After luncheon was served a suitable address was read by the president of the Empire Club, Bradabane, of which William was an active member. A gift of remembrance was presented to him by the members of the club and Private Gillis replied in a few well chosen words, wishing the Club every success during his absence. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games and after the singing of God Save our splendid men all went home, wishing William God speed and a safe return back to his old friends again.

MUNICIPAL ENTERPRISE

One of the more recent municipal enterprises aimed at lessening the high cost of living is the operation of a fishing boat by the city of Portland, Ore. For some reason the city's fish market, opened a few months ago, was unable to obtain an adequate supply of fish, and so this vessel, a large gasoline schooner that served as a pilot boat, was fitted up by the city for fishing expeditions. Halibut, ling, cod, red snapper etc., have been caught in large quantities and prices for fish have been greatly reduced in consequence. The city has also conducted a campaign in which the people have taught how to prepare varieties of fish that are plentiful but have been little used heretofore.—Popular Mechanics.

KILL GRUBS IN BACKS OF CATTLE

If the grubs which cause the lumps or swellings under the skin in the backs of cattle are allowed to remain they will complete their growth, drop to the ground and transform to heel flies, which may reinfest the cattle during the spring and summer. The grubs weaken the cattle, cause them to fall off in flesh and milk, and decrease the value of the hide. The beef in the immediate vicinity of a grub becomes slimy and of a greenish color and is known to the butcher as "licked beef." The damage to the hides is usually placed at one-third their value, and the loss of beef to each infested animal ranges from $4.00 to $6.00 in pre-war times. The cattle are also injured in the spring by the presence of the fly which causes them to fret and stampede. The grubs injure the hides and beef from January until June.

The University of Missouri offers the following suggestions for eliminating warbles: The grubs may be pressed out through the opening at the top of the swelling. A sharp knife and a pair of tweezers will often facilitate the work of removing the grubs. Care should be taken to crush all the grubs removed to prevent their future development and transformation into flies. It is advisable to examine the cattle for lumps or swellings over the back every two or three weeks during the late winter and early spring in order to destroy the pest. Various oils are often used, which may be either smeared over the infested region, or applied to the mouth of the breathing hole of the grub. One or two applications are usually sufficient.

The treatment may also be given wild cattle by driving them through a chute with a man on either side of the chute equipped with an oil can filled with kerosene, mercurial ointment or turpentine. As the cattle pass through the hand is pressed over the backs of the animals and each lump or swelling is treated with the oil by inserting the slender nozzle of the can in the opening at the top of the lump.

Arsonical preparations and tobacco decoctions are often used as sprays or washes for the backs of cattle but the greasing lotions and oil sprays are usually more effective because they are more penetrating.
