ness said perhaps if he put it out of gear it would be all right. Saunders did so and they got along without further trouble.

At the cottage the witness saw someone taking a part of a case of beer out of Saunders' car. They took it into the cottage, he supposed.

Wendell Worth, Charlottetown was at the cottage at Tracadie on Sunday, May 23. He saw the Dodge and described the way it was damaged. He saw a piece of wood sticking out of the radiator grill. In reply to a question by the witness Saunders replied that he had been on the road all night. He had been stuck in the ditch. That was quite evident, the witness said, because his shoes were all over mud.

Jeffery Fitzgerald of Charlottetown was at the cottage at Tracadie and saw the damaged coupe. Saunders cut his finger when he and the witness were working at an old spring with a chisel and an old axe. The chisel slipped. A few minutes after he cut his finger Saunders went over to the car Mr. Fitzgerald continued.

Robert Duvar, Charlottetown Royal, proprietor of Crowlands, a social club, said that Saunders came to the club between eight and nine o'clock Saturday night, May 22, and remained until about 11. There was nothing to drink. The witness said "no" in reply to a proposal that he have a drink so no one had anything. Saunders proposed the drink, the witness said. He did not know where it was to come from. There were different jokers in the club over "what he had no jurisdiction." Saunders was perfectly sober, he concluded.

Wilfrid Duffy, Charlottetown said Health Saunders "came into his place of business the evening of May 22, 1937, and stayed until about 11:30 Saturday night looking for Jack Cameron whom he was to drive to Tracadie. Mr. Cameron had already gone and Saunders left the store at once. He appeared to be all right.

John MacKinnon, Queen Street, employee on the S.S. Charlottetown testified that someone ran into his car on Gallows Hill between 12:10 and 12:15 a.m. Sunday. He saw a car coming along taking both sides of the street and pulled in behind a parked car, the witness told. The other car, however, hit his left front fender with its left front fender. It was a dark coupe but was going too fast for the witness to get the number. The car he was driving a Studebaker No. 4491 was at the mounted police headquarters next the witness said.

Wendell Ellis, Donaldson, recalled, testified that the car he was driving on the Saturday night, May 22, was a 28 Chevrolet. He didn't remember the registration number. Later he looked it up and told that it was 3727. He told that he noticed water or oil running out from underneath the coupe which pulled up with his car at the cemetery before he started. He had left his car at the Mounted Police barracks this morning, the witness said.

Arthur Collins, Charlottetown, service manager at A. Home and Co. told of examining car No. 4762, a Dodge coupe. He found both front fenders bent, the bumper bent and broken and the back bumper bar on the right side bent. The radiator grill pushed back against the radiator top and the radiator pushed back about two inches both sides of the engine hood bent, the radiator brace rod on the right side broken from the coil and driven back and the one on the left side bent. The front end of the car was out of line on the left side. Acting on instructions from the R.C.M.P. he took the top off the engine, the witness said and the engine showed signs of overheating and seizing. The top of one piston was burnt out. Overheating could be caused by the car being driven without water. The fan would turn when the witness saw the car.

Apparently something had been hit to drive the radiator back, but it would be rather difficult to say what. It looked to be something that would shape itself to the side of the road which he thought he ran into and damaged his grill but he couldn't find it, the witness said. There were piles of cut wood and logs along the road.

The hearing then adjourned until 2 p.m. today.

KING'S BIRTHDAY OBSERVANCE—Yesterday many ardent fishermen took advantage of the holiday provided by the observance of the King's birthday and sailed forth armed with rod and fly to lure the finny denizens of pond and stream. Some returned with plentiful evidence to back their claim of fishing prowess but others told only of "big ones that got away" and of bites, which one more than half suspected were mosquito bites. Others spent the holiday in playing cards, or going to other congenial amusements. Heavy rain, early in the day gave little promise of the beautiful weather which prevailed over the province in the afternoon and last night.

Canada has increased by about 15 per cent over the early part of 1936. With such a marked gain this year business activity as a whole is about 15 per cent above the depression low in February, 1933, and within 15 per cent of the pre-depression high in 1929. Canada, therefore, has traveled a great distance along the road of economic improvement and may safely be said to be approaching the desired goal of prosperity.

A noteworthy feature of this year's economic record is the fact that the seasonal downturn, which invariably occurs in the closing months of one year and the opening months of the succeeding year, was less pronounced than usual and has now practically been overcome. Thus the level of general activity at present is close, if not quite equal to the post-depression peak of last autumn.

Industrial operations, apart from those included in the mining and forestry, have shown important gains this year, mainly because of a marked improvement in the so-called heavy industries. It is interesting to find that the rate of increase in industrial operations over 1936 has been slightly greater in the Maritime Provinces than in other major industrial areas, notwithstanding the high rate of activity which prevailed last year in the leading steel district. The improvement in Canadian heavy industries in which the Maritime Provinces have shared, in one way through the receipt of orders for equipment orders, is one of the most encouraging factors in the national business situation for 1937.

Normally large employers of labor continued in a state of depression. As a group they are now working at about 65 per cent of capacity while a number of units are on a full-time basis and several are hard pressed to cope with new orders.

The seasonal decline in employment throughout Canada in the first quarter of this year was less marked than usual, while a slight upturn late in March was earlier than in most former years. The present employment situation is the best since 1930. Dealing specifically with the Maritime situation it may be noted first that this area had a steadier employment record in the depression years than most major economic sections of the country. Thus on last April, 1933, the index number of employment in the Maritime Provinces was 78 per cent of 1926, while that for all Canada was 76 per cent. In the last four years re-employment has risen about as much in the Maritime Provinces as elsewhere.
