CHAPTER XLII
A Change in Myra

Two nights before they reached Buenos Aires, they had a masquerade ball on deck.

Sally, sitting cross-legged on her berth with the light turned on overhead, sewed all that afternoon on a sheik costume for Richard. Yards of white sateen purchased at the ship's store billowed around her. She hummed a gay little tune as she worked.

Myra was going as a Spanish dancer wrapped in her shawl. Mr. Rigby was going as a pirate. Sally herself was going as an apache, but she hadn't told the others anything about it. She wanted to surprise them.

Myra came into the cabin, and Sally's song stopped. "Myra hadn't been herself of late. She had been thoughtful almost moody. Sally longed to ask her because Myra never made confidences and she didn't want to intrude.

"Aren't you almost finished?" Myra had been a little unfair to him, Sally. Can't we all be friends tonight?"

All of Sally's love for her sister leaped up in her heart. She was glad to be generous, thrilled to be able to please Myra.

"Of course! I'll send the steward up to ask Richard to come down."

Richard sent down a message that he would be delighted to come, but he would be glad to understand have known he would understand. She began to hum again as she adjusted her black velvet tam-o'-shanter.

Myra came into the cabin and Sally's song stopped.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. THOMAS MCGEE

The death occurred at St. Mary's Road on March 1st, 1927, of Mrs. Thomas McGee of the early age of 47 years and 9 months.

The late Mrs. McGee was a daughter of James McGuigan of St. Mary's Road. Although she deceased was not in good health for upward of two years her death came as a shock to the community and particularly so to the bereaved husband and family.

She was attended during her illness by her beloved pastor, Rev. Theo. Gallant, who administered to her the last rites of the Holy Catholic Church. There are left to mourn, besides the grief-stricken husband, five sons and five daughters, viz: Phillip, late of Atholboro, Mass.; James, John, Augustus and Thomas; Mrs. Joseph Hughes, Atholboro, Mass.; Cecilia, Ella, Mae, Mary and Jennie. The funeral took place on March 3rd, at St. Paul's Church, Sturgeon, where Rev. Theo. Gallant, who also conducted the services at the grave.

The pall bearers were Messrs. James McGuigan, Leo Daley, Art Gormley, Thomas Murphy, Martin McCarthy and Chas. McCarron.

In the community where Mrs. McGee resided, her many friends and acquaintances will miss the kindly acts and cheerful disposition so characteristic of the departed, but in the home a deeper sorrow exists.

There, with her family and beloved husband she was the centre of their affection, and to her joys and sorrows of the home were confided.

This is the way of life, seemingly mysterious and imperfect, but when we consider the eternal—the great purposes of a Heavenly Father, we are led to say, "Thy Will be Done". May God grant to the bereaved husband and family his rich blessing and consolation at this time. May they realize with revived hope that their loved one is now in that happy state—free from sickness and death—with Jesus her Saviour.

To the bereaved husband and family the deep sympathy of the community is extended.

MISS EMMA DUFFY

It is with feeling of deep regret we chronicle the death of Miss Emma Duffy, 23 years old who died Tuesday, Feb. 8th at the home of her sister, Mrs. Leon Sheltry of Marlboro, Mass., where all that medical aid, and kind attention was done to restore her health but all to no avail, and her declining days were made happy, by the care and attention of those held dear to her.

She received the last rites of the Holy Catholic Church, in which she was a devout member. She was a young woman of many beautiful traits of character, and bore her sufferings with Christian fortitude. She will be greatly missed, her kind and pleasing disposition was greatly known by all.

Miss Duffy was born in Morell, P. E. I., which she left for Boston one year and seven months ago. She leaves to mourn a sorrowing mother, Mrs. George Duffy of Morell, three sisters Mrs. Leon Sheltry, Marlboro, Mass., Mrs. Geo. Sheltry, Arlington, Mass., and Annie of Morell and three brothers George and Peter of Brooklyn New York and John of Morell.

The funeral took place Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception Church, Rev. F. McNeill officiated the Requiem High Mass and the regular choir sang. Music was rendered under the direction of Miss Dorothea Burke. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and interment took place in parish cemetery.

The pall bearers were: George Dolan, Joseph Sheltry, John Hogan, Phillip Sheltry, Thomas Decoursey, and Frank Hogan.

Michael McNiff of Hudson was director of the funeral.

Many beautiful floral tributes as well as spiritual bouquets were given by relatives and friends.—R. I. P.
