'Hunch' Restrains Woman from Sailing on Abandoned Vessel

PARRSBORO, N. S., Feb. 9.—Yielding to a premonition Mrs. Wallace Ogilvie, wife of the commander of the Weymouth, N. S., tern schooner Quaco Queen which was abandoned at sea, cancelled at the last moment the arrangements she had made for sailing to Cuba on what turned out to be the last voyage of the ill-fated schooner.

The house of Captain Ogilvie was closed for several months and Mrs. Ogilvie, with her two young children and a maid, were aboard the Quaco Queen arranging their luggage, but just before the vessel sailed they returned ashore and re-opened the house.

Speaking later of the incident Mrs. Ogilvie said "All the time something kept telling me not to go, that there was going to be trouble. I spent the week-end before my sailing with my husband in Halifax and all the time I felt something was going to happen. I had packed light clothing for myself and for the children to wear in Cuba, and warm things were left out for the trip, but I couldn't go. I knew something was wrong."

Captain Ogilvie had suggested that his wife might make the trip without the children, but although she had accompanied him on many voyages, travelling constantly along the coast and visiting the southern United States, she decided against the Cuba trip.

The Quaco Queen sailed early in January for Cien Fiegos, Cuba. The Ogilvie family had planned on remaining in Cuba until the latter part of April.

A radiogram received by Mrs. Ogilvie on the night of January 30 containing the brief information that the lumber-laden schooner had been abandoned at sea in a water-logged condition and that Captain Ogilvie with his crew of seven had been picked up by the steamer Manatee, bound for Bremen.

VALENTINE'S DAY

On this Valentine's Day there will be millions of valentines given and received in Canada and the United States. In England an exchange of the little tokens of love and affection is also going on.

Why should the 14th of February be chosen as the date for Valentine's day? The reason is not certain but it may be due to an old English legend that birds chose their mates for the springtime on this date.

Cupid arrows are famed in song and block.

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

Neutralize Stomach Acidity, Prevent Food Fermentation, Stop Indigestion.

"If those who suffer from indigestion, gas, wind, or flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure Bismarck Magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York physician stated that most forms of stomach troubles are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to the stomach. Hot water neutralizes the blood and Bismarck Magnesia, which can be readily obtained at any reliable drug store, in either tablet or powder, instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.

The day bears the same name as several men in the Calendar of Saints but there is no proof that any of those saints was born on February 14. A legend of the first St. Valentine says that he was put in prison by the emperor Claudius. While in prison he met the daughter of the keeper, the legend states, and cured her of blindness. The story does not say, however, that there was love between the saint and the keeper's daughter.

Yet we have this mid-February festival, and it is dear to the hearts of children as well as to many grown-ups. It is a time in advance of the coming of spring, and human beings seem to feel more romantic in springtime than in any other part of the year.

On many valentines you will see a picture of Cupid. He was worshipped as a god by ancient Greeks and Romans. They said that he was the god of love. When those ancient people tried to make images of their god of love, they showed him as a small boy with arrows and a bow. Sometimes he carried darts instead of arrows, and we have the phrase "Cupid's darts" today.

Cupid was supposed to shoot his arrows and darts at birds and other animals, as well as at human beings. When a creature was struck, he fell in love.

People who fall in love today would like to have Cupid also send an arrow to the object of their love; but that sometimes fails to happen. When it does happen both persons seem to overlook the pain of the arrow wounds

PETERS ROAD EAST. Usual business routine was carried out. It was decided that each member would prepare something for a bazaar in order to raise funds for Institute. LETTER OF SYMPATHY

Emerald, Jan. 26, 1929. L. C. McDonald, President of Emerald Dairying Association, Emerald, Prince Edward Island:

Dear Mr. McDonald—We on behalf of Emerald Dairying Association desire to convey our sincere sympathy to you at this time in the death of your father the late Ronald McDonald, who at one time served as a valued member of the directorate of this Association.

As we knew your father, he was a man whose word was his bond, whose opinion was always valued in whatever sphere he worked, since our Association was organized, he has been one of the men who at all times was ready and willing to sacrifice time and energy in any way to promote the interest of the factory, and his passing has left a gap among our shareholders which will be hard to fill.
