—JUVENILE COURT—His Honor Judge Shaw, newly appointed County Court Judge for Prince County, was in Summerside on Monday to hold a session of the Juvenile Court. Several boys appeared before him charged with petty thieving. The evidence disclosed that one of the boys, among his escapades, admitted stealing a teddy of rum and sold it for one dollar. Another boy confessed to stealing fifteen dollars from his father and spent the night in a lodging house with another boy, that cost him one dollar. His father recovered nine dollars of the money, the boys spending the remaining in restaurants. One boy was put on probation and sent to a foster home, as his mother was dead. The other boy was returned to his father and put on probation for one month.—S.

—BIRTHDAY PARLOR SOCIAL—On Friday evening, Feb. 18th, a most enjoyable birthday parlor social was held at the hospitable home of Mrs. Lydia Sims, Kensington, under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the Anglican Church. Some 100 people were in attendance. Rev. B. Fream, rector of the church, acted as chairman. A splendid program was given, consisting of vocal and instrumental solos, readings, monologues and contests. Several delightful vocal solos were given by Mrs. Robert A. MacKay of Amherst, N. S., who was visiting Mrs. Sims. At the conclusion of the program, a blindfold grab line afforded much amusement and action, each participant profiting indiscriminately from his "grab". A sing-song, led by Miss Miriam Profitt at the piano, was also much enjoyed. A most bountiful lunch was served by the members of the Y. P. S. B

—DISTINGUISHED SPEAKER—At a temperance meeting held in the United Church at Kensington on Friday evening, Feb. 18th, Rev. Dr. John Coburn of Toronto was the special speaker, and gave a most forceful and impressive address. Dr. Coburn urged his listeners to uphold and aid the enforcement of the prohibition law, and pointed out that, far from ideal as we may think conditions are here, under this law, they are a thousand times worse under government control—as demonstrated in the other eight Provinces in Canada. Under, government control the sale and consumption of liquor is made respectable, and accordingly the increase in drunkenness is shocking, particularly among the youth of the land, who are being taught the habit through contact agents of the brewers and distillers, who supply free beer and other drinks to young people's societies and gatherings. Taking Ontario as an example, Dr. Coburn pointed out another deplorable problem they are facing. As a result of the increased drinking among the young people, noticeably among the girls, they are being despoiled of their virtue, and an appalling increase in illegitimacy is the result. God forbid that should become a problem here. B

Draw Game Played At Borden Rink

On Monday, Feb. 21, Borden Terraplanes and Cape Traverse Three Stars battled to a 2-2 draw at Borden. The game from start to finish was very fast and clean.

About midway through the first period Sherren snapped in the first goal for the Three Stars when he took Eddie Campbell's perfect pass out from behind the Terraplanes' cage.

In the second the Terraplanes tied the count on Love's brilliant goal when he took "Pep" Darrach's pass in front of the net.

Then about midway through the period, A. Oatway received a double pass from Birch and Gaudet and he made no mistake.

The third period was evenly fought with many nice solo efforts and passing plays by both teams. The Three Stars evened the count when H. Muttart took a passout from a faceoff near the Terraplanes' net and blazed a hot one by McAleer that went right through the net.

After this score both teams turned on the "heat" to try to gain the goal advantage to carry into the final game of this two-game, total-goal series to decide the winner to represent Borden rink in the Lea and Wright playoffs.

Don McPherson and Doug Bell handled the whistles in a very efficient manner.

S'SIDE SEEKS LEGISLATIVE AMENDMENTS

Changes In Incorporation Act To Be Requested — Oyster Fishing Question Raised.

An adjourned meeting of the Summerside town council was held last night, Mayor Campbell presiding over a full council board.

A resolution was moved by Councillor Mollison, to petition the provincial Legislature at the next session to amend the Summerside Incorporation Act for the following purposes.

(1st). To change the qualifications for mayor or councillor to $1,000.00 real property instead of $1,000.00 real or personal or both.

(2nd). To give married women, owning and being assessed on real property the right to vote at a civic election.

(3rd). To make the last day for payment of taxes, (in order to vote at a civic election) December 31st, instead of the day previous to the election.

To make a designation that a person shall vote in the ward where he is assessed, whether he has subsequently changed his residence or not.

(4th). Asking for authority to issue debentures to an amount not exceeding $35,000.00 to pay for permanent streets and other permanent work completed in 1937, debentures to be for not more than 15 years at not more than 5 per cent interest per annum. Also debentures not exceeding $35,000.00 to pay for extension to electric light plant made or contracted for in 1937 on the same terms as the above.

Mayor Campbell also referred to the Proposed oyster venture in Summerside. He stated he was expecting a reply from the Federal government as to whether the oyster beds in the harbor could be kept for the fishermen and not leased to private concerns.

His Worship stated that if the town went to the expense of septic tanks for the town sewerage they would want some assurance that the oyster fisheries would benefit the working man of the town. He felt that the fishing of shell fish in the harbour would bring in considerable revenue for the laboring classes.

SCOUTERS PAY TRIBUTE TO HONORED CHIEF

Provincial President L. D. Murray said:

Mr. Chairman, Mr. Commissioner, Fellow Scouts and Scouts:—

"I presume I have been asked to respond to the toast to the Chief Scout by reason of the fact that I am the oldest appearing man in the crowd. I would like you to know, however, that I do not feel as old as I look, and in this perhaps, I have something in common with our revered Chief who acts young in spite of his advanced age. In view of the fact that we are meeting here this evening to celebrate our Chief Scout's birthday, I felt it would be opportune for me to give you a brief outline of his career and some information in regard to the origin of the great Scout movement.

"Robert Baden-Powell was born on the 22nd of February, 1857, the son of Reverend Professor Baden-Powell and Henrietta Grace. After his early education, he received a commission in the 13th Hussars in 1876, joining the regiment in Lucknow as sub-lieutenant. After extensive training and experience in the development of India the regiment returned home to Norwich in 1885. In 1887 he was appointed A. D. C. to the commanding officer, Smith, in South Africa and went through the campaign in Zululand. After several periods home on sick leave, he was transferred to Malta as secretary to the military governor, acting in subsequent years as intelligence officer in the Mediterranean countries, resigning in 1893 to rejoin his old regiment in Ireland. Served in Ashanti in 1895 as Lt. Colonel and in 1896 was through the Matabeland expedition as general staff officer to Sir F. Carrington, being in command of the Scouts in that war. After returning home in 1897 with Cecil Rhodes, rejoined the old regiment as squadron commander, later commanded the 5th Dragoon Guards in India where he served until 1899 when he was sent by Lord Wolseley on special service to South Africa where he raised the Northwest Frontier Force prior to the Boer War.

At Mafeking

"During the course of Lord Baden-Powell's experience in the army, he was greatly disappointed to find how little the average recruit knew of the elementary things in life—how to make a bed, light a fire, swim, find tracks when lost in the forest or on the plain. He decided that the only thing to do was to give them proper instruction so he started a series of lectures in 1899 which the war office thought so much of that they ordered their publication in book form with the title "Aids in Scouting." This book was published during the Boer War when, as you are all aware, Baden-Powell held Mafeking with 800 men for 215 days against a siege force of 10,000 Boers. The women and children were housed underground all that time, except Sundays when, under an agreement with the Boers, they were allowed to come to the surface. What to do with the boys in the city was one of Baden-Powell's responsibilities. He had with him two young officers Major Edward Cecil, a grandson of Lord Salisbury, and Second Lieutenant Ro and Phillips a son of Lord Saint David, a boy of seventeen. He gave them his "Aids in Scouting" and said "Go and handle the youngsters on these lines." They did and with such success that Baden-Powell afterwards declared that Mafeking was saved by the first troop o. Boy Scouts. After the relief of Mafeking, he started the South African Constabulatory along the same lines and his only son is now an officer in that force. Their dress is similar to ours, including shorts and their training on the same lines with platoons of six. At the conclusion of the Boer War, the South African Constabulatory took over policing the whole country including the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. For reasons that have not been divulged, the War Office gave him no promotion after Mafeking so that during the years 1902 and 1907, Baden-Powell was more or less at a loose end, acting as Inspector General of the cavalry of the British army. In that capacity he visited different countries including Germany, United States of America, Canada, attended the French cavalry manoeuvres, visited Italy, went to South Africa with the Duke of Connaught in 1906; in 1907 visited Egypt and the Sudan, completing his term as Inspector General of the cavalry.

"When he returned to England he found that Miss Mason, a great instructor of teachers in London University was utilizing in part his "Aids in Scouting." This gave him the idea o. adopting this course for use with boys and he wrote Roland Phillips. This youth enthusiastically approved and offered some suggestions. A long correspondence ensued which has recently been published and is described as one of the finest pieces of literature of the 20th century. Roland was less than half of Baden-Powell's age but they were kindred in spirit and their love was like to that which Jonathan had for David, (by the way, Roland was killed in the Great War).

"It was at this time Baden-Powell's mother came to his rescue. He had some boys in camp at Brownsea Island in 1907 training them along the lines followed at Mafeking. She said "Why don't you develop your theory—make it practical? The army has no further use for you, why not develop your talent for training boys?" Thus spurred, he resigned from the army, wrote "Scouting for Boys" which he issued serially fortnightly. He then went to Sir William Smith, founder and director of the "Boys Brigade" and offered the scheme to him, but as there is no military discipline in Scouting and the boys brigade is wholly on military lines, Sir William turned down the offer. Within three months o. the publication of "Scouting for Boys" Troops were springing up all over and Baden-Powell realized there was nothing for it but to create a separate movement and that is why we have Scouting for boys here today. From the storming of Mafeking by the African Dutch farmers in 1899 to the Dutch Jamboree for Boy Scouts last summer is less than 40 years but see what has been accomplished for boyhood in the meantime. There are now over 3,000,000 Boy Scouts in the world.

"During subsequent years, Baden-Powell visited Brazil, Argentine, Canada, United States, Chile, Norway, and Sweden, Panama, West Indies, Japan, South Africa and New Zealand and Australia, organizing and giving addresses to the public on Scouting, in fact his time during these years has been taken up with writing and organizing the movement.

Lady Baden-Powell

"We are here also to honour the Chief Guide, Lady Baden-Powell. Their marriage was a romance. Baden-Powell was walking down Knightsbridge one day when he observed in front of him a woman whose fine figure and firm tread caught his fancy. He did not see her face but her carriage and dignity so filled his observant eye that he followed her some distance until she got lost in the crowd. Several years afterwards he was on board the Arcadian en route to the West Indies when he was attracted by a lady parading on the promenade deck with the carriage and tread of her whom he had once seen in Picadilly years before. He lost no time in getting an introduction and from this issued the happy marriage which gave birth to the Guide movement. Some of us here have had the pleasant experience of meeting the two Chiefs and we are ready to re-affirm our conviction that some marriages, at all events, are made in Heaven and that of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell is one of them.

"A further brief word. You leaders are performing a worthwhile public service in upholding the tradition of the Scout and Guide movements, which may be a large factor in maintaining peace in the civilized nations of the world. Baden-Powell looks to you to continue your interest and with renewed zeal press on to greater achievements."

"The Chief Guide"

Responding to the above toast Mrs. Reay said:

"Miss Donahoe has ably proposed a toast to the Chief Guide and has given us an interesting idea of her early life.

"This early life was entirely changed by her marriage to the Chief Scout in 1912.

"At the age of 25 she married a man of 55—a man of world-wide fame and innumerable connections and friends.

"In spite of the difference in their ages it proved to be an ideally happy marriage as she brought to his wisdom and experience the energy and enthusiasm of youth.

"She has a marvellous insight into human character and a gift of recognizing people—both their faces and history.

"She has also a keen and almost uncanny perception of character which enables her to pick out suitable people who will help on the work of the Guides.

"The family lives of the Chiefs are full of coincidences.

"The Chief Scout and the Chief Guide have the same birthday—February 22nd.

"Their daughter Betty and her husband have the same birthday—April 16th.

"Their son Peter and his wife have the same birthday, October 30th, which by a double coincidence is also the Chiefs' wedding day.

"Their first two grandchildren were born within a few months of each other within 100 miles of Mafeking where B-P was in command during the famous siege.

"The greatest thing Lady Baden-Powell did for the Guides was to unite them all into one big family first in England and then all over the world.

"When Lady Baden-Powell was elected Chief Guide of the world in 1930, she thanked the conference in these words:

"I feel wholly unworthy, but I will do my best. I love Guiding wherever it is and in whatever country it is. As you know Guiding is very precious to me personally. I will do my best to help everybody —everywhere."

FREIGHTERS

Reports received by the Franklin from the Everhope indicated a temporary steering gear was being rigged and the ship was in no immediate danger.

The Azalea City dropped her propellor last Thursday and the Halifax tug put out to her aid the same day, arriving Sunday. By tonight, the freighter, tug and the United States coast guard cutter Chelan, also standing by, had drifted far to the east from their original position, about 160 miles southeast of Cape Race, Nfld.

Heavy seas made any move to aid the Azalea City difficult and the Franklin and Chelan were merely standing by awaiting calmer weather. A New York salvage tug also is on the way.

East Coast Radio Service which reported the Everhope's plight gave her position as latitude 43.30 north and longitude 47.50 west, about 230 miles from the Azalea City.

The Everhope is a vessel of 2,404 tons bound from Antwerp to New York. The Azalea City, a 5,588-ton craft, carried a crew of 51 and is bound from southern United States ports to Europe.

TENSION HIGH IN AUSTRIA

Uncertainty As To Nazi Aims Causes Nervousness.

VIENNA, Feb. 22—(AP)—Turbulent Austria's future depended tonight on enforcement of discipline by Arthur Seyss Inquart, Hitler-approved minister of the interior.

An appeal by him today for peace and order helped to relieve the tension but fear psychosis still gripped many Austrians as they awaited the end of jubilant Nazi celebrations.

Uncertainty as to how far the Nazis intended to go toward domination of the nation contributed heavily to the nervous state.

The Jews particularly were depressed. Six committed suicide.

Strong police patrols ranged through the streets to enforce a four-week ban on political demonstrations. Political meetings were banned under the order which went into effect at midnight last night.

Chancellor Kurt Von Schuschnigg remained in seclusion preparing a speech for Thursday in which he will explain the governmental changes brought about after his historic conference at Berchtesgaden Feb. 12 with Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

Scores of Government officials sent the Interior Minister letters saying they would support the Austro-German agreement if they had assurance their jobs would not be endangered.

Handbills were distributed in Graz, Austria's second largest city, addressed to "German and Austrian compatriots of the National Socialists". These handbills declared:

"You have conquered. Soon Hitler's flags will flutter over all streets. Servitude will last just a short time longer. The battle, however, continues until we have won a National Socialist Austria.

"Therefore we demand half the ministerial portfolios and state secretaryships in the transition cabinet."

ANGLO-GERMAN ACCORD SEEN

Nazis Confident Of Complete Settlement With Britain.

(A.P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

BERLIN, Feb. 22—Nazis tonight expected an Anglo-German accord would follow on the heels of settlement of British and Italian differences in a move for pacification of Europe.

Germany was seen in Nazi circles as feeling herself free to bring pressure upon Czechoslovakia which emerged as a republic at the end of the Great War and which has almost 3,500,000 Germans in its population.

At least 80 per cent of the Germans there are regarded as pro-Nazi with the percentage even greater in Bohemia, the part of Czechoslovakia bounded on three sides by Germany.

In Bohemia, there are 2,175,000 Germans or about 33 per cent of the population.

EXPRESS CONFIDENCE

Nazis were confident that by the time Hitler visited Premier Mussolini in Rome next May, the Sudeten Germans of Czechoslovakia would have much the same relation to Germany as Austria and the Free City of Danzig bear to the Reich.

They also believed Germany again would possess the colonies she lost as the result of the Great War.

Hitler was represented as feeling Prime Minister Chamberlain would be willing to restore German colonies if thereby he could be assured the Reich no longer would keep Europe in a state of tension.

Mr. Chamberlain, in preparing for negotiations with Italy over Anglo-Italian differences, was said in German circles to appear to be acting according to the plan Hitler and Mussolini agreed upon between themselves for the pacification of Europe when they conferred last September in Berlin.

The cornerstone of that plan was an amicable arrangement with Great Britain effected first by one of the "axis" powers and then the other.

MAKING CONCESSIONS?

With the turning of attention toward Czechoslovakia, there were indications that the Czechs were making concessions. One was that next Thursday a symphony concert will be given in Berlin with the Czech Minister to Germany acting as patron for the benefit of the Sudeten German winter relief organization.

Nazis say some day the Germans in Bohemia will automatically be part of the Reich.

They said they did not believe armed forces would be necessary to deliver the Germans from what is freely described as "Czech bondage."

The Sudeten German party in the 1935 parliamentary elections won 1,250,000 votes and obtained 44 of the 300 seats in the Czech House of Representatives and 23 out of 170 seats in the Senate.

New food for conjecture on Hitler's next move was furnished by an announcement that Field Marshal Hermann Goering, No. 2 Nazi, was enroute to Poland.

A communique said Goering went east in response to an invitation from President Ignace Moscicki of Poland "to go hunting in Bialowiecza State forest".

ENCOURAGEMENT

Encouraging others in noble callings is the next best to performing the work ourselves.

Vote Is Carried

it did not understand in advocating collective security in the Europe of today. The League of Nations was a "delusion."

The League is unable to provide collective security for anybody." Mr. Chamberlain declared. .... Nations which remain in the League must not be saddled with risks they are not prepared to take. ....If the League would throw off the shams and pretenses which everyone sees through....its moral force would be multiplied at once."

He denied he had "done anything behind the backs of our friends" (the French), took Mr. Eden to task for having said that he (Eden) had told him he considered negotiations with Italy and Germany on the present basis a breach of "international good faith." and pleaded with the House to understand the great responsibilities weighing upon him.

AWFUL RESPONSIBILITY

His voice dropping almost to a whisper, he said:

"There may come a time when some one who occupies the position I hold today will have to face again the awful responsibility of answering this question—will you plunge your country into war?

"I pray this responsibility will not fall on me. ....But does not an equally heavy responsibility lie on a man who feels as I do that if we do not take action we may presently be faced with that frightful question, and who feels that by taking action we shall do something to avert it?

"I should be failing in my duty if I failed to take that action now—as I have done."

Outside Parliament operations were launched for talks with Italy. The Earl of Perth, British Ambassador to Italy, was summoned from Rome for instructions before undertaking the negotiations under Premier Mussolini's eye in the Italian capital. There were reports Germany had expressed willingness to co-operate in the Spanish volunteers question.

COMPLETES RESIGNATION

Mr. Eden completed the formalities of his resignation by going to Buckingham Palace to hand over his seals of office to the King. The executive committee of the British League of Nations Union and the National Council of Labor issued expressions of regret at the resignation and attacked the Government.

The defeated resolution of no confidence, moved on behalf of the Labor Party by Mr. Greenwood, declared the House "deplores the circumstances in which the late Foreign Secretary has been obliged to resign office and has no confidence in His Majesty's present advisers in their conduct of foreign affairs."
