Farmers Meeting Held Last Night At De Gros Marsh

A large number of farmers and their families attended a meeting last night in the recently renovated De Gros Marsh School. Mr. John Martin of the National Film Board showed pictures on various phases of farm life, with special emphasis on the business aspects. Other pictures were shown to school children in the afternoon.

The chairman last night was Mr. Lewis Campbell. He called on Mr. Murray Creed of the Provincial Department of Agriculture to speak on club work with special mention of junior farmers' organizations.

Mr. Creed outlined the background and aims of the organization and something of what had been done in other districts. He commented on the place such organizations had in filling a gap between junior clubs and the Federation of Agriculture and expressed a hope that the people of the De Gros Marsh district would continue to organize. During the past few years a co-operative store, a credit union and a calf club had been formed. A re-modelled school was an indication of past endeavours.

Mr. Lincion Dewar, a prominent farmer and livestock man of New Perth, gave a short address on the Federation of Agriculture, of which he is a director. He outlined the aims and objects of the Federation and stressed the need for all farmers in P. E. I. becoming members if the Federation is to be a vital force and a voice of the farmer in collective action, such as presenting policies for the betterment of agriculture.

He outlined some of the things already done, such as the help in payment for freight on feed, the Agriculture Support Board, etc.

Several farmers spoke in favor of both junior farmers organizations and the Federation of Agriculture and expressed the hope that some definite action would result from the meeting.

Four Workmen Injured When Wall Collapses

Four workmen were injured and taken to hospital yesterday as the result of the collapse of the old north wall of the Monaghan building which adjoined the south wall of the Rogers Hardware Company.

The men — Arthur and Harry Birt, Covehead Road; and Bernard Hughes and Walter Berrigan of Charlottetown — were among a gang of from 25 to 30 men who have been demolishing the Monaghan building preparatory to the construction of the new Woolworth store. The wall of the Monaghan building collapsed without warning causing falling debris to strike the four men and knock them to the ground.

The Birt brothers were resting comfortably at the P. E. Island Hospital last night as were Hughes and Berrigan at the Charlottetown.

Trade Board Resolutions

The Council of the Charlottetown Board of Trade decided last night to encourage the idea of having all City retail stores close at 5 o'clock instead of 5.30 from June 1 to Sept. 30 in order to give the employees an extra half hour of daylight for recreation.

Mr. F. W. Curtis, president of the Board presided at last night's meeting which was held in the City Hall.

Plans were also made for the observance of World Trade Week from May 31 to June 5.

Following are the resolutions which were unanimously passed by the Council:

"That the Charlottetown Board of Trade go on record as backing up the efforts of Premier Jones and the Newfoundland Trade Commissioner W. E. Agnew in their endeavors to obtain improved steamer facilities between Charlottetown and Newfoundland including cold storage steamship facilities. Newfoundland trade is a natural outlet for our agricultural products and it is vitally necessary that proper and adequate facilities be continuously provided by boats during the open navigation season.

"The Charlottetown Board of Trade in common with other Boards of Trade on Prince Edward Island views with alarm the hindrance to our economic development caused by the fact that proper facilities for truck traffic on the Borden-Tormentine route are extremely detrimental to Prince Edward Island and to New Brunswick. We therefore strongly urge the Provincial Government to press upon the proper authorities at Ottawa the urgent necessity of a proper boat being put on this route for this purpose at the earliest possible moment; we also urge that the ramps leading to the automobile deck of the M. S. Abegweit be strengthened to carry vehicles of 30,000 lbs. gross weight and that the turning area at the top of the ramp be of sufficient length to enable trucks to make the turn in safety; we also urge that pending the arrival of a steamer suitable for vehicle traffic on this route that the lower decks of both the M. S. Abegweit and the S. S. Prince Edward Island be levelled off so that trucks can drive on these boats without the necessity of having to be loaded on flat cars, as at present. This is also necessary for the late fall and winter truck traffic when the vehicle boat could not operate on account of ice conditions."

Other Resolutions

"That the Canadian National Railways be again approached in regrd to a late evening crossing of the Car Ferry from Tormentine to Borden during the spring, summer and fall months as no word has been received yet in regard to the request made in this matter."

"Resolved that this Board of Trade recommend that the Provincial Government take up with both Federal authorities and the Province of New Brunswick the matter of improving the roadway between Cape Tormentine Railway Station and the Carferry pier, as this is in a disgraceful condition. This route is the largest entrance to Prince Edward Island for motor vehicle traffic and the condition of this road just cannot be considered anything less than horrible and dangerous."

"That this Board of trade support the efforts to have the Canadian National Railways provide clearly visible signs and reflectors and other safeguards such as brush cutting at dangerous railway crossings which at present constitute a menace to highway traffic and about which items have recently appeared in the press."

"That the Maritime Transportation Commission be requested to ask for an immediate survey to be made by competent authorities regarding any possible fire hazard resulting from the planking with steel or wood of the M. S. Abegweit and the S. S. Prince Edward Island."

"That the Board of Trade take up with the proper authorities the matter of the present unsatisfactory condition of the rest rooms at Wood Islands pier."

1st North Rustico Troop

Your Field Commissioner has been doing organization work for the past month at the Stella Maris School in North Rustico. Twenty-four keen and interested boys make up four patrols (Curlew, Wolf, Fox, Beaver) in this Troop. At a ceremony about a week ago the four Patrol Leaders were invested as Tenderfoot Scouts and welcomed into Scouting.

Instructional periods in Knotting, Compass work, Laws, and Hand Signals, have been carried out as well as many lively games both indoors and out.

At a meeting last Sunday a prospective Group Committee and Scoutmaster were interviewed and it is hoped that in the near future North Rustico will have a full-fledged Scout Group.

1st Souris Troop

S. M. Wally MacKenzie has expressed his wish to have boys outfitted with plaid neckerchiefs. Hoot Mon! With a name like that who could refuse? With the present drought in neckerchief colours at D. H. Q. the plaid will be a refreshing addition as well as a practical solution. The 1st Souris Troop are making plans to camp the first week in August.

Zion Church Men's Association Meets

Last night Zion Men's Association wound up their year's activities with a dinner meeting in the Church hall.

A special feature of the dinner was that it was prepared by the men with Mr. Harry Hill and Guthrie Ballingal playing the leading role. The sausage and beans which provided the first course were donated by the Rendezvous restaurant. The business part of the meeting, presided over by Mr. Bruce MacLaren considered new activities as suggested in a question box submitted by members. The meeting decided to reinstitute and provide leadership to the annual church picnic plan and to amalgamate with the Sunday School to provide a greater observance of this event than theretofore. Mr. George MacLeod was appointed chairman of the committee and in accepting this post he made it quite clear to all that he would increase activity in this respect.

The matter of church census and provision of up-to-date information on Zion members and adherents was considered and it was decided to leave this matter open until the next meeting and work in cooperation with members of the session of the Church to complete this work.

Guests at the meeting who spoke briefly were Rev. J.R. Skinner, Dr. A.D. MacKenzie and Mr. Jack MacNair, president of Trinity United Church Men's Association.

The meeting adjourned to meet in September next.

STONY SILENCE

A welcome clause of the budget for the well to do comes with the Finance Minister's raising of the exemption level on estates for Dominion succession duties from $5,000 to $50,000. (This action will relieve about 90 per cent of the smaller estates which are now taxable by the Dominion Government.) Bequests to charity which formerly were taxed at the rate of 50 per cent are now 100 per cent tax free. Income tax concessions are conspicuous by their absences. Among the very few are the raising of the exemption floor for single persons over 65 years of age from $750 to $1,250 and for married persons of from $1,500 to $2,000 in the case of those with no dependents.

Mr. Abbott announced a new concession to the strictly honest taxpayer in that the Government will pay interest at the rate of two per cent on overpayment of taxes up to $5,000 and a half per cent over that amount.

The Finance Minister took 11 large foolscap pages to explain why there had been no "general tax reductions", saying that any such reduction (such as the United States Congress passed earlier this year) would be "a betrayal by the Government of its responsibilities to Canadians." There were long faces both on the floor of the House and in the galleries which were crowded with more than 600 spectators. The most frequently heard comment on Mr. Abbott's conclusion was "Well, that's that; no Federal election this year."

Canadians must, he said, look further into the future than just this year. They must realize that times are "exceptionally good," economically and financially, and that it would be imprudent to rely on those conditions continuing indefinitely.

"We now should be preparing," he went on, "for times when markets and employment are not so favorable—or at least when we will have to spend money to support them to meet other expenditures that turn up when business turns down.

"Our surpluses now are temporary surpluses and will quickly disappear when we have more difficulty in selling our goods abroad and less capital expenditure by business in Canada.

"We should, therefore, be putting away what we can now for a rainy day. In our case, we put it away by paying off debt."

He pointed to the clouded international scene and warned that Canada may be faced "at any time on short notice" with a large increase in expenditures on national defence.

"As long as that remains a possibility, we should have some considerable margin of safety in our revenues to take care of such an increase in our expenditures; otherwise, we would have to add to the other disturbing effects of an expanded defence program the complications of sudden inflationary expenditures or sudden increase in taxes.

"A substantial surplus will help to keep our powder dry."

Another Consideration

But there was another consideration—the effect of a sudden surge of tax-freed dollars on the cost of living.

If the Government diverted its prospective surplus into a reduction of taxes now it would add "hundreds of millions of dollars" a year to the already intense demand of the people for more goods and more services. But this would add nothing to the volume of goods and services available on the country's markets.

The people would try to buy more, but there would be no more to buy. Prices would be sure to rise. Some people would profit, but others would lose out to the higher cost of living.

"The apparent benefits of tax reduction," said Mr. Abbott, "would prove to be a mirage except to those strong or fortunate groups which can profit more than they suffer by higher prices."

Then, again, Canada was struggling to live within her means as far as foreign exchange was concerned. She had to export more or import less, or both. It would not be "sensible" to "slash" taxes and increase the amount that people and businesses could spend on goods and services.

Mr. Abbott disclosed that some friends had suggested he "bury" part of his surplus in "some sort of reserve" for future expenditure on national defence, national development or social security. It would, they said, make it "less visible" and less of a "temptation" for those who felt taxes should be reduced.

This could be done, but it simply would be bookkeeping and would alter nothing in reality.

Turning to the unchanged personal income tax rates, he recalled that there have been three substantial" reductions since the end of the war and defended the present rates with the observation that they are the "lowest" in the English-speaking world and no serious impediment to work or initiative.

Business Told No Tax Cuts Needed

OTTAWA, May 18—(CP)—Business was told tonight by Finance Minister Abbott that it needed no tax reduction in his new budget—and it got none.

The Dominion's corporation tax, the Minister announced, will stay at its current level of 30 per cent of profits.

While Mr. Abbott conceded this tax is "substantial," he noted that—even with the addition of Provincial corporation levies—business in this country pays less than in the United States.

In both countries, corporations were "thriving, to say the least."

cal year and $70,260,00 for a full year.

The foods being freed of the sales tax are mainly canned, packaged and processed products. They become tax-free tomorrow, with a revenue loss of $20,000,000 a year.

Mr. Abbott expressed the "hope" that the lifting of this tax will be passed on to the consumer by way of lower retail prices. But there is no compulsion on the trade to do this.

There is one bright spot for the man who pays income tax. The refundable portions of 1943 and 1944 taxes, withheld during the war as an anti-inflationary measure, will be lumped together and paid before next March 31. This payment will total $250,000,000, including interest.

Another long-sought concession is the Government's decision to pay interest on overpaid taxes. This will be at a rate of two per cent on overpayment up to $5,000 and one-half of one per cent on overpayment over $5,000, retroactive to Jan. 1 this year.

At the same time, penalties for unpaid taxes are increased—from the present rates of four and seven per cent to six and eight per cent also retroactive to Jan. 1.

Federal taxes of 20 per cent on theatres, 25 per cent on other amusement places and five per cent on horse racing bets are being repealed tomorrow, taking the Dominion out of these tax fields. The revenue loss will be $23,500,000 a year.

Tariff Adjustments

South downward adjustments in tariffs are being made and British preferential duties on cotton and rayon piece goods are being suspended until June 30, 1949. This should bring lower retail prices and increase the supply of these goods. The three-per cent tax applying to imports from general tariff countries is removed. All these tariffs are effective tomorrow.

For business, the tax benefits being allowed oil, mining and gas companies on their exploration expenses will be extended through 1949. This is to encourage the continued search for new sources of minerals, oil and gas to develop the country's natural resources and conserve United States dollars.

For the young couple setting up a home, there is a concession in the cutlery department. The 25-per cent sales tax is removed from silver-plated knives, forks and spoons. This tax is also lifted from alarm clocks selling up to $10 and from braille watches for the blind. Both actions are effective tomorrow. The revenue loss is $600,000 a year.

The tax of 60 cents a gallon on spirits used in the making of vinegar is repealed, effective tomorrow. It was aimed at encouraging the production of cider vinegar but is not having this effect. Vinegar prices now should come down.

In the field of death taxes, Mr. Abbott announced that the Dominion succession duties general exemtpion will be increased from $5,000 to $50,000, retroactive to Jan. 1. This will affect nine out of every 10 Canadian estates. The revenue loss is about $5,000,000.

In addition, there will be no tax on any part of an estate left to charity. At present, only up to one-half of an estate left for charitable or educational purposes is exempt from succession duty. Other minor succession duty changes are also proposed.

On a handful of miscellaneous items, Mr. Abbott removed or modified taxes applying to matches, 16-millimetre movie and slide projectors used in schools and churches, wheel chairs for invalids, rope used by fishermen, hay presses, crushed stone and crushed gravel.

The tall, debonair Minister, reading from a 13,000-word speech to an intent Commons and crowded public galleries, minced no words about this being a "no" budget as far as major tax relief is concerned.

As he came to the section dealing with this his tax proposals, he made this outright statement. "I have come to the conclusion that the budget this year should contain no general tax changes."

Later, he put his budget philosophy into these words:

"The general policy for this year should be to use our surplus to reduce our debt and thereby to fight inflation in the manner most suited to our type of government and our way of life."

8-YEAR-OLD

height and weighing about 125 pounds. Preliminary description was similar to identification given to the police of Arlene Anderson's slayer.

Harvey said he saw the man and girl walk into the bush where she was found. Some time later the saw the man leave the area and walk up a railway bank, cross the tracks and disappear into ravines to the north.

His suspicion would have been aroused but the girl and man appeared to be friends. He held her by the hand and as they came to a mud puddle he would lead her around it.

Shivering with cold, Teresa was found sitting in a clump of bushes in the old Belt Line area, a mile or so north of the city. A trail of blood led police 50 feet from a bloodied, two-pound rock to where she sat dazed and muddled.

"I'm scared," she whimpered to her finders. Then she asked for her mother as officers wrapped her in a comforter and carried her to a cruiser.

An apparent attempt was made to hide her body. Numerous branches found near the rock led police to believe they had been placed over the girl.

The branches, ripped from undergrowth, were too thick and strong to have been broken by anyone else but a man, police said. They also investigated tire marks which entered and left the field 100 yards from the spot where Teresa was found.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Dowling, who had not slept since she disappeared at 4 p.m. yesterday while going to a store for a spelling book arrived at the sick children's hospital 15 minutes after her admittance.

"Thank God," said Mrs. Dowling when told by reporters of the discovery. At the hospital the father collapsed and was given medical treatment.

Scores of searchers had hunted through the northwest section of Toronto and north of the city. A telephone call from a resident who had seen a little girl at 4 p.m. last night turned their attention to the old Belt Line area.

Police Chief Robert Alexander of York Township made the discovery. He shouted as he bent to pick up Teresa. She managed to give one little smile as she looked around at the police with her one good eye. The other eye was closed, apparently by a blow.
