THE KIRK PULPIT

Preaching last evening on the subject "The Peril of Indifference", the Minister, the Rev. D. T. H. B. Somers, said: But the deepest sense of indifference is still to seek. The deepest cause of it is lack of love. Let a person once love a book, a land, a friend, and he will never be inattentive any more. Love and attention, in the people's speech, have practically the same significance. It was love that made the father of the prodigal so quick to discern the figure of his son. It was love that made our Saviour give such heed to the cry of the blind beggar by the road, and it led to Christ which wakens the dulled heart not only to the things that are unseen, but to the infinite value of the soul that is lodged under the raggedness of the beggar. For love is quick to see the need of others, and to read what is hidden from a thousand eyes, and to discern beyond the veil the things that matter; for only he who loveth, knoweth God. For God is love. He has revealed His nature in His Son and in the Cross of our Salvation. Nothing could conceivably be further from the spirit of indifference than the spirit that sent our Blessed Redeemer to die for us. It was the spirit of deep concern. There was nothing neutral in that spirit. Our Master refused to stand on the sidelines as a passive onlooker; He refused to pass by on the other side as though it was no affair of His. He positively identified Himself with, and aggressively defended the cause of truth and right. God calls us when the Spirit of Christ moves within us, we too shall find it impossible to stand by, or pass by. What happens will then matter tremendously to us.

"The good Lord Christ died on a hill. In His blood, that bitter day. But we, we crucify Him still In our indifferent way. Kneel down and let us pray. Indifference cannot survive the double attack of an understanding heart aflame with the love of Christ."

MIKE SHAYNE FILM IS OPENING LOCALLY

Producers Releasing Corporation's thrilling mystery, "Three on a Ticket", latest in the Michael Shayne series, opens at the Capitol Theatre today.

The fast pace is set right at the start when a "dead man" pays a visit to the cadavers identity is a section of a baggage check, but it's enough to put Shayne on the trail of a gang of international spies and a gang of hijackers.

Hugh Beaumont, in the role of Michael Shayne, private detective, turns in his best performance to date. Cheryl Walker, cast as his secretary, is very effective in her attempts to keep her employer's mind on the business at hand. Others in the cast who create excellent characterizations are Paul Bryar, Ralph Dunn and Gavin Gordon. Louise Currie, as the "menace" is excellent. "Three on a Ticket" creates an excellent feeling of suspense and is smartly paced for action and mystery. It's the berries for action and mystery lovers.

In Memoriam

MRS. MAE HICKOX

There passed peacefully away in the P. E. I. Hospital, September 23rd, 1947, Mrs. Mae Hickox of Fredericton in her 88th year. She was stricken with that dread disease that was incurable, but she was never heard to murmur or complain, her passing came as a great shock to her family and many friends in the community.

The funeral which was largely attended was held Wednesday, September 24th from the home of her sister, Mrs. Cleveland Somers, her pastor, Rev. W. P. MacPhail of Bradabane who spoke words of comfort to the bereaved. Hymns sung were: "Abide With Me", "Lead Kindly Light" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus". The pallbearers were Stephen Bertram Garlick, Stevenson, Frank Nicholson, William Pound, John MacEachern and Arthur Houston. She was tenderly laid to rest in the Fredericton Cemetery.

She was such a very dear sister so patient, so kind and so true. There was never a cloud so heavy or dark. But she saw the sunlight through.

In Memoriam

In memory of Ida Adams, who departed this life October 6th, 1946.

At home in the beautiful hills with God. By the valley of rest so fair, Some day, some time we know not We shall meet our loved one there. Lovingly Remembered by His Sister.

Meeting Of P.E.I. Presbytery Of United Church

Rev. T.E. McLennan, Rev. W.A. MacQuarrie and Rev. W.B. Crowe in their offices of chairman, secretary and assistant secretary of the presbytery of Prince Edward Island at its sessions in Heitz Hall, Charlottetown, on Wednesday, October 2nd, 1947. The day proved that it is possible to combine speed, precision and clarity in the conduct of church affairs.

The general consensus of those present was that the meeting of the presbytery established an ideal pattern in this regard. The agenda was reasonably good and the reports of committees commended themselves to the court by their brevity and conciseness.

Announcement was made that a conference for rural clergymen is to be held in Port Elgin the middle of October. Also the annual meeting of the Maritime Education Council convention for Sabbath School workers is scheduled to open in Truro later this month. The date for the winter meeting of the presbytery was tentatively set for the third Tuesday in February.

The name of Clifford Mease of Kensington as a suitable candidate for the ministry was placed before the presbytery by Rev. Lewis Murray on behalf of the committee of Education and Students. The chairman of presbytery spoke briefly on the contribution to Trinity (Charlottetown) which Mr. Mease continues to make while a student at Prince of Wales College (Mr. Mease is in fourth year). Presbytery was unanimous in approving the name of Clifford Mease as a student for the Christian ministry. That Rev. Dr. Mackenzie of Charlottetown consented to serve Winsloe pastor-in-charge as interim minister was heard with interest by presbytery. He will succeed Rev. Theodore Ross who goes to Bayfield in Moncton presbytery.

A proposal to establish a memorial window in Pine Hill Chapel was heard with general approval by presbytery. (A donation of four dollars per minister in the presbytery may be forwarded to Rev. Kenneth Sullivan of Summerside, the purpose of the memorial to honor those ministers and candidates for the ministry connected with our conference and with Pine Hill Divinity Hall who gave their lives in the recent war).

Rev. Mr. Green in his report on Missionary Education and overseas missions showed his deep interest and knowledge of the world scene from the point of view of the Christian Church in its missionary outreach. Referring particularly to India and its status as a Dominion in the British Commonwealth of Nations, he said, "when future historians come to write of this transition of India to its new status, they may well regard it as among the greatest feats of British statesmanship. Nevertheless, trouble and unhappiness is the heart of the Indian people. It is the supreme task of the church to bring them a gospel of hope and thus to harmonize the disquieting elements in the national life of India."

Rev. Edward Wheelock recently appointed district secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society addressed presbytery at the morning session. He offered several reasons why the work which is his special responsibility should commend itself to the church as a whole (1) because of the great variety of Bibles in such places as the British zone of occupation in Germany (2) because of the phenomenal number of persons in countries such as India who are learning to read and write using the modern method of Dr. Latham. (3) because of the felt need of the world's illiterate population to present time of a deeper knowledge of the content of the Bible by the average reader. (4) because of a strategic value at all times of the Bible in any effective missionary program. He added further: "The most forward looking and progressive countries of the world have been those in which the Bible has been known and cherished."

Reverend Dr. Carlotta Chalmers, associate secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service in an incisive and masterful address gave a sound basis for the work of the church in the world of the future. He said: "The church is given a secondary position, in a sense of fullness and resulting weakness will be her portion. The hope of the world lies in Christ working in a consecrated Church where religion is not a matter of the heart but where it is, as it was for John Calvin, and New Testament Christians, the permeating influence in all relationships including family life. In speaking of the strategic place of the church in the world he said: "The church is a long term plan for a just and lasting peace he said the key man in the local church is still the resident clergyman. He felt that there are great unused resources of power for good in a consecrated laity. He said "we leave at times too much of the distinctly religious work to the pastor". He cited "visitation evangelism" as a practical means of lay participation in the total church program.

Among the alarming tendencies of our time he cited the prohibitive amount of money spent in a needy world on what is not bread, in one month in the U.S.A. it was estimated more foodstuffs were used for alcoholic beverages than were diverted to succour the destitute in Europe. He said that one is on the increase in Canada and a serious aspect of it is that the criminals are youth in their late teens and in the twenties and included both sexes. In Great Britain gambling is one of the greatest "menaces to the national life" on the word of an authority in the field of Evangelism and Social Service of that country.

Re-gambling, Dr. Chalmers said, "it is wrong even from the purely economic point of view because it is based on the idea of getting something for nothing". He cited also the increasing number of cases of desertion of families in Canada. The war has served but to accentuate these social ills; it is not the primary cause.

He found the answer to the question of why this alarming situation in a lack in modern man of a sense of individual responsibility and accountability. The greatest crisis of our time is a crisis in character. How to account for the rising wave of crime has one answer that is broken homes. The church above all institutions because it has resources human and divine, can point men to the Saviour who alone can save from this overwhelming sense of frustration, guilt and feeling of inadequacy. Speaking of the overseas missionaries and their unwavering loyalty to duty especially in the war years, Dr. Chalmers added, "I sometimes think the reason God keeps the church alive is for the sake of the missionaries". Rev. Dr. G. Christ of Angola he said, "his friends are afraid he will not be long in Angola; he works 20 hours a day without rest". Dr. Chalmers held that if the Church people were informed on the sled, the half-breed beside his dogs. Behind them stalked the tall figure of O'Hara. The dazzling whiteness of the ice fields caught them. It played on the buckles of the sled traces, darkened the wild face of Duval and lit up the profile of the woman. They were scarcely a rifle shot from the little cabin when she turned now to look back at it as if in last farewell. O'Hara caught the look, saw the mystery of those haunting eyes, the tender mouth, and his hands clenched at his sides.

Suddenly he remembered the letter in the inspector's desk. The full story was there, all the clues checked up, and at the end of his own words, "If I fail to bring in the prisoner in six days send someone else to do it."

He had not trusted himself. Yet he was doing it. She was guilty, and he was taking her back. He had put the case out of his hands, had given it over to the chief. No lie could save her now. Then he remembered the breed's hands at his throat, the flash of his knife, and her intercession for his life. Duval would have killed him and freed her, she had all to lose and nothing to gain by saving him, yet she had done it. Why? Not from womanish pity, since she had killed her husband and the girl. Then why?

The question had thrashed like a pulse in his brain all night. She had saved him when his death would have set her free. She even had left him armed. For some reason Duval seemed to be her devoted slave; O'Hara knew now that the fierce half-breed had come with him, not through fear but to kill him and save her.

Duval's attitude was one of humble gratitude, of blind devotion. O'Hara passed it over as no further concern of his. The woman was
