Rotarians Hear Impressions Of Old Country

At the Rotary luncheon yesterday the guest speaker was Dr. Wendell MacDonald, who arrived from Old Country last week. Dr. MacDonald recently opened up an office in Charlottetown. Dr. MacDonald in the course of his address said that in seven years stay in Great Britain he passed from the phase of dislike to great admiration for the people of that country and for their life. My dislikes were, I suppose of an immature nature. They seemed to me completely unimportant to people around and about them. I disliked their absolute class distinction, their narrowness of change, their apparent lack of sanitation precautions and sanitation—such as exposing fish in open windows and on the street, and the bread without wraps. In fact, that 50,000 homes in Edinburgh alone are without a bathroom. "However, as time went on, in these things I was corrected. I have a life (except that my boarding-house had a bathtub) and one forgive them the above lack of sanitation. They have acquired to such an extent—patience, tolerance and the ability to make the best of what they have. One cannot imagine hundreds of Canadians queuing up outside in a steady drizzle waiting to get into a picture house, where the buses and tubes holding on to a strap for hours having paid as much as those sitting or standing by hundreds of dollars for a football game without complaining. "They have had their setbacks and depressions as we have had but they do not get into a great deal of trouble. They have had so many setbacks that one more doesn't make as much difference as it would to us.

Gyros Plan Seal Sales Campaign

At the regular weekly dinner meeting of the Gyro Club held last evening in the Hotel Charlottetown the chairman, Mr. Earle C. Baker, conducted a question box, reading questions which the members endeavored to answer. A baby mug was presented to Mr. H. W. Welch by the last recipient, Mr. S. P. Paoli, Jr. AS in past years, the Club will again conduct the Christmas Seal campaign in the city of Charlottetown, and it was announced that the members will commence the personal solicitation of the bus-course from November 28th. To give the public a full account of the work carried on by the P. E. I. Tuberculosis League a public meeting will be held in the city on the 1st of November, full particulars of which will be published in the press later.

Course In Leadership Opens At S. D. U.

A four-weeks course in rural Leadership opened at St. Dunstan's University yesterday. One of the visiting lecturers is the well-known author, Bertram B. Fowler. The leadership course opening at St. Dunstan's University this week has as its opening lecturer the well-known author, Bertram B. Fowler, of New York. Mr. Fowler's best known books, "Consumer Cooperation," "The Lord Helps Those Who Help Themselves," have been read by hundreds of library patrons in the province. "The Lord Helps Those..." is his most recent book. It is a study of the cooperative movement in Nova Scotia. He has also written many other articles for magazines and periodicals. Although Mr. Fowler has visited the island on one or two other occasions, this will be his most extended visit. He will remain at St. Dunstan's for the first two weeks of the course. Mr. Fowler has made an intensive study of the cooperative movement, both in its practical and theoretical aspects. He has traveled the entire continent in investigating the workings of cooperative business. As a lecturer he has appeared before public groups in many American and Canadian cities. Mr. Fowler was born in Nova Scotia. His parents were farmers. His amusements, etc., are taxed, yet they seldom complain. One says he has to admire the attitude forwards sport. The pleasure one gets in playing with them. They are good winners and grand losers. "One also admires their attitude toward the present war. British people abhor the thought of even a list light, yet they have gone to war whole-heartedly without any thought of losing. Dr. MacDonald also discussed the manner in which the child welfare problem is handled in Britain. The working class men take their children under five to day crèches. They leave these children there from seven in the morning until six in the evening for six pence and for the six pence or ten cents the children get a bath, their clothes washed and cleaned and they are allowed to play. The toddlers are sent home quite clean. The effect of this cleanliness on the working class mothers is very great. Dr. MacDonald also made reference to the extensive alum clearance scheme in London whereby thousands have moved from the city to the rural districts. Rotarian T. W. Lewis was in the chair yesterday. Nelson MacEwen of Charlottetown, Y. M. C. A., boys work all secretary was a guest.

Important Book On Religion

One of the most interesting and important books in the field of religion is Professor Harold Black's "The Way Out" recently released by the publishers, Willett, Clark and Company of Chicago. This volume brings together a dozen articles written by nationally known writers living in Southern California on what the Christian religion has to offer to a world that finds itself in chaos, economically, politically, and morally. In these essays each writer expresses his most profound convictions without restriction or reservation. The contributors represent five different denominations. Among them are such well known men as Dr. Albert Edward Day of Pasadena, Dr. Henry Kendall Booth of Long Beach, Professor Earl Cranston of Redlands University, Dr. Roy L. Smith of Los Angeles, Dean Carl Summer Knopf of the University of Southern California, and President Mendenhall of Whittier College. Professor Black's chapter is titled "The Way Out in Chaos." Among the other titles are "We Face a Change," "The Eternal Church," "The Heart of God," "The Turn to Religion," "For Such a Time as This," and "The Christian Today." The volume also contains biographical sketches of the various authors. Houghton Mifflin published Professor Black's last book, "The Upward Look," in 1936. His school text "Paths to Success" was published in 1924. Professor Black graduated from Mount Allison in 1907, studied in the Harvard Graduate School for three years, taught for a year at the Mount Allison Ladies' College, was professor of English at Acadia at one time, but for the past twenty-five years has lived in California, where he has taught in a number of institutions. At present he lives in Beverly Hills but teaches in Hollywood High School, one of the best known schools in the United States. He is a brother of Charles H. Black of this city.

Daily War Survey

(By The Canadian Press) Another week opens without the appearance of the bloody war Nazi planes unloosed on the United Kingdom or the land offensive suggested by the disposition of their forces behind the westwall. Available information indicates the German military and air force commanders have done a good job in preparing their forces for a blow but the order to strike or, from Adolf Hitler, The German forces are under complete political control. In any attempt to appraise the reason for the delay in the order to attack, Russia must bulk large. Recent events suggest a closer tie-up between the Nazi and Communist Governments than was believed likely at first. The flight of the liner Bremen from Murmansk attracted little attention at the time from a diplomatic point of view but when a German prize crew rushed to the same port with the American liner City of Pines it looks as if German seamen have reason to expect more favorable treatment from Russia than from other neutral states. The tenor of the Russian protest against British contraband regulations also suggests it is prompted by more than purely political interests. The point makes special mention of the inclusion of gasoline and cotton in the list of contraband goods. But British naval action could not possibly affect the shipments of gasoline and cotton to Germany. The British, however, could prevent the shipment of United States cotton and gasoline to Germany by way of the Russian port of Mur-

(Continued from page 1) would be pulled so that they could hardly move. Guards would play the fiddle around with them; that is, they would force them to make their way around and around the tree. If they did not move quickly enough it was usual to help them by kicking their ankles. "Another form of the same punishment often ended fatally. The victim would be strapped to a tree facing outwards, his arms pulled back and round the tree trunk, then bound together. His thighs and feet—the latter only just touching ground—would also be tied sufficiently tight to stop circulation. The prisoner would be left hanging in this position for hours at a time."

Floggings Frequent Floggings were reported as very frequent in the concentration camps for small offences, such as drinking water during working hours, the white paper said. Jews were told they were only being treated as their forefathers had been in Egypt and that Pharaoh had not gone "half far" in his refusal to allow them to report at sick parade. A Jew, it was said, could be only "well or dead." At roll call many who were unable to stand had to be held up so they could be seen from the front. Many it was testified, ended their sufferings by pretending to attempt to escape in order to be shot down. The white paper listed accounts of systematic looting of Jewish properties after the killing in Paris of the German consular official, Ernest Von Raub, in November, 1938. And it pointed to 1937 when Hitler assumed power the paper reports that "members of opposition parties were arrested wholesale and confined in concentration camps where they were subjected to the most barbarous treatment."

"Flogging and torture were the order of the day and it is common knowledge in Germany that the National Socialist movement was taking a terrible vengeance on those who had the temerity to oppose it. A certain "Herr Z." described the scene at Buchenwald as filthy and mud up to the knees. It was almost impossible to walk. Flesh was torn from his face, which was disfigured as to be unrecognizable. About 10,000 men were in the camp but only 100 straw sacks were available as beds. The men were obliged to lie on their sides. Lying on their backs was forbidden under the pain of blows. Sentries were ordered to use rifles without warning."

With the repeal of the Neutrality Act that Arctic port, free of ice for the greater part of the year, might provide an entry for American goods to Germany. In the event of Russia finally dropping the guise of neutrality the same port could serve as a base for German naval operations against the sea traffic between Canada and the United Kingdom.
