FAMOUS AIRMEN HAD CLOSE CALL

BENNETT PROPOSALS UP TODAY

Again Emphasized In British Circles That There Has Been No "Turning Down" of Proposals.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The Sankey committee of the Imperial Conference, deriving its name from that of the Lord Chancellor by whom it is headed, this afternoon continued its work of seeking to unravel the constitutional tangles of the Empire. This committee, more, perhaps, than any other, faces some days of strenuous work. It aims, if possible, to complete its survey by the end of next week with a view then to drafting its recommendations. The heads of the Imperial conference delegations do not resume their consideration of the Bennett proposals of preferences until Monday. It was again emphasized in British circles tonight—in reply to persistent rumors—that there had been no "turning down" of these proposals by the British Government and that they were still being considered.

Revolt In Brazil, Slump In Stocks

(Special to the Guardian)
TORONTO, Oct. 11.—The revolt in Brazil against the Government is having a far-reaching effect, in that the internal strife has affected market conditions and forced down the exchange rate. Canadians are suffering because of the slump in Brazilian traction, light and power stock, which dropped to $21 yesterday for a new low for the year. Canadians have an extensive interest, if not controlling interest, in Brazilian, although it is stated that no material property damage is feared. New York is affected principally by instability of the coffee market.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS OF THE DAY

(Canadian Press)
LONDON, Oct. 12.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was 64 years old today. He spent the day at Chequers with Prime Minister J. H. Scullin of Australia and Mrs. Scullin. There have been days recently when Mr. MacDonald looked to be seventy or more because of his anxieties incidental to the Imperial Conference and other governmental affairs and his personal loss in the death of his intimate friend, Lord Thomson, the Air Minister, and the other victims in the R-101 disaster. Yesterday for example, as he rode in the funeral procession of the dead airman across London from Westminster Hall to Euston Station, Mr. MacDonald appeared a worn and weary man, long past the middle sixties. But, if the cares and overwork of the moment tell on his appearance, he is equally quick in his recovery of strength and cheerfulness.

He added that he became frightened and ran away.

I., but was swept to sea by the gale, and drove under bare poles from Gaaruby, Cap Breton, to Shut In Island, near Halifax.
