

Woman's Realm :- Social and Personal :- Fashions :- Literature

FOR THE WOMAN READER

DON'T WORRY
Don't worry. Do the best you can. And let hope conquer care.

A SMILE
The thing that goes the farthest, towards making life worth while.

DEPENDENCY
Dependency is the last of all evils. It is the abandonment of good, a giving up of the battle of life with dead nothingness.

DRUDGERY
Drudgery is as necessary to call out the treasure of the mind as harrowing and planting those of earth.

BADLY FITTING WINDOWS
To prevent badly fitting windows rattling, cut corks from wine bottles.

TO CLEAN ALUMINUM
The best way to clean aluminum is to squeeze the juice of a fresh lemon over a cloth and apply this to brighten the metal.

BOILED FISH
After being drained, boiled fish should be dished on a napkin or dish-paper.

A NEW WAY TO MAKE MILK PUDDINGS
Boil the rice, tapioca or sago in a saucepan with the milk until cooked.

SPRING TONIC
Cut up one large grape fruit and place in a jug. Add about two quarts of boiling barley water and

LET POTATOES STAND
Let potatoes stand for a quarter of an hour in hot water before putting them in the oven to bake.

MAKING HOUSEWORK EASIER
Add a tablespoonful of paraffin to the water when washing linoleum. This removes stains and helps to preserve the linoleum.

FOR TOO GLOSSY HAIR
If the hair is inclined to be oily, do not use a brush too often, as it will only bring the oil from the scalp over the hair.

IF SOUP HAS BEEN OVERSALTED
Add a teaspoonful of sugar or one or two small pieces of raw turnip, and simmer a little longer.

A Morning Smile

Promising Young Man
A bookmaker who was ill sent his small son to ask a certain doctor to call. A different physician having arrived, the bookmaker afterwards asked his son to explain.

Mr. Smart received a letter from his friend, Mr. Sharp, and, as it bore no stamp, he had to pay double postage.

The letter read: "You will be glad to hear I am enjoying the best of health. Yours, Sharp."

Mr. Smart wrapped up a stone, sent it to Sharp with the following note: "This great weight rolled off my mind when I heard the good news."

be kept in one side of a drawer in your desk. The box should contain your favorite cleaning preparations—either cleaning cream or a cake of bi-nd soap.

Most really fastidious girls like to keep a mouth wash in the office. It makes you feel better to rinse your mouth and gargle after lunch.

WIDOW BUILT UP PROSPEROUS BUSINESS
The little town of Bletchley in Buckinghamshire, Eng., recently paid homage to the memory of a woman whose courage, perseverance, and refusal to admit defeat enabled her to build up a large and prosperous factory, employing several hundred people.

Thirty-two years ago, Mrs. Mary Ann Cook was left a widow. She and her husband had just started a small factory after struggling for 15 years to earn a living by making brushes in their home.

Mrs. Cook was left with five children, ranging in age from 3 to 17 years, and the factory had not been paid for.

With singleness of purpose she set about a task which would have daunted many an able business man and formed the company of M. A. Cook and Sons.

Crowds of working people, most of whom knew and loved Mrs. Cook flocked to the little cemetery to attend her funeral.

Dorothy Dix

Beware of the Model Daughter, Dorothy Dix Warns Wife-Hunters — The Girl Who is Obsessed by Her Family Will Have Small Place in Her Heart for Her Husband

The French have a proverb which says that there are some women who are all wife and other women who are all mother. They might as well add that there are still other women who are all daughter and sister.

To the outside observer it seems that the husband of such a woman should be down on his knees every night thanking Heaven for having bestowed such a treasure upon him.

Only the man himself knows that he is the victim of a woman who has enslaved him to her family, and that she offers him up to them daily and hourly as a sacrifice, without pity and without mercy.

She was all of that. But the trouble was that she continued to be the mainstay of her family and passed the buck on to her husband after she got married.

For years she had nursed a neurotic and peevish mother who had imagined herself an invalid, and had supported a drunken, worthless father and a horde of younger brothers and sisters, and when she married she merely turned the job over to her husband.

It never seemed to occur to her that he had any right to the money he earned, or that there was any injustice in her making him toil to support people who were nothing on earth to him and who had no claim upon him.

The man was industrious and efficient, and always commanded a fine salary, but strive as he might, he could never save any money, nor get ahead because of the drains his wife made upon his purse for her family.

Whenever he planned any indulgence, mother had a spell and had to have specialists and nurses, or Johnny had to be sent to college, or Susie had her tonsils out, or Arabella had to go off on a visit and have a lot of the dresses, or Tommy had to have his teeth straightened.

At last the man died, broken and discouraged and embittered, because he realized that he had held a fifth or sixth or a seventh place in his wife's affections, that she had never considered his interests, nor his pleasures, nor comfort when they came in conflict with that of any member of her own family, and that from the day of his marriage he had toiled ceaselessly for his wife's family and had been nothing but the family goat.

Such cases are not rare. We all know plenty of them, and these said to Jeanne, opening a door into an anteroom. "It is a private waiting room for my most confidential clients. You will find books and magazines. I won't detain you long."

Murmuring a "thank you," she entered a charmingly sunny little apartment exquisitely done after the manner of a wealthy man's den.

"Business is not so bad if you can do it like this!" she thought, dropping luxuriously into a big easy chair, and picking up a magazine at random from a tabouret.

True to his word, Canby entered in a few minutes, closing the door carefully behind him. He crossed over to her and laid a slip of paper in her lap.

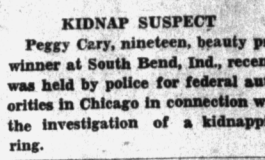

"Your apolo, my dear. What did I tell you?" She picked up the paper and gasped.

It was a cheque made out to her and the amount fairly staggered her. She raised incredulous eyes.

"You don't—you can't mean that I've made all that money in these few days?" He nodded, but laughed.

"You don't think Time's any factor in the Street, do you? It's a bromide to remind you that fortunes are made and lost in the revolutions of the minute hand on your wrist watch."

"Mine never revolves," murmured Jeanne, feeling, in the moment of excitement, the need to say something silly.

THE COOK'S CORNER

CANDIED PEEL
Soak peel, grapefruit or orange, overnight in salted water to cover (1 tablespoon salt to 4 cups water) and then cook until tender enough to be pierced by a toothpick.

Drain peel and measure as much sugar as peel, adding 1/2 cup water for every cup of sugar used. Cook syrup to 220 degrees and then add peel cut into strips.

2 cups cranberries, coarsely chopped. 1 cup seeded raisins. 3 tablespoons flour. 1 cup sugar. Few grains salt. 1 tablespoon shortening. Plain pastry.

Mix cranberries and raisins. Add flour, sugar and salt. Line a pie plate with plain pastry, and fill with cranberry mixture.

To clean and give a brilliant polish to chromium plated taps, and fittings, rub well with a cloth dipped in paraffin.

COAL For Service for Quality
The Coal we sell is carefully selected, properly sorted, and scrupulously freed from any kinds of inferior matter, such as slate.

Professional Cards
Stewart & Lowther
N. W. LOWTHER, M. M. BARRISTERS, SOLICITORS, ETC. 38 Great George Street MONEY TO LOAN

McLeod & Bentley
J. A. BENTLEY
W. E. BENTLEY, K. C.
Barrister and Attorney-at-Law MONEY TO LOAN

FOR WELL DRILLING
The Trask Well Co.
VAUGHAN H. GROOM
Local Representative
Morley M. Bell's Law Office

Prohibition Commission
Chas. H. Black, Chairman, Charlottetown.
Eas. E. McDonald, West St. Peters
John Simpson, Hamilton.

She spoke jestingly, but her eyes, as she regarded her pretty vis a vis, were grave. It seemed to Jeanne that they voiced an unspoken question: had she such a pedigree to offer?

Jeanne, thinking of Aunt Emily and her father, who had kept the village drugstore, and their forbears who sprang, so far as any record chronicled, direct from the red soil of Iowa, honest, hard-working, God-fearing, middle-class, suppressed a smile.

Her eyes went unconsciously to the mirror set in the wall opposite, as if they expected to find some branding mark on her own reflection. But what she saw was a slimy beautiful girl with an aristocratic face, with slender white hands that bore no signs of toil, and with ankles a duchess would have envied.

She was a far cry to Aunt Emily! No one would believe her if she admitted such a heritage. How easy it would be to manufacture a line of ancestry worthy of even Mrs. Barstow's respect! She had faked her position, her finances, her education, and travel—what was one more twisting of the truth against the achievement of her greatest ambition!

Vera Dayton came back just then, her face darkened by a frown. "So stupid! That was Mother on the phone. She had just had a wireless for me from the Aquitania—it's bringing an old school friend from Paris and she's never been to New York before and doesn't know where to stop, so I'll HAVE to go meet the boat and drag her home. Isn't that too provoking? And I was having such a nice time too!"

They dropped Adele at her hair-dresser's uptown, but Canby suggested that Jeanne ride down to his office with him.

"I may have some good news for you," he said significantly.

"Cheer up, my dear," Adele consoled her laughingly. "Your going will make Vic miss you and that is a wholesome cause for wilful young men."

"Oh, I'll make Vic drive me in," Vera assured her brightly. "I must run and tell him before he goes off of a tramp."

Adele made a grimace after her retreating back. "Poor Vic! But I'll wager he doesn't go," she added with a smile at Jeanne.

Adele lost her bet. Half an hour later, Barstow's long blue car glided out of the Forbes' drive with Vera Dayton triumphantly beside him.

"Two of my party have failed me," sighed Alicia Forbes, looking after the retreating car. "Mr. Barstow won't be back either. He said he had to be in town early tomorrow, anyway."

Vera had taken the trick after all, thought Jeanne as she dressed dispiritedly for dinner.

CHAPTER 23 EASY MONEY
Canby drove Jeanne and Adele Parkinson back to town the following morning. Jeanne, for the moment, no longer cared what the Forbes' house party thought about Canby's interest in her, or hers in him. She had slept badly, wondering through the long hours of the night, what use Vera Dayton had made of her long drive with Victor Barstow in his curious frame of mind.

Here's Quickest, Simplest Way to Stop a Cold

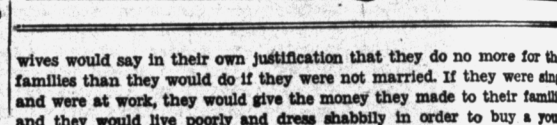

- 1. Take 2 Aspirin Tablets. 2. Drink full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 3 hours. 3. If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of water and gargle according to directions in box.

Almost Instant Relief in this Way

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get Aspirin Tablets. Aspirin is the trademark of The Bayer Company, Limited, and the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on each tablet.

wives would say in their own justification that they do no more for their families than they would do if they were not married. If they were single and were at work, they would give the money they made to their families, and they would live poorly and dress shabbily in order to buy a young sister a party frock or send a young brother to college.

And they do not see that, while they may have a right to sacrifice themselves, they have no right to offer up a defenseless husband on the family altar, nor do they realize that a woman who intends to devote her life to her own family should, in common honesty, remain single and bear her burden alone, instead of saddling it on the back of a man who had no intention of espousing a whole family when he married a single slip of a girl.

It is right and natural that a woman should continue to love her family and be interested in it and helpful toward it after she marries, but marriage does alter her relationship toward it and her husband should come not only first in her affections but in her consideration.

It is her duty to help her family to a certain extent, but it is a crime for her to help her husband and take everything he makes away from him and give it to them. And she is a poor quitter of a wife if she is willing to give up her family to follow her husband's fortunes.

It is a very beautiful and self-sacrificing trait of character for a woman to be willing to give up her whole life to the service of her family, but matrimony is not for such a one. She should remain an old maid.

The model daughter seldom makes the model wife, for there is another rival the husband has to fear so much as his wife's family. If she is obsessed by it, he will never have but a small place in her heart.

Daintiness With Chic Styles

It is cut with comfortably low back. The bodice follows the figure line with extreme snugness through the hips.

You can make it in about an hour—few parts to the pattern! Clear diagrammed instructions included, explains how to cut it out and put it together.

Style No. 351 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 2 1/2 yards of 36-inch material with 1 1/4 yards of lace.

Crepe silk or crepe satin suitable for slips can usually be bought at the remnant counters for a very nominal sum. Trim with lace or self-bias bands.

Price of PATTERN 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred.) Wrap coin carefully.

MILBURN'S HEALTH NERVE PILLS
Men and women toss night after night on sleepless beds. Their eyes do not close in the refreshing repose that comes to those whose nerves are strong.

Beecham's PILLS
The World Famous Remedy for LIVER & STOMACH TROUBLES