LETTER! TERROR! Story of a World Dictator

CHAPTER VI DREAMS NIGHTMARES
Brooding in the warm afternoon sunshine over the truck's farm tea things, with unlimited supplies of Mother Braybone's newish bread and admirable butter and home-made strawberry jam, all things became possible. His thoughts were like the printed text of a book that has been over-illustrated by a far too enthusiastic illustrator.

P. W. C. NOTES

The weekly debate of Section A Debating Society was held on Saturday, December 3rd. The subject of the debate was "Resolved that Prince of Wales students should receive credits for engaging in sports." The pro team consisted of Wendell MacPadyen, Una Sisseton and Henry Darryl; the members of the con team were Alia Prowse, Deane Bell and Mary Macdonald.

On Friday evening, December 2nd, the P. W. C. basketball team defeated the Esquires by a score of 17-16. The game was played at the "Y." Evidently the basketball team has no intention of lowering the standard of P. W. C. athletics set by the football team earlier in the season.

The subject of Section B debate was "Resolved that joy money leads to more crime than anger." The speakers on the pro side were Lloyd MacPhail, John MacLewen and Helen Cox; the speakers on the opposing team were Allison Gillis, Pete Sinclair and Lena Gillis. Dolly Matthew was critic.

Old Doctor Carell, whom Mrs. Whitlow considered so big and deliberate, had often wanted to talk things over with his son, but everything was for and what one thought one was up to, and things of that sort, and the old man was afraid of his son and any of him.

"I know that song, Dick. Yes, I can sing it almost in unison with you. I guess we agree pretty completely about all that. Man is now a new animal, a new and different animal; he can jump a hundred miles, see through brick walls, bombard atoms, analyze the stars, set about his business with the strength of a million horses.
