THE SNOW BABY "COMES OUT"

Marie Ahnighito Peary, born further north than any other white child, whose babyhood is described in one of the most popular of children's books, The Snow Baby, has just made her debut to Washington society. It is safe to say that no debutante of the present season is more widely known. At the age of seven Miss Peary added to her laurels by collaborating with her mother in writing Children of the Arctic, on account of the Eskimo babies and queer animals she found on her second journey north, to welcome the future discoverer of the Pole.

OVER THE COUNTER

On a business trip to the city a farmer decided to take home to his wife a Christmas present of a shirt-waist. Going into a store and being directed to the waist department, he asked the lady clerk to show him some.

"What bust?" asked she. The farmer looked around quickly and answered: "I don't know; I didn't hear anything."—Ladies' Home Journal.

NEW USE FOR THE VILLAIN

We have it on excellent authority that all possible fiction plots have already been discovered. But Harold Bindloss seems to have found a twist that is at least infrequently used for his new novel, The Intriguers. This book has, as is usual, a villain and a hero, and—here is the unusual part—the hero's happiness depends not on the failure but on the success of the villain's machinations. We will not explain here just how this situation was brought about; suffice to say that the story is one of adventure in the northwestern wilds and involves a plot of blackmail.

LOST HIS WATCH

The Bishop of Winchester, at the thirteenth annual meeting of the Actors' Church Union at His Majesty's Theatre, Haymarket, related an incident which occurred at Dulnal Green while he was attending an inaugural meeting of the Oxford House movement. He had remarked that Oxford was holding out its hand to the east, and he hoped the east would hold out its hand to Oxford. Then he found someone had abstracted his watch from his pocket.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER

Mrs. H. A. Deming, of San Francisco, is said to have occupied a year in hunting up and fitting together the following thirty-eight lines from thirty-eight English poets. The names of the authors are given below:

- 1—Why all this toil for triumphs, of an hour?
2—Life's a short summer, man a flower.
3—By turns we catch the vital breath and die.
4—The cradle and the tomb, alas! so nigh.
5—To be is better far than not to be.
6—'Though all man's life may seem a tragedy;
7—But light cares speak when mighty cares are dumb.
8—The bottom is but shallow whence they come.
9—Your fate is but the common fate of all;
10—Unmingle joys here to no man's behalf.
11—Nature to each allots his proper sphere.
12—Fortune makes folly her peculiar care.
13—Custom does often reason overrule.
14—And throw a cruel sunshine on a fool.
15—Live well, how long how short, permit to heaven.
16—They, who forgive most shall be most forgiven.
17—Sin may be clasped so close we cannot see its face—
18—Vile intercourse where virtue has not place;
19—They keep each passion down, however dear;
20—Thou pendulum betwixt a smile and tear;
21—Her sensual snarles, let faithless pleasure lay
22—With craft and skill to ruin and betray;
23—Soar not too high to fall but stoop to rise.
24—We masters grow of all that we despise.
25—O, then renounce that impious self-esteem;
26—Riches have wings, and grandeur is a dream.
27—Think not ambition wise because 'tis brave.
28—The path of glory leads but to the grave.
29—What is ambition? 'Tis a glorious cheat.
30—Only destructive to the brave and great.
31—What's all the gaudy glitter of a crown?
32—The way of bliss lies not on beds of down.
33—How long we live, not years, but actions, tell;
34—That man lives twice who lives the first life well.
35—Make, then, while yet we may, your God, your friend,
36—Whom Christians worship, yet not comprehend.
37—The trust that's given guard, and to yourself be just;
38—For, live we how we can, yet die we must.
39—Young, 2; Dr. Johnson; 3; Pope; 4; Prior; 5; Sewall; 6; Spencer; 7; Daniel; 8; Sir Walter Raleigh; 9; Longfellow; 10; Southwell; 11; Congreve; 12; Churchill; 13; Rochester; 14; Armstrong; 15; Milton; 16; Bailey; 17; French; 18; Somerville; 19; Thompson; 20; Byron; 21; Smollett; 22; Crabbe; 23; Massinger; 24; Crowley; 25; Battie; 26; Cowper; 27; Sir Walter Davenant; 28; Gray; 29; Willis; 30; Addison; 31; Dryden; 32; Francis Quarles; 33 Watkins; 34; Herrick; 35; William Mason; 36; Hill; 37; Dana; 38; Shakespeare.—V.

JUNIOR HOCKEY LEAGUE FORMED

The much-talked-of hockey match between the "Suburbanites" of Southport and the "Imperials" of Bruce Stewarts took place in the Arena last Thursday night after the regular skate and quite a number of supporters of both teams, including several of the fair sex, lined the bleachers to witness one of the best of the local games yet played, which was, as the score 1-1 will indicate, a very close-contested game.

The tunic is still in vogue.
The petticoat has returned.
The turban shows no signs of waning.

Gaiters of heavy coarse mesh lace are the latest novelty.
The old-fashioned 'offering' and rose quilting have returned.
The fashionable blouse of the moment is white mousseline de soie, with a touch of brilliant color introduced somewhere.
The woman of limited income would be wise to adopt one color for her wardrobe, with variations of tone and treatment.
Ribbon and jewelry are worn together. A narrow ribbon is fitted snugly around the neck with a gemmed brooch or buckle.
The new high collar appears on the new blouses; the height is in the back where its fullness spreads, leaving the effect of a collar lily.
The closely knitted silk sweater is the most comfy and satisfactory garment to wear under a heavy coat for motoring, skating or walking.
The new taffetas are either striped or plaid, in imitation of the old-fashioned taffetas. They are rich and soft, with just a suspicion of rustle.
The rose is a very much favored flower. It is made of satin and velvet, chiffon and net and arranged in garlands or worn singly. There is no end of original schemes for introducing rose garlands on a costume.

SPORTING NEWS

CHESS

The ninth meeting of the Charlottetown Club Tournament took place last night at the usual rendezvous. A large, intelligent and enthusiastic company was present and the usual hot games were played, the enthusiasm being more rampant than ever. Each one went there with his head full of subtle tactics, and his sleeve full of manoeuvres. The sound of the battle, the groans of the slain victors reverberated over two blocks of the city and woke the policemen on the next corner; but there was no interference from outside. Foxy Woodman killed the innocent doctor, who died regretting that he had not buried, not as a mistake this time, the Chess Poet Laureate, who presides over the chess column in the Patriot, his regret in this being the torture it would have saved the innocent readers of that influential journal. Worby and Louison fought a drawn battle, dividing the honors worthily between them. The Poet Laureate invaded Gardiner's horticultural preserves and fished therefrom a bouquet which may form the subject of another of his poems. He also stole some May flowers from May to twine in his laurel wreath. After the thundering trouncing that the Tantonian horse had received the night before at the hands of the Poet Laureate, the redoubtable L. P. sat up; all night straightening out his cavalry with the assistance of veterinary surgeon Lundy, and so well did he accomplish his task that he rode out after May flowers. He got two bunches. Louison being on the same expedition, they met and although they had shaken hands the night before, they glared at each other. This campaign will be continued this evening in the usual place, and no doubt the poet Laureate will be there to parade his bouquets. The public, who enjoy scrapes of this kind are invited to be present.

HOCKEY

It can be judged from the formation of a Junior Hockey League in Charlottetown that Charlottetown abounds in hockey material. The clubs taking part in the League are the Victorias, Abegweits and Connaughts and the first game took place yesterday afternoon between the Abegweits and Vics. It resulted in a complete victory for the Victorias by the score of 4-0. In the first half the Abegweits fairly well holding their opponents down until the score at half time was only 3-0. However, in the second half they were entirely outclassed by the excellent combination of the Vics, and by beautiful work of this sort the Vics made the sign read 4-0 at the end.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

- Use the lightest weight utensils you can get in the kitchen.
Paper should not be used in a ladle—it is too absorbent.
A wooden plate scraper is very useful when washing dishes.
Crinoline, rubbed on velvet, will take out every particle of dust.
It pays to have cheap white china to use in the refrigerator.
Never iron stockings; they are much better put through a mangle.
Japanese toweling makes pretty cushions for window seats and chairs.
Every household should possess a linen closet with shelves and drawers.
Have good light always in the kitchen and keep the room well aired.
Have a roller on your pantry door, with a fresh towel always on it.
Boil a cracked dish for forty-five minutes in enough sweet milk to cover it.
Use a funnel for filling hot-water bottles, and the bottles will last longer.
Wash lamp chimneys in ammonia water if you would have them very clear.
If citron hardens, let it stand a little while in hot water, then it will cut easily.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

- Save the crusts cut off sandwich bread and make croutons or bread sticks of them, or they can be used for bread crumbs, or "breadmeal."
Fruit buns are excellent for children's lunches. Make dough as for rusks, then stir in as many currants and seeded raisins as the dough will hold, add a dash of cinnamon and nutmeg, raise and bake.
Pear tapioca makes a delicate and excellent thickening for soups.
After scrubbing thoroughly make a few slits in the skins of potatoes that are to be baked.
The motto of Robert the Unready is "Let ill enough alone, we might make it worse."
When ordering sausage, it will be found more economical if you buy a certain number of links instead of by the pound. For example, for the same price, six twelve links will be sufficient, and it will surprise you when it is weighed how small the amount will be.
The catacombs of St. Calixtus, near Rome, were not long ago illuminated with thousands of electric lamps, filling the gloomy vaults and passages with a bright light, whose effect as it fell upon the rows of bones and skeletons, is described as being startling and almost uncanny. The use of electric lights in the catacombs is perhaps the most unique example of modern practical science brought face to face with antiquity. This, however, would be exceeded by the introduction of the electric light in the galleries of the great pyramids of Egypt. It is reported that the Egyptian government has for some time been considering the feasibility of this.—Children's Messenger.
