

BRITISH COLONY AT HANKOW BESIEGED BY INFURIATED MOB

Taking Advantage of the Absence of British Marines Chinese Coolies Invaded the British Concession After Destroying the Unguarded Barricades—Situation Said to be "Very Discouraging"

(Canadian Press) PEKING, Jan. 5.—Official despatches from Hankow, where the British colony is being besieged by thousands of infuriated coolies, as the result of anti-foreign agitation, shows the situation is growing increasingly serious and indicate that the angry natives are out of control of the Chinese military forces which undertook to maintain order. Practically all barricades to the concession have been destroyed and a consular despatch says the British Bund, the principal thoroughfare for foreigners along the waterfront there, is "unsafe for foreigners". It adds that "the situation is very discouraging."

A German citizen was stabbed and seriously wounded Monday by agitators within the British concession. The British armed forces feeling that it would have been impossible to hold the masses without firing retired, leaving the concession in charge of Cantonese troops. The British war memorial opposite the consulate was damaged and all barricades at entrances to the concession were demolished.

As a result of a conference yesterday between British and Chinese authorities by which maintenance of order was left to the Chinese, British marines were not landed which consequently left the barricades unguarded. The coolies apparently acting under an organized plan, removed the barricade by sections and by 5.30 p. m. gradual invasion of the concession started. The available British armed force was inadequate to deal with the situation and had it not retired it possibly would have been overwhelmed, with great resultant danger to the civil population. British authorities feel that if the marines land again there will be an immediate crisis.

FOREIGN OFFICE VIEW LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Foreign Office today said that the situation at Hankow was fraught with the gravest dangers but that it was felt that the British authorities on the spot would be successful in averting armed conflict. The situation is considerably easier by the evacuation of the British marines and the placing of responsibility for law and order within the British concession on the Chinese authorities themselves. It was stated that the position of the British marines who were holding mobs on bay but under the strictest orders not to fire a shot, was untenable and had consequently been evacuated has been directly to the Foreign Office.

The Foreign Office says that the Hankow disturbances were due to Cantonese agitation attempting to provoke the British to use force in defense of the British concession, thereby stirring up another crisis such as occurred recently at Wanchien, in order to embrace Great Britain's newly declared policy of conciliation. British Still Under War Economy Rules

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Britons never will be slaves to prohibition, boast many of King George's subjects, who, nevertheless, still put up with the war as precaution against air raids and to save fuel and coal. The Daily Mail, which has revived its campaign to abolish these restrictions, imposed by "Dora"—Spence of the Realm Act—lists the following: Eggs cannot be sold after 8 p. m., unless boiled or made into mayonnaise. Potatoes must not be sold in their skins after 8 p. m., but can be sold as a salad. Apples, pears and lemons are forbidden for four hours before midnight. A shop may keep open after eight to give change to people to buy cigarettes from an automatic machine, but not for the sale of cigarettes from the store itself. If a chemist is asked to sell a box of matches, he must be provided with proof that "reasonable grounds exist for believing" that the purchaser is some other person than a headache.

BABY ASTRIDS ALREADY APPEARING IN BELGIUM

BRUSSELS, Jan. 5.—There are already hundreds of little baby Astrids in Belgium. Parents have taken a great fancy to naming their infant daughters after the Swedish princess who has just become the wife of the Belgian crown prince. A village in the Belgian Congo has also been named after her. The discovery is announced by a literary journal that the name of Astrid, although thoroughly Scandinavian, was given to a heroine in a book written by Guido Gezelle, a noted Flemish author, years before the Swedish princess was thought of as a consort for the crown prince.

December 31, 1926.

The reading of the financial report was followed by a few remarks by the President, Dr. Ayers. After a committee consisting of W. E. Bentley, J. P. Gordon and Murdoch Ross, had been appointed for the selection of officers, Rev. Ross C. Eaton addressed the congregation in part as follows, taking as his subject "The Church's Book: The Bible."

Christianity is not a book religion, but it is a religion with "The Great Book." We are not enslaved by the writing of some dead hand of the past as strict and stern de-votes of the letter of the law of some sacred writing. If all the Bibles in the world were destroyed never to be written again, true religion would still flourish in the land. A great admirer of that outstanding Christian ship-owner and tradesman Sir George Burns, said on one occasion that "were all the Bibles of the land destroyed as today stamp and type of Burns, he would believe in Christianity." It is thus primarily a religion of the Spirit with writings on the tables of living stone. The Bible is the written declaration of the living truth. Recognizing this, how large is our indebtedness to the Great Book; that has kept in a definite, pure and free from the great essential truths of the Christian faith. How eloquent and universal has been the testimony of the Word of God, speaking bravely when human tongue is often silent and journeying to the uttermost ends of the earth, making its visit in millions of lives where man himself could never have gone. During the past 50 years we have come to a new appreciation and fuller understanding of the Bible. So quiet and gradual has this all come about that few people today would realize that something altogether new in the history of the world's ways of thinking, or something similar to the Reformation has taken place. The Bible has become a new Book to many of us. Wycliff and Tyndale in their day were the leaders in the movement that gave the Bible to the people in a language that could be understood. Thanks to that much misunderstood and maligned "Historical Criticism" the Bible has been brought down out of the clouds of obscurity and is no longer regarded as a talisman or a book of magic words, but is made to glow with a Divine light of human sympathy and reason. The central character is revealed to us not as the inhabitant of a remote spiritual world when poor weak humanity cannot enter, but as One who walks with us in all the lowly paths of life sharing our lot meeting our temptations and solving our difficulties. He is indeed the Divine, and necessary and we should all yet the "White Comrade" and Divinely Human. We understand that the Bible is the revelation of God, progressively developing as the mind of the different age periods culminates in Christ who is Central and by Whom all other events and characters are to be tested. His words become supreme for us and fulfill and supercede all that was previously given. Thus as the result of those who have reverently sought for light on this great Book as the fearless truth-seekers, we have a Book that ordinary reader understands and sees more intelligently than the most learned theologian of a century ago. The Bible needs no defence. We need fear no investigations of its treasures. As well, might we fear the sun to blot out the light of heaven as the one who attempts to invalidate the truth of the Word of God. Any anxiety on our part betrays our confidence in the ability of God to care for His interests in this world. We recall, a poem learned some years ago, "I stood one evening by the blacksmith's door, And heard the anvil ring the vesper chimes; And looking in, I saw upon the floor Old hammers worn with beatings and peals of time. 'How many anvils have you had' said I 'To wear and batter all these hammers so?' 'Just one' the blacksmith said with twinkling eye. The anvil wears the hammers out, you know.' And so methough the anvil of God's word For ages skeptic blows have beat upon' And though the sound of clanging still is heard The anvil is unharmed, the hammers gone. We are not going to exhaust our vocabulary tonight trying to eulogize this immortal Book. It needs no word of ours to commend it or add to its glory. It is not for us to pass judgment on it. It passes judgment on us. We recall the story of the American Tourist hastily making his way through the wonderful picture gallery in the European city, saying to the attendant 'there is nothing much worth seeing here is there?' to which he received the telling reply 'Sir, these pictures here are no longer on judgment, but the visitors are your consideration one, though which forces itself on us more and more. The primary need of the world as we see it in the light of our Bible is not for a wider distribution of the Book. That is good and necessary and we should all contribute as the appeal comes. It

Explosion Occurred in Pitch-Filled Hold a Few Moments After Score of Workmen Had Left For the Day.

(Canadian Press) BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 5.—One man is dead, three missing and thirty six injured as a result of an explosion in the pitch filled hold of the French barque Richelieu, of 3,000 tons, that transformed the trim four master into a seething inferno. Percy Lewis, 25, negro, died early today of burns and inhaled smoke and flames. All the ship's officers and ten French cadets aboard the vessel escaped injury. The 36 injured were in hospitals here suffering from serious burns. Thirty one of them are negroes. The explosion occurred in the vessel's number three hold as she lay alongside a railroad pier at Curtis, loading pitch. Without warning, and but a few moments after a score of workmen had left the hold for the day, a billow of flame and smoke shot up from the hatchway enveloping workers nearby. The blaze spread rapidly through the inflammable cargo, and despite the efforts of fire fighters raged for six hours, when the Richelieu sank. Captain Jules Corne of the Richelieu, after ordering all workmen ashore, followed them and helped tear the burning clothing from many of the victims. Two men were seen by firemen to fall back into the burning hold as they struggled to escape through the fiery hatchway. Many workers were found unconscious their clothing in flames. Firemen themselves barely escaped as the vessel sank. Only the cracking of the vat made gas warning but all reached safety.
