lunch was served by hostesses, and a social half hour enjoyed. Two new members were received into Institute membership, and one visitor present. Visitors are always welcomed at meetings.

Strong Courtroom Scene

There is a remarkable dramatic scene in the court sequence, where he pleads to be allowed to go to his father, and a poignant farewell after the court rules otherwise. There are comical sequences of "puppy love," the thrill of a wreck and a rescue, and the drama of the operation in which the stepfather gives his own blood to save his stepson.

Lewis Stone, as the father, interested mostly in science until he learns he has lost his family, gives a remarkable performance, and Conrad Nagel is at his best as the crisp young physician. Lois Wilson is the mother, and does some remarkable scenes with Jackie. Maurice Murphy plays the older brother and has puppy love sequences with pretty Jean Parker.

Spreads Web of Intrigue

Gilbert proves that villains can be not only interesting but glamorous in his vivid portrayal of the astonishing character who enters a "downtown" through the servants' hall as a chauffeur and spreads a web of intrigue that meshes cook and countess, butler and baron alike.

There is a terrific dramatic climax in which a vengeful husband wreaks a blood-curdling revenge. There are light comedy moments when the villain gaily hoodwinks royalty and servants alike. There are tense dramatic moments when he escapes detection by sheer audacity. No weakling story is this—but real, solid drama. Gilbert is the Gilbert of "The Big Parade" again in this offering.

In the late afternoon of February 12th, while the wind was blowing full blast from the west, residents of Murray Harbor were rather surprised to hear the roar of a plane motor overhead. Many of the citizens went out of doors to take a look around, and saw a small plane making ready to land. But in the home of one of the citizens nothing was heard until a visitor at the house looked out of the window and exclaimed, "look here," and just outside the front door the little plane was touching the earth. No sooner said than the Moth was off again to make a landing a few yards further west, and in the shelter of a wooded place. The plane was C. P. A. K. C. and carried a passenger from New Glasgow on business to Murray Harbor and other parts of the Island. On Monday, about 10.20 the plane took off with a south west wind enroute for Montague. The pilot told us that their trip from N. S., a distance of about 26 miles, was made in 27 minutes, with a high wind that made the voyage very choppy.

The evening service at the United Church, Feb. 12th, was well attended. The pastor, the Reverend T. B. Goudge, read for the Old

A Home Made Refrigerator

(By W. M. Lea, Victoria)

The storing of a sufficient quantity of ice to provide cold storage through the summer months should be promptly done at this season of the year. Any sort of a building with tight roof and walls will answer the purpose if sufficient space is left between ice and walls to fill with sawdust. To prevent admission of air, it should be tramped regularly during hot weather.

A comparatively cheap refrigerator or ice box can be made, by building two boxes, one an inch smaller on all sides than the other, so as to leave an inch space to pack with sawdust. The one we are using was built about ten years ago, and has proved to be a great convenience and saving of many steps to the cellar, especially in keeping cream and milk. Many home made refrigerators that have been built in this style, are now in use in this community.

This refrigerator may be built in any size required. On a dairy farm it should stand high enough to hold a standard 80 lb. cream can, 24 inches in height. The outside box, or the one we have been using, has proven very satisfactory, stands 2 feet 4 inches high. It has a double cover that is lifted by a rope passed through a pulley and weighted. The box is 3 feet 6 inches long, and 2 feet 4 inches wide, with a galvanized iron box to hold the ice, 18 inches high by 12 inches wide. This box will hold a piece of ice large enough to last two to three days. A drain pipe long enough to go through boxes and the floor below with piece of rubber hose attached will carry off all water, and save emptying the box. Shelves may be made to cover box containing the ice, and sufficiently large to hold all perishable foods, and if care is taken to keep the ice replaced, cream will keep perfectly sweet in this refrigerator for several days. All of the 14,000 lbs. of cream delivered at the creamery from our herd in 1932, which graded special, was kept in this semi cold storage plant will be found a great convenience to all farmers families. It is almost indispensable to the dairy farmer.

Good butter cannot be made from sour or flavoured cream. The Testament lesson, psalm 19, and from the New Testament, Acts the 6th chapter. The text for the splendid and able address rendered, was from St. Matthew's Gospel, Chapter 5 and verse 13. "Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt have lost his savour, wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men." Hymns sung were selected from the hymnary. A lovely selection was rendered by the choir. Organist, Mrs. Albert McLeod.

In connection with the above services the following amusing incident occurred.—Keep in mind the words of the Text.—During the address the Pastor noticed that two strange gentlemen present were, for some reason unknown to him, much amused. He knew they were gentlemen, and could not see why his words should bring smiles to their faces and an amused twinkle to their eyes. When the Pastor shook hands with the two strangers at the door, one of them said to him, "You got us alright—Our business is salt."—P.

majority of our creameries are managed by competent makers, and the responsibility of the poor quality of a percentage of our butter largely falls on the shoulders of a small majority of our cream producers, who find it difficult to consistently care for their cream in a proper sanitary manner. There is no secret in caring for milk and cream in order to produce a high class product. This desirable result may be obtained by keeping all utensils clean and the milk and cream as cold as possible, after promptly removing from the stable after each milking.

Under present discouraging low prices every creamery patron should continually remember that his one lot of off flavoured cream may be the means of injuring an entire churning.

Cream grading can only financially punish the careless patron. It cannot improve the quality of delivered cream. The salesman can easily increase the value of his sales once a creamery has established a reputation for high class butter.

I have always believed it was a great loss to this Province, that print butter cannot be graded, as I am satisfied if this were done it would soon convince the indifferent producer that carelessness and neglect in producing milk and cream are entirely too costly.

NEW ZEALAND TO REGULATE BUTTER EXPORTS

Canadian Representations Bring Forth Friendly Statement From Sister Dominion

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 20.—New Zealand is prepared to consider regulating her exports of butter to Canada in view of Canadian representations that farmers of the Dominion fear the influx of New Zealand butter might harm their own production.

J. G. Coates, Minister of Finance, gave this assurance today and declared further New Zealand would make every effort to maintain the friendly trade relations existing between this country and Canada.

Affirming the Government's intervention of guarding the mutually beneficial trade agreement signed during the Imperial Conference, the Finance Minister referred to the advice that had been received from Canada regarding New Zealand butter exports.

The Trade Treaty would expire in May unless renewed. Mr. Coates said, intimating a new agreement would be drawn up if the old agreement was not continued. "So far," he pointed out however, "the trade is lopsided in Canada's favour."

So far as the treaty with Canada was concerned, Mr. Coates expressed the hope it would not be endangered by the regulation of New Zealand butter exports that might be made.
