ALLIES NEAR EDGE OF SAAR BASIN

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT CONSERVATIVE ANNUAL MEETING

Unanimous indorsement of a strongly worded resolution denouncing the "unfair and inadequate" manpower policy of the King Government and demanding "the despatch forthwith of all available trained reinforcements in order to relieve and re-inforce the men now engaged in the battle zones" was a feature of the annual meeting last night of the Queen's County Progressive Conservative Association.

Confidence in the return of a strong and virile government under Hon. John Bracken after the next federal election was voiced at the meeting, which filled the B. I. S. hall to capacity and at which the greatest enthusiasm and harmony prevailed.

Mr. T. B. Rogers, who presided, was re-elected president, and Mr. J. A. MacDonald, secretary, at an executive meeting immediately following the general meeting. The following executive officers were elected:

1st District: Messrs. George McKay, Emerald, Walter Cusack, Enayvale.

2nd District: Messrs. Michael Doyle, North Rustico, Andrew Dolan, Milton.

3rd District: Messrs. Leonard Donaldson, L. O. Kelly, Southport.

4th District: Messrs. George MacLennan, Lewis, Owen Callaghan, Laco Verde.

5th District: Messrs. T. B. Rogers, J. A. MacDonald, A. O. F. Gill, Charlottetown.

A comprehensive report of the year's activities in organization, etc., was given by President Rogers, and accepted unanimously.

Sitting addresses were made by Messrs. W. Chester S. McLure, George MacLennan, Lewis, James MacLeod, Hampton, and Hon. Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, O. B. E., provincial party leader.

Mr. McLure's Address

Speaking on behalf of himself as party candidate and his college Squadron Leader Angus MacLean, D. F. C., who is absent on military duty, Mr. McLure congratulated all concerned on the "barren attendance" at the meeting. It showed, he said, that there was "a great deal of interest awakened in our party provincially, and in Queen's County in particular." He warmly commended the executive on their organization work during the year, and stressed the importance of continuing this work, especially on the part of poll and committee chairmen.

He reviewed briefly the war situation, stressing the vital need of maintaining supplies and reinforcements for the forces at the front. He cited Prince Edward Island's record in enlistments and war loan contributions as evidence of the "best desire of the people of this Province for an all-out war effort. The vacillating policy at Ottawa on the manpower question was denounced by the speaker, who also scored

RE-ELECTED

MAJOR T. B. ROGERS

Re-elected President of the Queen's County Progressive Conservative Association.

The King Government for neglect of this Province's transportation requirements.

"We know," said Mr. McLure, "that the plans of the new car ferry, after long and inexcusable delay, have at last been set; but it is difficult for us even yet to get any evidence that the work has been started. We could have had a new boat built in the United States before that country had entered the war, if the Government had been in earnest in meeting our needs after the 'Charlottetown' was lost."

The failure of the Liberal representatives at Ottawa to speak on behalf of the Island's claims, and the manner in which Conservative champions for this province were denounced as "sappers" by the Liberal minister, was also emphasized.

Mr. McLure referred to the long delay in obtaining war work for the local firm of Bruce Stewart and Company, and to the threatened loss of this work during the coming winter.

He paid warm tribute to the statesmanship of Hon. Mr. Bracken as Federal leader, and also to his colleague, Squadron Leader

War Situation Last Night

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Bitter and German resistance and clogging mud limited initial gains of the American two-army break-through attempt in the Aachen sector in Germany, but Berlin admissions of line breaks encouraged hope that assigned objectives can be reached before the foe can bolster his sagging front.

Just what these objectives are is not yet quite clear. Cologne, the German city straddling the Rhine less than 30 miles from American advance elements, seems the obvious focal point of the massive shoulder-to-shoulder forward lunge of the First and Ninth armies.

First impressions that the two armies had been deployed on a 40-mile front from southeast of Aachen to the vicinity of the British 2nd Army Invested Roermond on the Meuse are not borne out by latter advice. Gen. Eisenhower appears to have concentrated his main attack on a sector barely 25 miles wide. As indicated the American two-army front runs from the vicinity of Gellenkirchen, due north of Aachen, to a point south of Duren.

That virtually parallels the next formidable natural obstacle confronting the advancing troops. It is the Roer tributary of the Maas (Meuse), a minor stream in dry weather but now a muddy gorilla; but crossing it under fire under present conditions could not fail to provide a difficult task.

The implication to be drawn from the indicated narrow deployment of the two American armies and from the British success in the Roermond sector to the north is that possession and use of the roads running out of Aachen to cross the Roer toward Cologne is of prime importance to the Allied battle plan. Even with Roer bridges destroyed their foundations would permit quick construction of emergency spans. On both sides of the little river conditions away from the hard surfaced roads as described in field dispatches tends to restrict mechanized elements.

Roor along the whole front was indicated. In addition, should British forces to the north succeed in forcing the Maas, the Roer would be outflanked to aid the American advance toward Cologne. On the right of the American 1st Army, advance elements appeared to have reached the narrow upper stretches of the Roer south of Duren. A crossing there would outflank the Roer from the south.

Senate To Meet Nov. 22

Island Legion Command Asks For Conscription

The Provincial Command of the Island Legion at a special meeting in Charlottetown last evening unanimously endorsed the action taken by our Dominion Council with regard to conscription of men to reinforce our Canadian army overseas.

The Legion's stand was made known in a resolution adopted unanimously.

The text of the resolution was as follows:

"Resolved that this Command unanimously endorses the action taken by our Dominion Council with regard to conscription of men to reinforce our Canadian Army overseas. We recognize the seriousness of the situation and are determined to leave no stone unturned to see to it that adequate reinforcements are made available at once. We have always recognized the fact that Canada is the fairest and the best way to wage total war and to write immediately to their provincial organizations to take over administrative jobs from non-flying personnel released from the service.

Copies of the resolution were ordered to be sent to the Prince Edward Island Senators and members of the House of Commons.

After the meeting a spokesman for the Legion said "The Canadian Legion also urges all service clubs, fraternal organizations, churches and all representative public bodies to write immediately to their provincial organizations backing the Legion's demand for the replacement of volunteers who are being called overseas reinforcements."

Final figures would be made available to the Dominion Command has already contacted each Legion branch in the province and the Provincial Command urged each branch to act immediately.

Big Offensive Is Rolling Ahead

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, PARIS, Nov. 17 (AP) — United States 3rd Army tanks, operating east of the Moselle north of embattled Metz for the first time, today charged five miles east to little more than two miles from the border of the Saar industrial basin, while British 2nd Army forces swept to the Maas (Meuse) River near the German-held stronghold of Roermond in Holland.

The surprise armored blow aimed at the Saar, important source of Germany's thundering barrage from 1,000 guns, plowed forward two miles to a point 14 miles inside Germany and only 25 miles short of the Rhine.

Air Chief Marshal Of Britain Reported Missing

LONDON, Nov. 17 (CP-Reuters) — Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory is missing, the military announced tonight.

The announcement said the aircraft in which Air Chief Marshal Leigh-Mallory and his wife were travelling to southeast Asia, and which left Britain on Nov. 14, failed to arrive at its destination.

The Air Chief Marshal was on the route to take his new appointment as air commander-in-chief in the southeast Asia theatre, to which he was named Oct. 15. Formerly he was commander of Allied forces for the invasion of western Europe.

Further details will be announced when they are available, the ministry said in making the announcement.

A wide-spread search has failed to locate Air Chief Marshal Leigh-Mallory's plane, it was disclosed tonight.

He was travelling in a plane allotted to him for his personal transport. It followed a standard route to the Mediterranean Sea.

Sturdy, full-faced Sir Trafford was responsible for launching the unprecedented tactical air offensive which preceded the invasion of Normandy. He followed the western front, and was named air commander-in-chief of the Allied expeditionary air forces when it was constituted at the end of 1943. In that command he controlled history's greatest assembly of air power. Previous to that he was officer commanding-in-chief R.A.F. fighter command
