Hot Soups for Cold Days

Some old recipes for soup start with, "Take 5 lbs. lean beef and 2 1-2 lbs. marrow bone". That would make soup a luxury in these days of rationed meat.

The French chef depends on the "pot au feu" for his stock. Into the pot he drops bits of bone from chops, parings from the roast, scraps of dried cooked meat, the chicken carcass, vegetables parings, outer leaves of lettuce or cabbage, celery tops, parsley, vegetable water, left over vegetables, bits of cold toast—even pea pods. The result is a delectable stock from which many different soups may be made. A free English translation of "pot au feu" might be "icebox soup" for so many of the little dabs of this and that which collect in the refrigerator would blend well and add to the stock.

Soup stock is better after it has been cooled and the fat removed

Vegetables added the last hour of cooking keep their delicate colour and flavour. If cooked for a long time they discolour and lose flavour. This is an advantage in making stock ahead of time straining it and storing in a cold place. It may be kept for several days. Vegetables, cereal etc. may be added and the soup cooked just long enough to make these added ingredients tender—seasoning is added last and judiciously.

A supply of canned soups on the shelf is a boon to today's housekeeper convenient in an emergency and often an economy for the small family. A can of vegetable soup added to home-made stock will serve a small family several meals and give a variety of vegetables not otherwise possible. Mixtures of two types of soup make interesting variations. Mix a can of pea soup and one of cream of tomato and serve "puree mongol" or with a can of chicken gumbo and one of vegetable make "soupe paysanne".

ONION SOUP SUPREME

2 cups onion rings
1-4 cup fat
3 tablespoons flour
3 cups of milk
2 bouillon cubes
1 1-2 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon catsup
3-4 teaspoon salt
1-8teaspoon pepper

Peel and slice onions thinly. Break into rings. Melt 2 tablespoons fat, add onion rings and cook until golden brown. Melt remaining fat, add flour and blend. Add milk and continue cooking, stirring constantly until thickened. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water and add to cream sauce. Add golden brown onion and seasoning. Bring to boiling point and serve immediately. Garnish with chopped parsley and sprinkle with finely grated cheese. Six servings.

HAMBURG VEGETABLE CHOWDER

3-4 lb. ground beet
3 tablespoons fat
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 medium carrots, diced
1-2 cup celery, diced
1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons salt
1-4 cup barley
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1 1-2 quarts water
2 cups potatoes, cubed

Brown meat in fat. Put all ingredients except potatoes in a large kettle and simmer slowly one hour. Add potatoes and continue simmering an hour longer. Serve with toast or crakers as a main dish. Serves 6 to 8.

EMERGENCY TOMATO SOUP

2 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1-2 cup finely chopped celery with leaves
2 tablespoons flour
1 bouillon cube
1 cup boiling water
2 1-2 cups canned tomatoes
2 tablespoons catsup or chili sauce
1 teaspoon sugar
1-8 teaspoon paprika
3-4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Melt fat, add onion and celery. Cook until tender. Add flour and blend well. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water and add to canned tomatoes. Add liquid to first mixture and stir until slightly thickened. Add catsup, sugar, paprika and salt. Just before serving add the chopped parsley. Six servings.

CAN'T PAY WAY

LONDON — (CP) — Battersea General Hospital, which for more than 50 years has been conducted on voluntary contributions, is to ask the government for financial help because it no longer is paying its way.

Seen above is an exterior view of Acadia University's Rink which now has the added attraction of artificial ice. The University of Toronto is the only other in Canada to precede this Maritime University in the installation of a freezing plant. The rink will provide skating facilities for the college students and citizens of Wolfville, and also will be the scene of many inter-collegiate and Annapolis Valley League hockey games.

Chips specialists, William Smith and family sold their two chip shops in England. They are seen on arrival at Halifax, now plan to make their potato tidbits for Canadians. From left are: Kenneth William, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Edna, Betty, Barbara and David. Two other sons are to arrive later. Mother said Barbara is the best cook of the family.
